Failure Of National Rural Policy Institutions And Interest

Domonic A. Bearfield, Evan
Berman, Melvin J. Dubnick

Failure Of National Rural Policy Institutions And Interest:

The Failure of National Rural Policy William Paul Browne, 2001 Modern farm policy emerged in the United States in 1862 leading to an industrialized agriculture that made the farm sector collectively more successful even as many individual farmers failed Ever since a healthy farm economy has been seen as the key to flourishing rural communities and the problems of rural nonfarmers former farmers nonfarm residents and unfarmed regions were ignored by policymakers In The Failure of National Rural Policy William P Browne blends history politics and economics to show that federal government emphasis on farm productivity has failed to meet broader rural needs and actually has increased rural poverty He explains how strong public institutions which developed agrarianism led to narrowed concepts of the public interest Reviewing past efforts to expand farm policy benefits to other rural residents Browne documents the fragmentation of farm policy within the agricultural establishment as farm services grew the evolution of political turf protection and the resultant difficulties of rural advocacy Arguing for an integrated theory of governing institutions and related political interests he maintains that nonfarm rural society can make a realistic claim for public policy assistance Written informally each chapter is followed by comments on the implications of its topics and summaries of key points The book will serve as a stimulating text for students of public policy national affairs rural sociology and community development as well as anyone concerned with the future of agrarian America

Plowed Under Andrew P. Duffin, 2009-11-17 In Plowed Under Andrew P Duffin traces the transformation of the Palouse region of Washington and Idaho from land thought unusable and unproductive to a wealth generating agricultural paradise weighing the consequences of what this progress has wrought During the twentieth century the Palouse became synonymous with wheat and the landscape was irrevocably altered At the dawn of the twenty first century native vegetation is almost nonexistent stream water is so dirty that it is often unfit for even livestock and 94 percent of all land has been converted to agriculture Commercial agriculture also created a less noticeable ecological change soil erosion While common to industrial agriculture nationwide topsoil loss evoked different political and social reactions in the Palouse Farmers all over the nation take pride in their freedom and independence but in the Palouse Duffin shows this mentality a remnant of an older agrarian past has been taken to the extreme and is partly responsible for erosion problems that are among the worst in the nation In the hope of charting a better more sustainable future Duffin argues for a candid look at the land its people their decisions and the repercussions of those decisions As he notes the debate is not over whether to use the land but over what that use will look like and its social and ecological results

Competitive Interests Thomas T. Holyoke,2011-08-22 Competitive Interests does more than simply challenge the long held belief that a small set of interests control large domains of the public policy making landscape It shows how the explosion in the sheer number of new groups and the broad range of ideological demands they advocate have created a form of group politics emphasizing compromise as much as conflict Thomas T Holyoke offers a model of strategic lobbying that shows why some group lobbyists feel compelled to fight stronger wealthier groups even when they know they will lose Holyoke interviewed 83 lobbyists who have been advocates on several contentious issues including Arctic oil drilling environmental conservation regulating genetically modified foods money laundering and bankruptcy reform He offers answers about what kinds of policies are more likely to lead to intense competition and what kinds of interest groups have an advantage in protracted conflicts He also discusses the negative consequences of group competition such as legislative gridlock and discusses what lawmakers can do to steer interest groups toward compromise The book concludes with an exploration of greater group competition conflict and compromise and what consequences this could have for policymaking in a representation based political system Villages in the Future Detlef Virchow,Joachim von Braun,2012-02-02 Life in rural communities is bound to change with historically unprecedented speed in the coming decades How will this change be guided by local national and global policies in order to enhance the livelihoods of rural inhabitants and to overcome the growing division of rural and urban areas The contributions in this publication ranging from scientific papers to short reports from practitioners are grouped around 4 major themes political and institutional frameworks to foster rural development natural resources management broadening the technological base of rural economies and improved linkages between urban and rural areas The overall message is unanimous there is a promising future for the rural areas worldwide if adequate policies can be enforced and more efficient and fair institutions can be created
