Cochabamba! Oscar Olivera, Tom Lewis, 2004 Historically a common trust water is now bought and sold as a private commodity With billions at the mercy of an unrestrained marketplace it is easy to understand why this precious resource is at the center of the international movement working to turn back the rising tide of corporate globalization The triumphant struggle of grassroots activists in Cochabamba Bolivia sounded a significant opening salvo in the water wars In 2001 water warriors there regained control of their water supply and defied all odds by driving out the transnational corporation that had stolen their water in the first place Cochabamba is the story of the first great victory against corporate globalization in Latin America Oscar Olivera a 45 year old machinist who helped shape and lead a movement that brought thousands of ordinary people to the streets powerfully conveys the perspective of a committed participant in a victorious and inspirational rebellion The beloved and highly respected Olivera relates the selling of the city's water supply to Aguas del Tunari a subsidiary of US based Bechtel the subsequent astronomical rise in water prices and the refusal of poverty strapped Bolivians to pay them Olivera brings us to the front lines of a movement chronicling how the people organized an opposition and the dramatic struggles that eventually defeated the privatizers With hard won political savvy Olivera reflects on major themes that emerged from the war over water the fear and isolation that Cochabambinos faced with a spirit of solidarity and mutual aid the challenges of democratically administering the city's water supply and the impact of the water wars on subsequent resistance Oscar Olivera is president of the Cochabamba Federation of Factory Workers and 2001 winner of the prestigious Goldman Environmental Prize Tom Lewis is Latin America editor for the International Socialist Review and professor of Spanish at the University of Iowa

A History of Organized Labor in Bolivia Robert J. curbed by the Chaco War with Paraguay of 1932-1935. Nevertheless, despite being compelled to operate illegally, the labor movement found support in several political parties, the most successful of which was the Movimiento Nacionalista Revolucionario, a powerhouse in the miners' federation. Conscious of the remarkable upheavals which punctuated Bolivian history during the twentieth century, Alexander traces the relative successes of Bolivia's labor unions, contextualizing their triumphs and disappointments within the captivating history of Bolivia's tumultuous political scene. Alexander explains how the labor movement evolved in the framework of several political changes, including the brief presidency of Major Gualberto Villarroel, which began in December 1943 and lasted only two and a half years; the Bolivian National Revolution, which began on April 9, 1952; the onset of agrarian reform in 1952; the overthrow of the revolutionary regime in November 1964. Land Reform in Bolivia Ronald James Clark, 1970.

From Rebellion to Reform in Bolivia Jeffery R. Webber, 2011. Evo Morales rode to power on a wave of popular mobilizations against the neoliberal policies enforced by his predecessors. Yet many of his economic policies bear striking resemblance to the status quo he was meant to displace. Based in part on dozens of interviews with leading Bolivian activists, Jeffery R. Webber examines the contradictions of Morales' first term in office.

Analysis of the Hydrocarbon Sector in Bolivia Christian Velasquez Donaldson, 2012. This report analyzes the hydrocarbon sector in Bolivia, which represents a vital component of its economy. In 2006, Bolivia nationalized the hydrocarbon sector due to unfavorable contracts for the government since the privatization of the sector 10 years prior. Without a coherent allocation system of the important hydrocarbon revenues, significant per capita disequilibrium will remain in which regions with a high population get considerably fewer resources than less populated regions. The current distribution system is discriminatory in the allocation of resources without taking into account poverty criteria in such a poor country like Bolivia. It also exacerbates the regional dependency on central transfers that depend on exhaustible and unstable hydrocarbon production. Presented here are the results of a hypothetical calculation of an alternative distribution system of the hydrocarbon revenues introducing poverty criteria into the equation However the results of the hypothetical exercise presented have the objective of opening the debate and dialogue for needed reforms in the Bolivian hydrocarbon distribution system and do not suggest a definitive answer The context of deforestation and forest degradation in Bolivia

Robert Müller,Pablo Pacheco,Juan Carlos Montero,2014-06-10 Bolivia s forest resources are of global importance its main forest areas are located in subtropical and tropical regions There is severe deforestation going on in the lowlands at a rate of approximately 200 000 ha per year whilst forest degradation mostly concerns montane forests Cattle ranching is the most important direct driver of deforestation followed by mechanized agriculture at medium and large scale level mainly for the production of soy bean and finally small scale agriculture Underlying causes of deforestation include among others the opening of the agricultural economy to international markets and the weakness of institutions in charge of controlling land use From 2006 on under the government of Evo Morales Bolivia adopted an official position against the marketization of nature and in defense of the rights of mother earth In consequence to its rejection of REDD Bolivia developed an alternative proposal called Joint Mechanism of Mitigation and Adaptation for Integrated and Sustainable Management of Forests and Mother Earth This proposal was also promoted in international negotiations on climate change It focuses on local experiences for a sustainable and integrated management of natural resources and fosters land use planning at different levels of governance Our analysis suggests that there is still a lack of concrete approaches to mitigate the direct threats to forests moreover the control of illegal deforestation is still insufficient We also note that in parallel to policies of nature conservation there is a contradicting political agenda being implemented promoting the expansion of the agricultural frontier Only the future will show if the vision of Living Well in Harmony with Mother Earth will really lead to effective measures to combat the loss and the degradation of the immense richness of Bolivian forest Labor Law and Practice in Bolivia

Bolivia's Border System José Blanes Jiménez,2023-04-14 This volume demonstrates how Bolivia is part of a regional border system and intends to contribute to public policies related to violence and distortions stemming from global illegal markets specifically for vulnerable populations The book offers a multinational investigation on the changing and unknown image of the relationship systems that surround countries and in particular the structuring and functions of their borders The chapters offer a reflection on how the lines of borders connect us to distant regions which defines the real scope of the borders of globalization while also impacting trade labor flows and organized crime The book reveals how Bolivia has advanced from an image of borders built through territorial disputes with neighbors to today s conception of them In doing so it argues that underlying tensions have developed between the local and the global namely Bolivia inserting itself into the global system of illegal markets thereby generating critical scenarios for various social groups Bolivia's Border System comprises the first research into Bolivia's border subsystem and illegal markets It will be a vital resource for researchers of Bolivia and Bolivian history international relations security studies border studies and contemporary Latin America
