Development Asia—Tackling Asia's Inequality: Creating Opportunities for the Poor Asian Development Bank,2008-12-01 One worrisome trend in Asia is growing inequality the rich are getting richer much faster than the poor This issue of Development Asia was brought into sharp focus with the current financial turmoil which is having a much greater impact on the poor than the rich How much should inequality be a cause for alarm if at all What are the implications of a widening social divide Should governments do something or nothing The stories on this cover theme look at many aspects of a complex issue Guest economists present the case for and against interventions toward social inclusion though they tend to support policies that promote equal opportunity and access to good education and basic health services One of the issue s main stories looks at the role of globalization in increasing well being at all levels of society but it also notes that the well to do are better placed than the poor to take advantage of the opportunities that globalization offers Contrasting profiles of India and the Philippines are provided One shows how strong growth can create jobs for the poor despite structural inequalities The other illustrates how even robust growth can fail to provide enough jobs because of structural inequalities

Women, Education and Development in Asia Grace C.L. Mak,2017-12-12 This reissue 1996 examines four interrelated aspects of schooling for women in ten Asian countries the development experience of a country and how it affects education and women s status the types of educational opportunities available to women if the greater exposure to education results in greater participation in the public sphere the impact of education and economic participation on women s domestic status

Development Asia—Who Will Pay for Asia's Double Burden? Asian Development Bank,2011-12-01 The 11th edition of Development Asia looks into the double burden of communicable and noncommunicable diseases in Asia and the Pacific Asian and Pacific countries are facing unprecedented challenges related to health care While wealthier countries tend to suffer from noncommunicable ailments such as cancer and diabetes and poorer countries from communicable diseases like malaria and dengue many parts of Asia and the Pacific are plagued by both This edition also explores the double burden of disease that political leaders in the region are grappling to address At the root of this problem is health financing Simply put how do governments and their private sector partners provide solutions that keep the poor from suffering catastrophic health care costs Asian Development Outlook 2014 Asian Development Bank,2014-04-01 The Asian Development Outlook 2014 projects that developing Asia's growth will increase from 6.1% in 2013 to 6.2% in 2014 and 6.4% in 2015. Moderating growth in the People's Republic of China as its economy adjusts to more balanced growth will offset to some extent the stronger demand expected from the industrial countries as their economies recover. Risks to the outlook have eased and are manageable. The monetary policy shift in the United States may invite some volatility ahead in financial markets albeit mitigated by accommodative monetary policy in Japan and the euro area. The regional growth outlook depends on continued recovery in the major industrial economies and on the People's Republic of China managing to contain internal credit growth smoothly. Widening income gaps in developing Asia strengthens the case for greater use of fiscal policy to foster equality of opportunity. While the region has benefited from fiscal prudence in the past, demographic and environmental challenges are expected to compete for public resources in the coming years. To boost public spending on equity enhancing programs such as education and health without undermining fiscal sustainability, the authorities will need to explore a wide range of options for mobilizing revenue and to build equity objectives into their fiscal plans.

Development Asia—Making the Grade? Asian Development Bank,2011-06-01 Education attacks poverty at its roots, laying the groundwork for achieving all development goals. Teaching children to read and write, for example, not only improves their employment prospects but also better attunes them to their country's development goals, all of which depend on disseminating important information to be successful. As such, literacy is the foundational cornerstone for development. This edition of Development Asia takes stock of the region's successes and remaining challenges in the education sector. The issue looks at different approaches to reform the educational system to advance national interests, from building elite universities to strengthening vocational programs. A story on the Republic of Korea relates efforts of the state to wean students overdependence on private tutoring, which is jacking up the cost of education. Preparing for a Windfall talks about how Mongolia is consolidating its economic gains by investing in schools even in the Gobi Desert. Asian Development Outlook 2022 Asian Development Bank,2022-04-01 Developing Asia faces greater uncertainty from the Russian invasion of Ukraine even as the region continues to contend with COVID-19 outbreaks. The war has sent shockwaves across financial and commodity markets. The highly transmissible Omicron variant has fueled a sharp rise in cases in the region, though its less severe health impact coupled with increased immunity has allowed economies to remain relatively open. As such, growth in the region is forecast to remain strong, supported by recovering domestic demand. The Russian invasion of Ukraine, aggressive monetary policy tightening in the US, and renewed COVID-19 outbreaks pose near-term risks to the outlook, alongside medium-term risks such as rising inequality due to school closures. Fiscal resources are needed to aid recovery and support sustainable development. But deficits and debt expanded substantially during the pandemic. Mobilizing taxes and optimizing tax incentives needs to be combined with improved spending efficiency to help developing Asia achieve its

Chapman, Ann E. Austin, 2002-04-30 Identifies five critical issues with which higher education institutions in the developing world must grapple as they respond to changing external contexts offers examples of institutional responses to these issues and considers these within a systems perspective which recognizes that each response impacts how institutions handle other critical issues Half of the students enrolled in higher education worldwide live in developing countries Yet in many developing countries government and education leaders express serious concerns about the ability of their colleges and universities to effectively respond to the pressures posed by changing demographics new communication technologies shifts in national political environments and the increasing interconnectedness of national economies This book identifies five critical issues with which higher education institutions in the developing world must grapple as they respond to these changing contexts seeking a new balance in government university relationships coping with autonomy managing expansion while preserving equity raising quality and controlling costs addressing new pressures for accountability and supporting academic staff in new roles These papers offer examples of institutional responses and consider these within a systems perspective that recognizes that each response has a rippling effect impacting institutions responses to other critical issues Only as government and education leaders understand the interwoven nature of the problems now facing colleges and universities and the interconnections among the intended solutions they seek to implement can they offer effective leadership that strengthens the quality and improves the relevance of higher education in their countries History of Japanese Policies in Education Aid to Developing Countries, 1950s-1990s

Takao Kamibepu, 2016-01-20 During the half century from the 1950s to the year 2000 Japan emerged as a major international aid donor In 1989 it became the largest bilateral aid donor in the world How did Japan emerge as a top education aid donor What external and internal pressures shaped the development of aid policies What Japanese interests were served How has the Japanese government exercised a global leadership of education aid policies This study addresses these questions by tracking the evolution of education aid policies as they have been revealed by subgovernments as specialized decisionmaking units within a government OECD Development Pathways Multi-dimensional Review of Myanmar Volume 2.
