Korea at the Turning Point Lewis M. Branscomb, Young-Hwan Choi, 1996-11-25 An exploration of the challenges Korea faces in transforming its economy from a government directed low cost producer to an innovative world economic power based on its own scientific and technological development

Investing in Innovation Lewis M. Branscomb, James H. Keller, 1999 Shortly after taking office in 1993 President Bill Clinton and Vice President Al Gore called for a shift in American technology policy toward an expansion of public investments in partnerships with private industry The authors of this volume were invited by the Clinton administration to take a hard nonpartisan look at how successful the new policies have been and to propose ways to make their programs more effective The first summary report of the team's recommendations was called the hottest technology policy property on Capitol Hill This book an expansion of that report offers a new set of technology policy principles The authors use the principles to evaluate many federal research programs and to make recommendations for change This volume will set the terms of the debate over the national research and innovation policy for years to come

Building the Virtual State Jane E. Fountain, 2004-05-28 The benefits of using technology to remake government seem almost infinite The promise of such programs as user friendly virtual agencies and portals where citizens can access all sections of government from a single website has excited international attention The potential of a digital state cannot be realized however unless the rigid structures of the contemporary bureaucratic state change along with the times Building the Virtual State explains how the American public sector must evolve and adapt to exploit the possibilities of digital governance fully and fairly The book finds that many issues involved in integrating technology and government have not been adequately debated or even recognized Drawing from a rich collection of case studies the book argues that the real challenges lie not in achieving the technical capability of creating a government on the web but rather in overcoming the entrenched organizational and political divisions within the state Questions such as who pays for new government websites which agencies will maintain the sites and who will ensure that the privacy of citizens is respected reveal the extraordinary obstacles that confront efforts to create a virtual state These political and structural battles will influence not only how the American state will be remade in the Information Age but also who will be the winners and losers in a digital society
