Envisioning Taiwan June Yip, 2004-10-07 In discussions of postcolonial nationhood and cultural identity Taiwan is often overlooked Yet the island with its complex history of colonization presents a particularly fascinating case of the struggle to define a nation While the mainland Chinese government has been unequivocal in its resistance to Taiwanese independence in Taiwan government control has gradually passed from mainland Chinese immigrants to the Taiwanese themselves Two decades of democratization and the arrival of consumer culture have made the island a truly global space Envisioning Taiwan sorts through these complexities skillfully weaving together history and cultural analysis to give a picture of Taiwanese identity and a lesson on the usefulness and the limits of contemporary cultural theory Yip traces a distinctly Taiwanese sense of self vis vis China Japan and the West through two of the island s most important cultural movements the hsiang t u or nativist literature of the 1960s and 1970s and the Taiwanese New Cinema of the 1980s and 1990s At the heart of the book are close readings of the work of the hsiang t u writer Hwang Chun ming and the New Cinema filmmaker Hou Hsiao hsien Key figures in Taiwan s assertion of a national identity separate and distinct from China both artists portray in vibrant detail daily life on the island Through Hwang s and Hou s work and their respective artistic movements Yip explores the imagining of a nation on the local national and global levels In the process she exposes a perceptible shift away from traditional models of cultural authenticity toward a more fluid postmodern hybridity an evolution that reflects both Taiwan s peculiar multicultural reality and broader trends in global culture

The Soviet Theory of Development Stephen Clarkson, 1978-12-15 Until now the innumerable and widely distributed Soviet writings on the third world haven been scrutinized for the clues they contain on the Kremlin s aid trade and foreign policies on Soviet strategies for local communist parties and even on shifts in the Sino Soviet Relationship But they have rarely been analysed in their own terms and for what they are the application of marxist leninist theory by Soviet scholars to the problems of Asia Africa and Latin America Based on research in Paris New York the Soviet Union and India this book provides a long needed insight into how Soviet thinkers understand such crucial problems in development as planning in mixed economies foreign aid from socialist and capitalist donors agrarian reform and the class struggle A concerned observer of Soviet development theory for some fifteen years Stephen Clarkson is neither hostile nor uncritical He argues that western students and third world policy makers alike have a good deal to learn from marxist leninist political economy because it presents an integrated approach to understanding the dilemmas of underdevelopment

Although Soviet scholarship benefits from some important theoretical advantages it also suffers in Clarkson's view from severe intellectual handicaps. The book examines the Soviet analysis of third world development as a whole drawing particularly on the most extensive and sophisticated school of interpretation the Russian writings on India. This book makes an important contribution to Soviet and third world studies by offering the reader a guide to the publications on development a complex and evolving aspect of the Soviet view of the world.

The Battle for International Law Jochen von Bernstorff, Philipp Dann, 2019-10-22 This volume provides the first comprehensive analysis of international legal debates between 1955 and 1975 related to the formal decolonization process. It is during this era couched between classic European imperialism and a new form of US led Western hegemony that fundamental legal debates took place over a new international legal order for a decolonised world. The book argues that this era presents in essence a battle a battle that was fought out in particular over the premises and principles of international law by diplomats lawyers and scholars. In a moment of relative weakness of European powers newly independent states and international lawyers from the South fundamentally challenged traditional Western perceptions of international legal structures engaging in fundamental controversies over a new international law. The legal outcomes of this battle have shaped the world we live in today. Contributions from a global set of authors cover contemporary debates on concepts central to the time such as self determination sources and concessions non intervention wars of national liberation multinational corporations and the law of the sea. They also discuss influential institutions such as the United Nations International Court of Justice and World Bank. The volume also incorporates contemporary regional approaches to international law in the decolonization era and portraits of important scholars from the Global South.
