

Guide to Library Research

I. Working with Your Topic

A. Selecting a Topic

Think about:

Is it interesting to you?

Is there a manageable amount of information?

Topic Focus	Example
Too broad = Too much information	No Child Left Behind Act
Too narrow = Not enough information	the effects of No Child Left Behind on 3rd grade reading scores in Edith Bowen School in 2003
Just right = Manageable amount of information	the impact of high-stakes testing on reading achievement in the United States

B. Develop a research plan by asking the following questions:

1. What do I already know about this topic?

Example: In my high school, teachers taught to the high-stakes tests rather than what they thought we should know.

2. What do I need to know to understand this topic better? Ask specific questions!

Examples:

- a. What is the history of high-stakes testing? Why and how did they get started?
- b. Is there any research showing that teachers do "teach to the test?"
- c. What impact does "teaching to the test" have on effective teaching practices? Or student learning?
