Little Lamb Sees Hargrave Hands, 1985-01-01 What the Fire Sees Divided Publishing, 2020-01-01 A collection of anti capitalist poetry philosophy cultural analysis legal studies manifesto and critique spanning 1996 to the present by Alenka Zupan i Alexander Kluge Amy Ireland Anne Boyer Aurelia Guo Bini Adamczak Carolyn Lazard Chi Chi Shi Denis Ekpo Feminist Judgments Project Gili Tal Houria Bouteldja Huw Lemmey Keziah Craven Marina Vishmidt Nat Raha Sarah Lambie Teflon and Vanessa Place What the fire sees the vision of the thing that produces light is a primal thought and a reverse perspective Wanting to know outcomes in advance desiring a guarantee before the show is a conservative position as it can only rely on established systems of value Old modes old institutions guarantee one's legibility while breaking intuition Forecasting is precisely the opposite of politics and what we believe is important in shared work a risk taken together because things can be done differently Then how can difference not be a consumer choice Conflicting positions are not a form of entertainment or titillation to be leveraged Instead they make a case for what it means to remain torn complex unconsolidated and for that to be a ground In this book we are trying to make an architecture like this with no world building aspiration The market singles one out as a consumer only harnesses desire and makes it personal It's a sham and a bad rehearsal desire is not connected to any single choice it functions in the mutual realm Sontag's advice to a writer was to find a limb and go out on it This was a way of speaking about form If the unknown and emancipatory aspect of words is calibrated by the consensus of neoliberalism there can be no limbs We are interested in writing as a medium that decouples the grip of the status quo from the words themselves putting everything in movement disrupting patterns of thought and freeing trusting the reader A kind of writing that has let go of the need for control The United States Catalog, 1900
