The Challenge of Pluralism F. Clark Power, Daniel K. Lapsley, 1992 The politics of pluralism has long been an intractable characteristic of American public education Today perhaps more so than ever educators grapple with an awareness of the fact that liberal societies cannot promote a particular vision of the moral life and still respect and uphold the multi cultural values of a pluralistic society The Challenge of Pluralism examines the problematic issue of the role of moral education in a pluralistic society The book takes an interdisciplinary focus and contributors include well known experts in such fields as psychology educational policy studies history of education political history curriculum philosophy of education theology and gender studies The essays delve into the myriad reasons for the moral education controversy and examine how the contemporary debate over the place of moral education in a pluralist society takes place within the larger context of the current arguments over the quality of American education In addition to a historical examination of the values pluralism issue the volume offers critiques of specific educational regimens as they address the problem of moral education This volume offers relevant pertinent discussions that will benefit professional educators social scientists and any individual concerned about the quality of American education and its ability to provide adequate moral and values education Contributors Walter Niegorski Michael W Apple Rev Michael Himes Dwight Boyd Ronnie A F Blakeney Charles D Blakeney Daniel K Lapsley William Reese Michael R Olneck Ann Diller James W Fowler and F Clark Power

Education in a Pluralistic Society, Four Perspectives
 ,1975 Cultural Pluralism in Education Nicholas Appleton,1983 Educational Reform in a Pluralistic Society William E. Schutmaat,2001 Education for Diversity Maurice Craft,1982

In England multicultural education is one of the most important focal points within the ongoing educational debate To answer questions of practical policy multicultural education may be viewed from the perspective of education as social process More than simply pupils and teachers classrooms and textbooks education provides social continuity and engenders social change A process linked to powerful structural and ideological variables in the wider society education may vary according to the importance placed upon individual development compared with the perceived needs of society As a result of this dichotomy all educational systems must strike a balance between educating for variety and educating for conformity between diversity and cohesion In a culturally pluralistic society the tensions between these poles are particularly great a plural society is by definition more diverse and thus has a greater need for conformity yet it also has a greater natural resistance to conformity British educationalists are now faced with deciding at what point the acculturation necessary for full participation in society becomes a repressive assimilation and at what point the celebration of diversity ceases to enrich and becomes potentially divisive Diversity and conformity are in fact interdependent and majority children can benefit as much as minority children from multicultural education KH
