Education Training And The Global Economy:

Education, Training and the Global Economy D. N. Ashton, Francis Green, 1996 A response to the popular political education and training myth which permeates current discussions for solving economic problems Ashton sociology U of Leicester and Green economics U of Leeds survey empirical data examine theoretical approaches to education and training and take a close look at current skills trends in the global economy determining the institutional and historical determinants to low or high skill occupations They conclude with an examination of public policy in industrial countries and its profound influence on education and training Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR Vocational Education and Training for a Global Economy Marc S. Tucker, 2019 Vocational Education and Training for a Global Economy investigates the greatly varying ways in which four countries Singapore Switzerland China and the United States prepare young people for the twenty first century workplace The book looks first at the highly successful vocational education and training VET systems in Singapore and Switzerland describing them in revealing detail and accounting for the assumptions and social arrangements that account for their unique features It then turns to the two largest and arguably the most dynamic nations in the world China and the United States and examines the differing conditions goals and arrangements that have affected their respective programs for preparing their citizens for present and future work At a time when a highly competitive global economy is prompting profound changes in the workplace and in the skills required for professional success all countries feel a heightened sense of urgency in finding ways to guide and prepare young people for work As this book makes clear however the resulting preparatory systems within these four countries differ dramatically and for a wide range of economic cultural and political reasons A detailed and incisive look at VET systems in the United States and abroad Vocational Education and Training for a Global Economy will be indispensable reading for all who are concerned with preparing youth for today's competitive and demanding modern workplace

Learning for Life Jason Wingard, Michelle LAPOINTE, 2015-09-16 Today's global knowledge economy requires individuals and companies alike to quickly adapt to new tools and strategies To remain competitive both must continually seek out the latest advancements and developments and upgrade their skillsets accordingly In the United States however support for ongoing education lags far behind other developed nations creating a crippling skills gap between the workforce and industries in the US and its global competitors In a country that has been multiple steps ahead of everyone else since its birth how did this happen Why are other countries previously inferior when it came to technological advancements suddenly faring markedly better What keeps our nation's vast network of corporate training workforce development and K 12 and college education so fragmented and inefficient In the tells it like it is Learning for Life readers will learn about Why America s existing educational models are failing employees and employers The shift in content knowledge toward new ways of thinking and working Policies and programs that are working in the US and abroad Recommendations for overhauling our education and training infrastructure and building partnerships between providers and employers The stakes are too important for America to continue falling behind in its education But the good news is the pathways to get us back to the top are there ahead of us Learning for Life points the way forward International

Handbook on Education Development in the Asia-Pacific Wing On Lee, Phillip Brown, A. Lin Goodwin, Andy Green, 2023-11-20 The Springer International Handbook of Educational Development in Asia Pacific breaks new ground with a comprehensive fine grained and diverse perspective on research and education development throughout the Asia Pacific region In 13 sections and 127 chapters the Handbook delves into a wide spectrum of contemporary topics including educational equity and quality language education learning and human development workplace learning teacher education and professionalization higher education organisations citizenship and moral education and high performing education systems The Handbook is grounded in specific Asia Pacific contexts and scholarly traditions using unique country specific narratives for example Vietnam and Melanesia and socio cultural investigations through lenses such as language identity or colonisation while offering parallel academic discourse and analyses framed by broader policy commentary from around the world Education, Training and the Future of Work I John Ahier, Geoff Esland, 2013-10-18 A central claim of this volume is that public policy in education and training can only be properly understood if it is seen in relation to prevailing economic and employment conditions It has become increasingly apparent that the neo liberal economic policies pursued by Western governments during the 1980s and 1990s have led to a growing world wide work crisis Unemployment levels particularly in Europe remain persistently high and for those in employment job insecurity and long working hours have become the norm The response of UK governments has been to promote flexibility in employment practices while proclaiming the importance of improving skill levels through education and training This volume challenges the adequacy of such an approach and asks whether reliance on education and training reforms without additional political intervention in economic processes is capable of reversing current trends Issues covered in this reader include the impact of globalization on employment trends neo liberal and neo Keynesian approaches to employment policy political reforms in education and training institutions the impact of flexibilization on private life and the family The two volumes in this series are readers for the Open University course Education Training and the Future of Work E837 a module of the MA in Education The companion volume is Education Training and the Future of Work II Developments in Vocational Education and Training John Ahier is Lecturer in Education at the Open University Geoff Esland is Director of the Centre for Sociology and Social Research at the Open University and Course team Chair of E837 International Handbook of Education for the Changing World of Work
