Part I.*, 2001      Jsl Vol 18-N5 JOURNAL OF SCHOOL LEADERSHIP, 2009-10-16 The Journal of School Leadership is broadening the conversation about schools and leadership and is currently accepting manuscripts We welcome manuscripts based on cutting edge research from a wide variety of theoretical perspectives and methodological orientations The editorial team is particularly interested in working with international authors authors from traditionally marginalized populations and in work that is relevant to practitioners around the world Growing numbers of educators and professors look to the six bimonthly issues to deal with problems directly related to contemporary school leadership practice teach courses on school leadership and policy use as a quality reference in writing articles about school leadership and improvement      The Cambridge Handbook of Multimedia Learning Richard E. Mayer, 2014-07-28 The updated second edition of the only handbook to offer a comprehensive analysis of research and theory in the field of multimedia learning or learning from words and images It examines research based principles to determine the most effective methods of multimedia instruction and uses cognitive theory to explain how these methods work      The Emotional Development of Young Children Marilou Hyson, 2004 Marylou Hyson provides educators with real life examples and evidence based teaching strategies to advance children s understanding and appropriate expression of their emotions      The Wiley Handbook of Social Studies Research Meghan McGlinn Manfra, Cheryl Mason Bolick, 2017-03-13 The Wiley Handbook of Social Studies Research is a wide ranging resource on the current state of social studies education This timely work not only reflects on the many recent developments in the field but also explores emerging trends This is the first major reference work on social studies education and research in a decade An in depth look at the current state of social studies education and emerging trends Three sections cover foundations of social studies research theoretical and methodological frameworks guiding social studies research and current trends and research related to teaching and learning social studies A state of the art guide for both graduate students and established researchers Guided by an advisory board of well respected scholars in social studies education research      "Growing Up" Teaching Frances Schoonmaker, 2002-09-23 Focusing on personal knowledge and how it influences teacher development this book follows one teacher Kay from her years of teacher preparation through her time as a seasoned veteran What emerges from this intense 10 year study is a more complete picture of teacher development that will help us to better prepare and support our pre and in service teachers This book offers a holistic view of learning to teach that challenges traditional boundaries and provides insight into many important issues such as the link between theory and practice teacher retention and how to get teachers to change timeworn pedagogical practices      Early Childhood Systems Sharon Lynn Kagan, Kristie Kauerz, 2012-03-16 In this seminal volume leading authorities strategize about how to create early childhood systems that transcend politics and economics to serve the needs of all young children The authors offer different interpretations of the nature of early childhood systems discuss the elements necessary to support their development and examine how effectiveness can be assessed With a combination of cutting edge scholarship and practical examples of systems building efforts taking place in the field this book provides the foundation educators and policymakers need to take important steps toward developing more conceptually integrated approaches to early childhood care education and comprehensive services

Contemporary Pioneers in Human Learning and Development Héfer Bembenutty,2022-03-01 This volume traces the socialization process professional development career paths and theory and research of contemporary pioneers in education and psychology This volume contains interviews with leading scholars who are at the vanguard of teaching and learning They shared how their childhood development influenced their theoretical paths and research endeavors and revealed their thoughts beliefs and experiences that made them who they are today These scholars responded to questions pertaining to their childhood initial interest in education and psychology role models research interests and major findings future directions of their research educational implications derived from their research and perception of their legacy They are real people who have had experiences like anybody else but found homes and teachers who supported them While in college they found educators who mentored them Readers will find that this volume offers them an opportunity to learn the background of contemporary pioneers in education and psychology provides valuable sources where they can learn about how major theories developed and where they are moving and reveals the personal anecdotes that influenced the conceptualization of contemporary theories and research Educators and students will find that this book provides hope and a rejuvenated enthusiasm about the status of education and psychology and that they too can be leaders in their own ways

Teaching History for the Common Good Keith C. Barton,Linda S. Levstik,2004-07-13 In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik present a clear overview of competing ideas among educators historians politicians and the public about the nature and purpose of teaching history and they evaluate these debates in light of current research on students historical thinking In many cases disagreements about what should be taught to the nation s children and how it should be presented reflect fundamental differences that will not easily be resolved A central premise of this book though is that systematic theory and research can play an important role in such debates by providing evidence of how students think how their ideas interact with the information they encounter both in school and out and how these ideas differ across contexts Such evidence is needed as an alternative to the untested assumptions that plague so many discussions of history education The authors review research on students historical thinking and set it in the theoretical context of mediated action an approach that calls attention to the concrete actions that people undertake the human agents responsible for such actions the cultural tools that aid and constrain them their purposes and their social contexts They explain how this theory allows educators to address the breadth of practices settings purposes and tools that influence students developing understanding of the past as well as how it provides an alternative to the academic discipline of history as a way of making decisions about teaching and learning the subject in schools Beyond simply describing the factors that influence students thinking Barton and Levstik evaluate their implications for historical understanding and civic engagement They base these evaluations not on the disciplinary study of history but on the purpose of social education preparing students for participation in a pluralist democracy Their ultimate concern is how history can help citizens engage in collaboration toward the common good In Teaching History for the Common Good Barton and Levstik discuss the contribution of theory and research explain the theory of mediated action and how it guides their analysis and describe research on children s and adults knowledge of and interest in history lay out a vision of pluralist participatory democracy and its relationship to the humanistic study of history as a basis for evaluating the perspectives on the past that influence students learning explore four principal stances toward history identification analysis moral response and exhibition review research on the extent to which children and adolescents understand and accept each of these and examine how the stances might contribute to or detract from participation in a pluralist democracy address six of the principal tools of history narrative structure stories of individual achievement and motivation national narratives inquiry empathy as perspective taking and empathy as caring and review research and conventional wisdom on teachers knowledge and practice and argue that for teachers to embrace investigative multi perspectival approaches to history they need more than knowledge of content and pedagogy they need a guiding purpose that can be fulfilled only by these approaches and preparation for participatory democracy provides such purpose Teaching History for the Common Good is essential reading for history and social studies professionals researchers teacher educators and students as well as for policymakers parents and members of the general public who are interested in history education or in students thinking and learning about the subject
