Educating All Students In The Mainstream Of Regular Education:

Educating All Students in the Mainstream of Regular Education Susan Bray Stainback, William C.

Stainback, Marsha Forest, 1989 This book builds from a historical overview of educational integration and explores the rationale behind the movement toward a merger of regular and special education. Noted authorities advance this argument in well structured chapters organized around key themes including educational equality in practice strategies to promote merger educational practices to meet diverse student needs and family and community support. Case histories and boxed statements highlighting pertinent points are among the effective instructional aides in this textbook. A thought provoking question and answer format also confronts 22 of the most commonly addressed concerns about merging regular and special education.

Embarking on a New Century Robert L. Schalock, Pamela C. Baker, M. Doreen Croser, 2002 Captures the challenging and controversial era between 1975-2000 that led the field of intellectual disability into an age of community acceptance and inclusion. This title includes chapters that focus themes such as public policy and health care.

Special Educational Needs and Inclusive Education: Inclusive education David R. Mitchell, 2004 Demonstrates how the fields of special education and inclusive education have evolved philosophically and technically over the past 30 years.

Educating All Students Together Leonard C. Burrello, Carl Lashley, Edith E. Beatty, 2001 A convincing conceptualization of schools as complex adaptive systems. The authors' recommendations that leaders must tinker at the margins and lead in the zone of complexity provide sound and practical advice for school leaders faced with creating unified educational systems that will be able to effectively support students with increasingly diverse learning needs. David W. Peterson, Superintendent, Northern Suburban Special Education District, Highland Park, IL. Far too long we have failed to acknowledge the large number of students relegated to parallel educational systems. This thought provoking book provides an important first step in helping us surface the mental models we hold of the teaching and learning of diverse student populations. Nelda Cambron McCabe, Department of Educational Leadership, Miami University, Oxford, OH. An insightful, informative and thought provoking book that deals with a topic that concerns every educator. Kate Kinley, Director of Administrative Training and Staff Development, Clark County School District, NV. Learn to create unified learner centered schools where all students learn. By focusing on student learning as the central goal of school administrators, Burrello, Lashley, and Beatty establish a plan for creating a truly integrated educational system, one that unifies the separate and parallel systems of special and general education. The authors call for an end to the piecemeal strategy of including students one classroom, one grade level, or one school at a time. Instead, they demonstrate how administrators, school leaders, and the community must work together on decisions to implement personalized education plans, accountable curricular outcomes, and appropriate instructional adaptations. Some of the key concepts include: Schools embracing special services personnel; The roles of the community and other stakeholders; Reconceptualizing schools based on learner centered principles; Program evaluation and incentives; Brain and holographic design as a framework for complex adaptive systems Collaboration between school administrators and teachers Adapting curriculum and instruction In this groundbreaking work of practical application Burrello Lashley and Beatty demonstrate effective leadership strategies that will enable administrators to better manage the cultural imperative of equity and excellence for all students They further support the plan for unified schools through case studies and a program evaluation of self study guide An essential resource for general and special educators parents and communities Inclusive Education

Lissa A. Power-deFur, Fred P. Orellove, 1997 A comprehensive look at inclusion this book provides success stories by administrators and teachers who have found that inclusion is the best way to meet the least restrictive environment needs of their students Complete with checklists in service materials and pre and post evaluation methods this detailed guide will help you meet student needs in a way that complements the educational fiscal and legal outlooks as well as the attitudes of your school division Special Educational Needs and Inclusive Education: Effective practices David R. Staff Training and Special Educational Needs Graham Upton,2018-09-03 First published in 1991

This work is about training and special education needs in the international arena. The book was commissioned as a result of the 1990 International Special Education Conference in Cardiff. The contributors from the USA, Canada, Africa, and the United Kingdom have focused on innovative approaches to staff training. The identification of a contribution as innovative has been done on the basis of either the description of an alternative method of planning or delivery, a focus on a frequently ignored client group, or in relation to the existence of specific problems which affect the provision of training. Inclusive Schooling Stanley J. Vitello, Dennis E. Mithaug, 2013-12-16. This book provides new information on how various inclusion policies have been implemented in different schools and school districts in North America and in a range of European countries. The purpose of inclusion policy is to prevent the marginalization of people who experience unfavorable circumstances in life. It is an approach to the education of students with disabilities that is based on a commitment to what all members of a free society deserve in order to become fully participating members: a fair chance to find a meaningful place in their own communities. This book is a kind of status report on what inclusive education has achieved and what it may achieve in the future for children and youth with disabilities. It describes the philosophical, legal, and practical terrain covered by inclusion policy in general and inclusive schooling in particular. Contributors assess inclusion policy and suggest ways to reconceptualize it, bringing to their data analysis a depth of experience and knowledge about public schooling in their respective countries. Although inclusion of students with disabilities in general education classes has been embraced by politicians and educators calling for equal opportunity in our society and is being incorporated into national and international education laws, it continues to be controversial and the debate is sometimes heated. A goal of this book is to shed some light on this debate. Is inclusion mostly about student placement? Are students with disabilities attaining social and learning membership in general classrooms? Have they benefitted from inclusion? How about students without disabilities? What have been the benefits? Must learning take second priority to socialization and friendship? Are teachers getting the training they need? How do parents feel about inclusion programs? How do students feel? What kind of curricular accommodations should be made? These and other questions are addressed. This volume is based on original papers presented by the contributing authors in October 1997 at the Rutgers Invitational Symposium on Education on Inclusive Schooling: National and International Perspectives.
