Understanding Water in a Dry Environment Ian Simmers, 2003-01-01 In order to provide water security in the twenty first century there is universal agreement that a continuation of current policies and extrapolation of trends is not an option Also clear is that from both water supply and development perspectives the world's arid and semi arid regions are those currently and potentially experiencing the highest water stresses One third of the world's land surface is classified as arid or semi arid and about half of all countries are directly affected in some way by problems of aridity The hydrology of arid and semi arid areas is also known to be substantially different from that in more humid regions It is therefore essential that investigation methods appropriate to the former are developed and applied and that strategies for arid and semi arid region water resources development recognise the principal characteristics of in situ hydrological processes

Azeiteiro, 2019-01-24 This book collects wide ranging contributions such as case studies reviews reports on technological developments outputs of research studies and examples of successful projects presenting current knowledge and raising awareness to help the agriculture and forestry sectors find solutions for mitigating climate variability and adapting to change It brings the topic of ecosystem services closer to education and learning as targeted by the Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Paris Agreement the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the EU Biodiversity Strategy to 2020 Climate change and its impacts on agriculture and agroforestry have been observed across the world during the last 50 years Increasing temperatures droughts biotic stresses and the impacts of extreme events have continuously decreased agroforestry systems resilience to the effects of climate change As such there is a need to adapt farming and agroforestry systems so as to make them better able to handle ever changing climate conditions and to preserve habitats and ecosystem services
Climate Change in the Mediterranean and Middle Eastern Region Walter Leal Filho, Evangelos Manolas, 2022-01-01 This book serves the purpose of showcasing some of the works in respect of applied research field projects and best practice to foster climate change adaptation across the region Climate change is having a much greater impact in the Mediterranean than the global average In the Paris Climate Agreement the UN member states pledged to stop global warming at well below two degrees if possible at 1.5 degrees This mark which is expected elsewhere only for 2030 to 2050 has already been reached in the region The situation could worsen in the coming years if the global community does not limit its emissions The above state of affairs illustrates the need for a better and more holistic understanding of how climate change affects countries in the Mediterranean region on the one hand but also on the many problems it faces on the other which prevent adaptation efforts There is also a perceived need to showcase successful examples of how to duly address and manage the many social economic and political problems posed by climate change in the region in order to replicate and even upscale the successful approaches used It is against this background that the book Climate Change in the Mediterranean and Middle Eastern Region has been produced It contains papers prepared by scholars practitioners and members of governmental agencies undertaking research and or executing climate change projects and working across the region
