Literature And Commitment:

Handbook of Interpersonal Commitment and Relationship Stability Jeffrey M. Adams, Warren H. Jones, 1999-09-30 A fundamental assumption underlying the formation of our most important relationships is that they will persist indefinitely into the future As an acquaintanceship turns into a friendship for example both members of this newly formed interpersonal bond are likely to expect that their interactions will become increasingly frequent diverse and intimate over time This expectation is perhaps most apparent in romantically involved couples who through a variety of verbal and symbolic means make explicit pledges to a long lasting relationship In either case it is clear that these relationships represent something valuable to the individuals involved and are pursued with great enthusiasm Virtually all close relationships are formed within the context of mutually rewarding interactions and or strong physical attraction between partners Friends and romantically involved couples alike are drawn to one another because of similarity of attitudes interests and personality and quite simply because they enjoy one another's company This enjoyment coupled with the novelty that characterizes new relationships almost makes the continuation of the relationship a foregone conclusion As relationships progress however their novelty fades conflicts may arise between partners negative life events may occur and the satisfaction that previously characterized the relationships may diminish

Handbook of Employee Commitment John P. Meyer, 2016-09-28 A high level of employee commitment holds particular value for organizations owing to its impact on organizational effectiveness and employee well being This Handbook provides an up to date review of theory and research pertaining to employee commitment in the workplace outlining its value for both employers and employees and identifying key factors in its development maintenance or decline Including chapters from leading theorists and researchers from around the world this Handbook presents cumulated and cutting edge research exploring what commitment is the different forms it can take and how it is distinct from related concepts such as employee engagement work motivation embeddedness the psychological contract and organizational identification

Highly Effective Behavior of Financial Consultants Elfi Ettinger, 2009-04-20 Elfi Ettinger focuses her research on how financial consultants perceive explain and interpret their commitment at work based on their collective reality of actions and behavior She analyzes which organizational performance variables consultants associate with their commitment at work and how consultants' commitment behavior is linked with organizational performance

Commitment in Organizations Howard J. Klein, Thomas E. Becker, John P. Meyer, 2012-11-12 Commitment is one of the most researched concepts in organizational behavior This edited book in the SIOP Organizational Frontiers series with contributions from many scholars attempts to summarize current research and suggests new directions for studies on commitment in organizations Commitment is linked to other concepts ie satisfaction involvement motivation and identification and is studied across cultural lines Both the individual and group levels of building and maintaining commitment are discussed global history of politicized writing this book explores literature's utility as a mode of activism and aesthetic engagement with the political challenges of the current moment. The question of literature's uses has recently become a key topic of academic and public debate. Paradoxically however these conversations often tend to bypass the rich history of engagements with literature's distinctly political uses that form such a powerful current of 20th and 21st century artistic production and critical theoretical reflection. The Political Uses of Literature reopens discussion of literature's political and activist genealogies along several interrelated lines. As a foundational moment it draws attention to the important body of interwar politicized literature and to debates about literature's ability to intervene in social reality. It then traces the mobilization of related conversations and artistic practices across several historical conjunctures most notably the committed literature of the 1960s and our own present. In mapping out these geographically and artistically diverse traditions including case studies from the Americas Europe Africa India and Russia contributors advance critical discussions in the field making questions pertaining to politicized art newly compelling to a broader and more diverse readership. Most importantly this volume insists on the need to think about literature's political uses today at a time when it has become increasingly difficult to imagine any kind of political efficacy for art even as the need to do so is growing more and more acute. Literature may not proffer easy answers to our political problems but as this collection suggests the writing of the 20th century holds out aesthetic resources for a renewed engagement with the dilemmas that face us now.

Dust That Never Settles Amir Moosavi, 2025-06-10

Lasting from September 1980 to August 1988 the Iran Iraq War was the longest conventional war fought between two states in the twentieth century. It marked a period that began just after a revolutionary government in Iran became an Islamic Republic and Saddam Hussein consolidated power in Iraq. It ended with both wartime governments still in power borders unchanged yet hundreds of thousands of people dead. Neither side emerged as a clear victor but both sides would eventually claim victory in some form. Dust That Never Settles considers how Iraqi and Iranian writers have wrestled with representing the Iran Iraq War and its legacy from wartime to the present. It demonstrates how writers from both countries have transformed once militarized officially sanctioned war literatures into literatures of mourning and eventually into vehicles of protest that presented powerful counternarratives to the official state narratives. In writing the first comparative study of the literary output of this war Amir Moosavi presents a new paradigm for the study of modern Middle Eastern literatures. He brings Persian and Arabic fiction into conversation with debates on the political importance of cultural production across the Middle East and North Africa and he puts an important new canon of works in conversation with comparative literary and cultural studies within the Global South.

China's Belt and Road Initiative Alfred Gerstl, Ute Wallenböck, 2020-11-29

This edited volume presents a trans disciplinary and multifaceted assessment of the strategic and economic impacts of China's Belt and Road Initiative BRI on three regions namely Central Asia Southeast Asia and Central Eastern Europe. The contributions to this book demonstrate the requirement of a more realistic view concerning the anticipated economic benefits of the New Silk

Road The contributors critique the strategic effects of China's opaque long term grand strategy on the regional and global political order Specific countries that are covered are Finland Hungary Kazakhstan Malaysia Poland and Thailand Additionally case studies from South Asia and Africa notably India and Ethiopia enable insightful comparisons Encouraging readers to critically challenge mainstream interpretations of the aims and impacts of the BRI this book should interest academics and students from various disciplines including Political Science International Relations Political Geography Sociology Economics International Development and Chinese Studies

Commitment as a Theme in African American Literature R. Jothiprakash, 1994 This book makes a distinguished analysis of the nature of commitment in the works of James Baldwin and Ralph Ellison two of the most renowned Black writers of the century This investigation involves an understanding of the social milieu against the background of the rapidly changing character of Black fiction keeping pace with the complex development of the Black American community in constant quest of a political and cultural identity Haunted by the memories of slavery protest and fury and the contradictory search for dignity in a world dominated by White values the conflict between the artistic and political natures of the writer his sexual complexities the existential quality of his life his need for an ethnic definition of himself the Black writer found his mission challenging Richard Wright who established that the Negro is America's metaphor gave the Black American novel a place of its own in American literature This thesis takes up the works of the two major Black writers who succeeded him to examine the distinct individual methods adopted to serve the common cause Equally deep in commitment to society Baldwin and Ellison differed in perspectives and methods of execution This book then makes exhaustive analytical studies of their masterpieces against the background of complex political and ethnic configurations and the resultant political social and psychological problems It attempts to present an evaluation of their respective contributions which are the same in essentials but differ in details

Advances in Mergers and Acquisitions Cary L. Institutions, Regulatory Styles, Society and Environmental Governance in China Carlos Wing-Hung Lo, Shui-Yan Tang, 2013-08-15 During the past three decades of rapid industrial growth China has suffered from devastating environmental degradation Most scholarly and popular publications have painted a rather pessimistic picture about the worrisome trend Yet a somewhat more optimistic view has emerged in the past decade given the Chinese government's increased commitment to fighting industrial pollution the public's increased concerns regarding the adverse effects of pollution and domestic and international civil society's increased involvement in promoting environmental protection in China Drawing on the authors extensive research on Guangdong Province and a few large cities in other provinces this book provides an in depth study on China's environmental governance and regulatory enforcement in the past two decades Section 1 examines various institutional constraints for environmental regulation enforcement at the local level and how governance reform efforts in the past decade have contributed to the lessening of those constraints Section 2 draws on data derived from surveys and interviews conducted in multiple cities and times it examines the dominant regulatory enforcement styles of local environmental protection bureaus and how these styles vary across different regions and over time Section 3 examines how various stakeholders the general public environmental groups government entities and corporations affect the environmental governance process Overall the book presents a cautiously optimistic view on the evolution of environmental governance in China While highlighting many political institutional social and economic constraints it also documents many changes that have taken place including reform efforts from within the government administrative system increasingly societal concerns and actions and changing attitudes among corporate executives potentially paving the way for more effective environmental governance in the future The Future of Work in

Castronovo, 2013-11-13 Derived from the word to propagate the idea and practice of propaganda concerns nothing less than the ways in which human beings communicate particularly with respect to the creation and widespread dissemination of attitudes images and beliefs Much larger than its pejorative connotations suggest propaganda can more neutrally be understood as a central means of organizing and shaping thought and perception a practice that has been a pervasive feature of the twentieth century and that touches on many fields It has been seen as both a positive and negative force although abuses under the Third Reich and during the Cold War have caused the term to stand in most recently as a synonym for untruth and brazen manipulation Propaganda analysis of the 1950s to 1989 too often took the form of empirical studies about the efficacy of specific methods with larger questions about the purposes and patterns of mass persuasion remaining unanswered In the present moment where globalization and transnationality are arguably as important as older nation forms when media enjoy near ubiquity throughout the globe when various fundamentalisms are ascendant and when debates rage about neoliberalism it is urgent that we have an up to date resource that considers propaganda as a force of culture writ large The handbook will include twenty two essays by leading scholars from a variety of disciplines divided into three sections In addition to dealing with the thorny question of definition the handbook will take up an expansive set of assumptions and a full range of approaches that move propaganda beyond political campaigns and warfare to examine a wide array of cultural contexts and practices Global Encyclopedia of Public Administration, Public Policy, and
