Improving Home School Communications

Gill Ellis, Nicola S. Morgan, Ken Reid

Improving Home School Communications:

Improving Home-school Communications Edward Earl Gotts, Richard F. Purnell, 1985 Communicating effectively with parents and the wider community is important to schools for a number of reasons Community members are more supportive of schools that they feel they understand and the significant role parents play in their children s education can only be affected by the schools if effective communication exists Four methods of communication are especially useful with groups of parents newsletters open houses handbooks and parent organizations Communicating with parents individually may involve parent teacher conferences home visits interviews and phone calls or letters Efforts to inform parents should be continued through their children s secondary school years because parental interest remains high even though their active participation is often reduced Effective use of the kinds of communication covered here can serve as a starting point for broader school community relations efforts These efforts include soliciting citizen involvement as volunteers in the schools and developing partnerships with community businesses Resource materials providing useful information on various aspects of school community relations are cited throughout this publication PGD Strategies for Improving Home-school Communication and Parent Involvement Laura Cecilia Colombo, 2000 Better Behaviour Through Home-school Relations Gill Ellis, Nicola S. Morgan, Ken Reid, 2013 How can we create effective partnerships between home school and the community How can the relationships and communication between families and school be strengthened How can families help schools to improve behaviour in their children both at home and at school Using a tried and tested framework that has been successfully implemented throughout a wide variety of very different schools and settings Family Values is a Scheme which engages and empowers families to work in close collaboration with schools and organisations and which results in long term improvements in behaviour communication pupil achievement and relationships The Family Values Scheme has been proven to Help pupils to be more academically diligent Help schools to assume a calmer more peaceful ambience Forge better pupil teacher relationships Improve Pupil and teacher wellbeing Help parents to be more engaged with the school Improve children s literacy behaviour and attendance Provide head teachers and their staff with an effective whole school strategy The authors award winning Family Values Scheme is underpinned by sound theoretical principles and they show here how it has been successfully put into practice through case studies in real school settings The book explores how the Scheme promotes social emotional and family system theories and in linking effectively to SEAL social and emotional aspects of learning the Scheme compliments existing personal and social education programmes in all schools Showing schools and organisations how to create effective partnerships with families and the community in a fun exciting and sustainable way Better Behaviour through Home School Relations will be of huge benefit to all school staff as well as local authorities support groups parents charities and services School Illinois State University. Center for the Study of Education Policy, 2004 The research is clear that parents involvement in their child s education improves outcomes in areas such as learning attendance behavior and graduation rates Although almost any parent involvement brings improvements in student outcomes parent involvement with their child s learning at home is most helpful in increasing student learning Increased and meaningful communication between home and school enhances parent involvement Illinois schools are using various forms of technology to increase school home communication including voice mail e mail school and classroom websites and web access to individual student information such as attendance grades and student portfolios however this use is not consistent or widespread In February 2003 Governor Rod R Blagojevich called on all Illinois schools to adopt the National PTA standard for parental involvement to ensure that communication between home and school is frequent and meaningful The Illinois Century Network ICN provided funding to the Center for Application of Information Technology CAIT at Western Illinois University to develop applications and the Center for the Study of Education Policy at Illinois State University to survey schools across Illinois to determine the extent of the use of technology for communicating with parents of students in Illinois schools The major findings are presented in this paper Based upon the findings from the literature state data cost study surveys interviews and focus groups seven recommendations are given 1 Improved school home communication would benefit students their families and schools however multiple communication methods and formats are needed to meet the varying capacities and communication needs of Illinois families 2 Illinois can promote cost effective solutions that build upon the variety of existing student information systems parent communication tools and grading systems already in place rather than mandating a one size fits all system The State should seek to provide communication solutions that meet interoperability standards and are compatible with as many current school communication systems and vendor products as is feasible 3 Illinois should make use of the existing ICN infrastructure to provide a menu of support services from which schools may selectively choose based upon their priorities capacity and needs Steps toward implementation include assuring a basic level of access and capacity for all schools providing services to support the activities for which technology is most useful to increase parental involvement and helping schools share best practices related to school home communication 4 State sponsored school home communication initiatives must recognize the current financial constraints under which Illinois schools are operating To address cost issues the state could provide financial support through targeted grants tied to specific goals that seek to increase the frequency of school home communications from current levels 5 School home initiatives will need to address issues related to personnel time for training and implementing home school communication systems Support will be required for schools to train personnel and parents in order to accomplish reasonable goals to increase the frequency and extent of school home communication 6 In collaboration with parents and families schools should establish policies and practices that establish a framework for school home communication related to student academic performance and development to ensure consistent expectations Explicit policy goals would also help schools identify budget priorities and 7 Any new statewide program initiative must recognize the cultural and economic differences in the schools and homes across
