

Divisions and Climatic changes of Quaternary period

The Quaternary Period is the latest period of geological time, covering the past two-and-a-half million years. It began approximately 2.6 million years ago (mya) and ended about 12,000 years ago (kya). The Quaternary Period extends from the end of the last glacial period (about 10,000 BC) until today. During this time, the Earth experienced significant climatic change. The ice ages were caused by fluctuations in the earth's orbit around the sun. These orbital changes resulted in changes in the amount of sunlight reaching the earth. When the amount of sunlight was greater, the temperature of the earth increased. When the amount of sunshine decreased, the temperature dropped. These changes in temperature caused glaciers to expand and retreat.

Zinderen van Bakker,2020-08-26 This book based on the proceedings of third symposium held on 17th August 1977 during the Xth INQUA Congress at Birmingham UK focuses on the influence the Antarctic glaciation had on world palaeoenvironments The Earlier Stone Age Settlement of Scandinavia Grahame Clark,1975-01-09 During the Ice Age Scandinavia was submerged under thick ice sheets and it was only in the subsequent warmer conditions as the ice receded that colonisation by plants animals and men became possible In this book Grahame Clark examines the expansion of human settlement into this area with particular emphasis on the economic aspects of the societies under discussion The account is carried down to the time 3500 3000 BC when mixed farming including cereal agriculture was being introduced into the area The book is fully illustrated and documented by many maps and tables It provides a rounded picture of the economy of the first settlers and their descendants in an area whose archaeological past has been exceptionally fully investigated and documented The colonisation of Scandinavia is considered in its European context but the main emphasis lies on the process of change and the continuity of settlement in the territory itself The Late Neogene ,2011-09-21 The Late Neogene Environmental Change and Tropical Geomorphology Ian Douglas,Tom Spencer,2020-05-11 The tropics provide the key to understanding much biological and Earth science This is particularly true for the study of landforms which in higher latitudes suffer great seasonal contrasts in process intensity and type and which often in the past underwent the dramatic changes of glaciation and periglaciation Yet studies in the tropics have shown that the legacy of past climate changes is much more dramatic than was formerly believed This book first published in 1985 brings together the variety of evidence about such environmental changes over a variety of timescales and sets it against the current knowledge of the nature of geomorphic processes in the tropics Union Catalogue of
