Hunter's Fiery Raid Through Virginia Valleys Gary C. Walker, 1989 Fire in the Stone Nicholas Ruddick, 2012-01-01 The genre of prehistoric fiction contains a surprisingly large and diverse group of fictional works by American British and French writers from the late nineteenth century to the present that describe prehistoric humans Nicholas Ruddick explains why prehistoric fiction could not come into being until after the acceptance of Charles Darwin's theories and argues that many early prehistoric fiction works are still worth reading even though the science upon which they are based is now outdated Exploring the history and evolution of the genre Ruddick shows how prehistoric fiction can offer fascinating insights into the possible origins of human nature sexuality racial distinctions language religion and art The book includes discussions of well-known prehistoric fiction by H G Wells Jules Verne J H Rosny A n Jack London William Golding Arthur C Clarke and Jean M Auel and reminds us of some unjustly forgotten landmarks of prehistoric fiction It also briefly covers such topics as the recent boom in prehistoric romance notable prehistoric fiction for children and young adults and the most entertaining movies featuring prehistoric humans The book includes illustrations that trace the changing popular images of cave men and women over the past 150 years

Burning Bush Stephen J. Pyne, 2014-10-07 From the time of the continent's formation tens of millions of years ago as the Godwana twin of Antarctica Australia has been dominated by fire much as its sister has been by ice Now Stephen Pyne one of our foremost environmental historians proposes a major reinterpretation of the Australian experience by using fire and Australia to explain one another He narrates the story of how fire came to Australia and interacted with the Australian biota and its human inhabitants while at the same time he relates the planetary saga of fire as it has been played out on this special island continent Much as the Aborigines exploited fire to remake their environment into something more usable so Stephen Pyne exploits fire to transform the landscape of history into something more accessible to use its transmuting power to extract new meaning out of familiar events Pyne traces the impact of fire from its initial influence on the evolving vegetation of the new continent through its use by the Aborigines and the subsequent European settlers to the holocaust of February 1983 known as Ash Wednesday and he shows us that the dynamic nature of fire has made it a most powerful environmental determinant in Australia shaping both its social and natural histories In his critically acclaimed study of Antarctica The Ice Pyne explored the myriad dimensions of the cold continent now Burning Bush offers us an equally absorbing examination of a continent informed by fire
