Advances in Multiple Criteria Decision Making and Human Systems Management: Knowledge and Wisdom Y. Shi, D.L. Olson, A. Stam, 2007-05-22 This volume edited as a Festschrift in honor of Prof Milan Zeleny reflects and emulates his unmistakable legacy: the essential multidimensionality of human and social affairs. There are many levels of this multidimensionality presented in this volume: 1. Multidisciplinarity of contributed papers; 2. Multinationality of their authors extending even to the editors and the publisher; and 3. Multicultural and multilevel exposition ranging from empirical studies to philosophical foundations. Generally, these papers can be divided into three parts: Multiple Criteria Decision Making; Social and Human System Management; and Information Knowledge and Wisdom Management. It is the recognition of multidimensionality in decision making, economics, optimization, systems, cybernetics, and the pursuit of knowledge that bear the stamp of specific Zeleny's contributions. His life-long dedication to multidimensionality has produced an ultimate multidimensional being living in academic multiverse functioning in a boundaryless world of all continents, cultures, and countries. This book is as diverse and as multidimensional as the man and his work.

Paradata and Transparency in Virtual Heritage Anna Bentkowska-Kafel, Hugh Denard, 2016-05-13 Computer Generated Images CGIs are widely used and accepted in the world of entertainment but the use of the very same visualization techniques in academic research in the Arts and Humanities remains controversial The techniques and conceptual perspectives on heritage visualization are a subject of an ongoing interdisciplinary debate By demonstrating scholarly excellence and best technical practice in this area this volume is concerned with the challenge of providing intellectual transparency and accountability in visualization based historical research Addressing a range of cognitive and technological challenges the authors make a strong case for a wider recognition of three dimensional visualization as a constructive intellectual process and valid methodology for historical research and its communication Intellectual transparency of visualization based research the pervading theme of this volume is addressed from different perspectives reflecting the theory and practice of respective disciplines The contributors archaeologists cultural historians computer scientists and ICT practitioners emphasize the importance of reliable tools in particular documenting the process of interpretation of historical material and hypotheses that arise in the course of research The discussion of this issue refers to all aspects of the intellectual content of visualization and is centred around the concept of paradata Paradata document interpretative processes so that a degree of reliability of visualization outcomes can be understood The disadvantages of not providing this kind of intellectual transparency in the communication of historical content may result in visual products that only convey a small percentage of the knowledge that they embody thus making research findings not susceptible to peer review and rendering them closed to further discussion It is argued therefore that paradata should be recorded alongside more tangible outcomes of research preferably as an integral part of virtual models and sustained beyond the life span of the technology that underpins visualization policies foster the development of self entrepreneurship in times of unemployment praise the creation of firms and consider the willingness to start new ventures as a sign of good fortune Are those behaviours inherent to a human being to his genetic code his psychology or can students younger children or even adults be taught to become entrepreneurs What should be the position of universities of policy makers and how much does it matter for a country This book presents several articles following different research approaches to answer those difficult questions The researchers explore in particular the psychology of entrepreneurship the role of academia and the macroeconomic impact of entrepreneurship

American Learned Men and Women with Czechoslovak Roots Mila Rechcigl, 2020-11-18 Apart from a few articles no comprehensive study has been written about the learned men and women in America with Czechoslovak roots That's what this compendium is all about with the focus on immigration from the period of mass migration and beyond irrespective whether they were born in their European ancestral homes or whether they have descended from them Czech and Slovak immigrants including Bohemian Jews have brought to the New World their talents their ingenuity their technical skills their scientific knowhow and their humanistic and spiritual upbringing reflecting upon the richness of their culture and traditions developed throughout centuries in their ancestral home This accounts for the remarkable success and achievements of these settlers in their new home transcending through their descendants as this monograph demonstrates The monograph has been organized into sections by subject areas i.e. Scholars Social Scientists Biological Scientists and Physical Scientists Each individual entry is usually accompanied with literature and additional biographical sources for readers who wish to pursue a deeper study The selection of individuals has been strictly based on geographical ground without regards to their native language or ethical background. This was because under the Habsburg rule the official language was German and any nationalistic aspirations were not tolerated. Consequently it would be virtually impossible to determine their innate ethnic roots or how the respective individuals felt. Doing it in any other way would be a mere guessing and thus less objective. Making Strategies in Spatial Planning Maria Cerreta, Grazia Concilio, Valeria Monno, 2010-09-11. This provocative collection of essays challenges traditional ideas of strategic spatial planning and opens up new avenues of analysis and research. The diversity of contributions here suggests that we need to rethink spatial planning in several far-reaching ways. Let me suggest several avenues of such rethinking that can have both theoretical and practical consequences. First we need to overcome simplistic bifurcations or dichotomies of assessing outcomes and processes separately from one another. To lapse into the nostalgia of imagining that outcome analysis can exhaust strategic planners' work might appeal to academics' content to study what should be but it will doom itself to further irrelevance: ignorance of politics and rationalistic technocratic fantasies. But to lapse into an optimism that good process is all that strategic planning requires similarly rests upon a fiction that no credible planning analyst believes that enough talk will miraculously transcend conflict and produce agreement. Neither single-minded approach can work for both: avoid dealing with conflict and power and both too easily avoid dealing with the messiness and the practicalities of negotiating out conflicting interests and values and doing so in ethically and politically critical ways far from resting content with mere compromise. Second we must rethink the sanctity of expertise. By considering analyses of planning outcomes as inseparable from planning processes these accounts help us to see expertise and substantive analysis as being on tap ready to put into use rather than being particularly and technocratically on top. Advanced Building Construction and Materials 2013 Milan Palko, Karin Deáková, 2013-12-06.
