Fire In The Interface:

Fire Management Today ,2000 General Technical Report INT. ,1995 Federal Wildland Fire Management United States. Department of the Interior,1995 Federal Wildland Fire Management DIANE Publishing Company,1997-08

Managing wildland fire in the U S is a challenge increasing in complexity the use of wildland fire preparedness wildland urban interface protection coordinated program management Also presented are the guiding principle that are fundamental to wildland fire management recommendations for fire management policies Photos graphs references Urban-Rural Interfaces David N. Laband,B. Graeme Lockaby,2020-01-22 What is the urban rural interface Is it a visual phenomenon a place where country gives way to neighborhoods and shopping areas in a startling way Is it a simple factor of population density There is nothing simple about the urban rural interface editors David Laband Graeme Lockaby and Wayne Zipperer present the broad spectrum of interdisciplinary complexities at play Organized into three sections on changing ecosystems changing human dimensions and the dynamic integration of human and natural systems this book is a must read for anyone who works in the real world where natural and human systems are joined This is the new sustainability science an emerging discipline that integrates social and economic values with the physical chemical and ecological functions of ecosystems The goal is optimal management since our human impact is often significant and far reaching in both space and time General Technical Report SE ,1991 Oversight Hearings on National Environmental Policy Act United States. Congress. House. Committee on Resources. Subcommittee on Forests and Forest Health,1998 , Federal Register ,1995-06-22

Fire and the Environment ,1991 Forest Fire Janusz Szmyt,2018-05-09 This book concerns the different aspects of forest fires the impact of fire on both forest resources e g forest cover and communities that use different forest functions Therefore forest fires have their environmental economic and social consequences and none of them is less important Forest fires can be caused by both natural forces and anthropogenic factors and in the latter case it is extremely interesting to profile the potential arsonist Forest fires may also cause conflicts stronger or weaker in local communities that have been using forests for years These conflicts can be solved both by gradually changing the law itself and through education at the local level Not less important is the ability to detect fires early which can be helped by the development of modern technologies In limiting the effects of forest fires it may also be helpful to develop mathematical models that indicate various factors affecting the possibility of a fire or affecting the rate of its spread Not less important is the attempt to assess the direction of forest regeneration after the fire has ceased in understanding what the help of modern technology is These aspects of forest fire are the subject of this book I realize however that the contents in it can only be an incentive for the reader to learn more in an interesting aspect I assume that this book will be valuable to researchers as well as students who are interested in different aspects connected to forest fires not only from the ecological point of view but also from the social one Both are extremely important in future forest protection and sustainable use of forest by local communities Wildland

Fire Behaviour Mark A. Finney, Sara S. McAllister, Jason M. Fortthofer, Torben P. Grumstrup, 2021-11 Wildland fires have an irreplaceable role in sustaining many of our forests shrublands and grasslands They can be used as controlled burns or occur as free burning wildfires and can sometimes be dangerous and destructive to fauna human communities and natural resources Through scientific understanding of their behaviour we can develop the tools to reliably use and manage fires across landscapes in ways that are compatible with the constraints of modern society while benefiting the ecosystems The science of wildland fire is incomplete however Even the simplest fire behaviours how fast they spread how long they burn and how large they get arise from a dynamical system of physical processes interacting in unexplored ways with heterogeneous biological ecological and meteorological factors across many scales of time and space The physics of heat transfer combustion and ignition for example operate in all fires at millimetre and millisecond scales but wildfires can become conflagrations that burn for months and exceed millions of hectares Wildland Fire Behaviour Dynamics Principles and Processes examines what is known and unknown about wildfire behaviours The authors introduce fire as a dynamical system along with traditional steady state concepts They then break down the system into its primary physical components describe how they depend upon environmental factors and explore system dynamics by constructing and exercising a nonlinear model The limits of modelling and knowledge are discussed throughout but emphasised by review of large fire behaviours Advancing knowledge of fire behaviours will require a multidisciplinary approach and rely on quality measurements from experimental research as covered in the final chapters

Reliability of Steel Columns Protected by Intumescent Coatings Subjected to Natural Fires Chao Zhang, 2015-02-25 This thesis studied the effect of aging of intumescent coatings ICs on the reliability of protected steel columns in fire condition and developed a probabilistic approach to assess the service life of ICs applied on steel columns In the study Monte Carlo simulations were conducted to obtain the reliability index or failure probability of steel columns protected by ICs subjected to compartment fires The effect of aging of intumescent coatings on the failure probability of protected steel columns was investigated by using variable insulation property of intumescent coatings in the simulation The test data on aging effect on insulation property of intumescent coatings from literature was used Based on the reliability analysis a probabilistic approach is given to determine the service life of intumescent coatings for steel columns In that approach the failure probability of the protected steel columns is compared with the target probability of the structural fire design The approach can also be used for probabilistic analysis of steel columns protected by conventional inert fire protection materials *Proceedings: Symposium On Fire In Wilderness and Park Management...
