Anderson, Kecia Hayes, Joe Kincheloe, Karel Rose, 2006-03-30 Maintaining that urban teaching and learning is characterized by many contradictions this work proposes that there is a wide range of social cultural psychological and pedagogical knowledge urban educators must possess in order to engage in effective and transformative practice It is necessary for those teaching in urban schools to be scholar practitioners rather than bureaucrats who can only follow rather than analyze understand and create Ten major sections cover the myriad issues of urban education as it exists today Rebuilding Public Confidence in Educational Assessment Mary Richardson, 2022-05-23 Educational assessment is important But in the twenty first century it is easy to feel that schooling and other phases of education are shaped entirely by certain assessments and that assessment is only about exam results The idea that test grades can accurately describe the aims and outcomes of education is unfair and reductive Yet it is a pervasive and persuasive discourse This book is about such discourses the stories we tell each other and how they impact public trust and confidence in educational assessment It explains the roots and nature of assessment discourses and proposes a restructuring of the debates in order to rebuild public confidence It aims to challenge dominant assessment discourses and demands a more nuanced informed debate about what happens in and beyond schools and how this influences public thinking Questioning the status quo needs buy in from policymakers teachers parents and students and from the broader public from journalists you me our friends and our children Using examples from international settings to explore the nature of trust in assessment discourses Rebuilding Public Confidence in Educational Assessment shows how these discourses can be reframed so that all aspects of the assessment system policymaking school planning home practice with students can be undertaken with confidence The University Becoming Søren S. E. Bengtsen, Sarah Robinson, Wesley Shumar, 2021-06-23 This volume wholeheartedly engages with the current climate in higher education and provides not only a thorough analysis of the foundational elements constituting higher education but also a critical discussion of possible connections to societal and cultural domains and policy debates Today higher education institutions and programs are beset with multiple and often conflicting pressures and demands Higher education is regarded by societies in general and at the political level in particular as a pathway to securing continued economic growth and ensuring cultural growth in surrounding societal contexts Future academics are expected to become experts within their disciplines and at the same time to acquire and develop generic competences and transferable skills directly translatable into job market and professional contexts These conflicting and fragmented policy approaches to higher education leaves academic leaders teacher researchers and students with an incoherent curriculum and a confused and eroded academic identity and societal outlook Much literature within higher education research that engages with similar topics are dominated by a backwards looking and heavy critique of current political and educational conditions for the university and higher education This volume suggests a new tack that is defined by openness and optimism towards possibilities for a transformative higher education curriculum that at the same time stays firmly rooted within the foundational academic soil By drawing on and contributing to the emerging research field the philosophy and theory of higher education the book combines critique with a constructive and future oriented approach and outlook on higher education Further it combines and links philosophical discussions on the idea of the future university with societal responsibility and a curricular and formational awareness
