Vision-Based Flight Antonio Loquercio, 2023-04-24 This book presents the astonishing potential of deep sensorimotor policies for agile vision based quadrotor flight Quadrotors are among the most agile and dynamic machines ever created However developing fully autonomous quadrotors that can approach or even outperform the agility of birds or human drone pilots with only onboard sensing and computing is challenging and still unsolved Deep sensorimotor policies generally trained in simulation enable autonomous quadrotors to fly faster and more agile than what was possible before While humans and birds still have the advantage over drones the author shows the current research gaps and discusses possible future solutions      Connecting Mathematics and Science to Workplace Contexts Edward Britton, 1999-06-23 Engage students through real world curriculum It's no accident that employers complain that newly minted graduates are out of touch with the realities of work demands Too often there is a disconnect between what is taught in the classroom and what is demanded in the workplace and students suffer the consequences Mathematics and science curricula can play a critical role in solving this dilemma In this comprehensive review of 23 exemplary curricula programs the authors offer an easy to use guide for tying curriculum to workplace experiences from a hematology laboratory to an agricultural setting to a soda bottling company these programs illustrate concrete real life situations to which students can relate and derive motivation Learn how to Meet the goals of science mathematics and technology education Meet national curriculum standards Chart key characteristics of successful curricula Connect curriculum to workplace contexts Create your own curriculum materials This book is a must for mathematics and science educators curriculum developers and supervisors and educators in school to work programs and vocational courses      Video Mining Azriel Rosenfeld, David Doermann, Daniel DeMenthon, 2013-03-09

Traditionally scientific fields have defined boundaries and scientists work on research problems within those boundaries However from time to time those boundaries get shifted or blurred to evolve new fields For instance the original goal of computer vision was to understand a single image of a scene by identifying objects their structure and spatial arrangements This has been referred to as image understanding Recently computer vision has gradually been making the transition away from understanding single images to analyzing image sequences or video Video understanding deals with understanding of video understanding sequences e.g. recognition of gestures, activities, facial expressions etc. The main shift in the classic paradigm has been from the recognition of static objects in the scene to motion based recognition of actions and events. Video understanding has overlapping research problems with other fields, therefore blurring the fixed boundaries. Computer graphics, image processing and video databases have obvious overlap with computer vision. The main goal of computer graphics is to generate and animate realistic looking images and videos. Researchers in computer graphics are increasingly employing techniques from computer vision to generate the synthetic imagery. A good example of this is image based rendering and modeling techniques in which geometry, appearance and lighting is derived from real images using computer vision techniques. Here the shift is from synthesis to analysis followed by synthesis. Image processing has always overlapped with computer vision because they both inherently work directly with images. NASA Technical Memorandum, 1963
