Interpersonal Communication In Older Adulthood Interdisciplinary Theory And Research:

Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood Mary Lee Hummert, John M. Wiemann, John F. Nussbaum, 1994-09-13

This book is particularly relevant now as the baby boomer generation is aging and a greater proportion of the world's population is growing older. Interpersonal communication is clearly the most critical process for promoting social integration and adaptation of older adults within society. Yet understanding of the complex dynamics of interpersonal communication with the elderly is severely limited and the aged are often stigmatized, stereotyped, and isolated. This book will help clarify the role of communication in effective social integration and adaptation of the aged by providing comprehensive and in-depth analyses of relevant research and theory. The book integrates information on the most important issues and contexts influencing interpersonal communication and aging, and the individual chapters are written by an excellent group of authors who have demonstrated expertise on their topics. The book is well organized, clearly written, and comprehensive. The major topics are logically organized and compelling. I highly recommend this book.

Gary L. Kreps, Northern Illinois University

Aging obviously occurs at many levels, with biological, psychological, and social systems showing multidirectional and interdependent changes. What is less obvious is how these factors affect communication in later life. This volume represents a strong contribution toward solving this problem by bringing together a group of prominent scholars with diverse perspectives on language, communication, and aging.

Elizabeth A. I. Stine, University of New Hampshire

The Hummert, Wiemann, and Nussbaum book brings together a strong theoretical base with the presentation of new data. The chapters go well beyond the typical literature reviews usually found in edited volumes. The contributors provide sophisticated presentations of a variety of socially significant and unique topics, including the communicative impact of physical and cognitive changes, sometimes associated with aging, patronization, verbosity, frailty, conversational skills, proper names, and the presentation of self. Some of the chapters are strongly quantitative, while others are more interpretive. After building a strong rationale for the volume, the editors go on to put together a series of well-written chapters that provide a much-needed emphasis on the social construction of relationships through communication. The book should prompt much new research and advance our understanding of interpersonal communication and the aging process significantly.

Teresa Thompson, University of Dayton

The rich diversity of theoretical and methodological perspectives highlighted within the various chapters is an impressive feature of this edited collection. These essays add conceptual breadth and depth to our understanding of interpersonal communication and the process of aging.

Mary Anne Fitzpatrick, Department of Communication Arts, University of Wisconsin

This book is a valuable addition to the gerontological literature. Written from the perspective of the communication researcher, it brings together existing literature and offers new insights to gerontologists working in many social science disciplines. I recommend Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood as a resource to any scholars interested in older adults.

Victor G. Cicirelli, Professor of Developmental and Aging Psychology, Purdue University

This book is very timely.

Communication is offering a new wave of aging research and interpersonal processes in communication are where our experiences and our personal theories of aging are grounded This book brings together many of the researchers who are breaking new ground in communication and aging It offers a valuable overview of where we have gone in aging theory communicatively and where we need to go Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood demonstrates the rich diversity of methods and traditions of communication research that are beginning to illuminate gerontology Nikolas Coupland University of Wales Cardiff By highlighting the commonalities across a range of disciplines Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood provides a unique and broad based perspective on communication and aging This integrative approach brings together the best of the current research and theory from communication cognitive psychology psycholinguistics and medical sociology The underlying framework of the book centers around three topics cognition language and relationships exploring the individual areas as well as the ways they intersect In addition this volume brings to light the implications of the elderly population s individual differences as they affect communication and illustrates the positive as well as the negative effects of the aging process on language production relational satisfaction and other communication related variables This major reference source Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood is essential reading for anyone concerned with the issues of aging and communication

Interpersonal Communication in Older Adulthood Mary Lee Hummert,1994 By highlighting the commonalities across a range of disciplines this volume provides a unique and broad based perspective on communication and ageing This integrative approach brings together the best of current research and theory from communication cognitive psychology psycholinguistics and medical sociology Centring on three topics cognition language and relationships the book explores the individual areas as well as the ways in which they intersect It brings to light the implications of individual differences among members of the elderly population as they affect co acknowledges the importance of these interactions and provides a life span developmental view of communication and aging attempting to capture the many similarities and changes that occur in people's lives as they age. The authors move the study of intergenerational contact closer to the actual participants examining what happens within intergenerational interactions and how people evaluate their intergenerational experiences. The volume concentrates on the micro context of the intergenerational interaction and the cognitions, language and relationship behaviors related to intergenerational communication across the life span. The volume employs the perspective that the understanding of human behavior across the life span is enhanced by studying communicative behavior in intergenerational interaction. The authors integrate research from multiple disciplines concerned with intergenerational communication which is framed by several unique theoretical perspectives drawn from the communication discipline. As a resource for the study of intergenerational communication across the life span, this monograph offers important insights to scholars, students and all who are involved in intergenerational communication.

Handbook of Prejudice, Stereotyping, and Discrimination Todd D. Nelson, 2015-08-20. This Handbook is a comprehensive and scholarly overview of the latest research on prejudice, stereotyping and discrimination. The Second Edition provides a full update of its highly successful predecessor and features new material on key issues such as political activism, economic polarization, minority stress, same sex marriage laws, dehumanization and mental health stigma, in addition to a timely update on how victims respond to discrimination and additional coverage of gender and race. All chapters are written by eminent researchers who explore topics by presenting an overview of current research and where appropriate, developing new theory, models or scales. The volume is clearly structured with a broad section on cognitive, affective and neurological processes and there is inclusion of studies of prejudice based on race, sex, age, sexual orientation and weight. A concluding section explores the issues involved in reducing prejudice. The Handbook is an essential resource for students, instructors and researchers in social and personality psychology and an invaluable reference for academics and professionals in sociology, communication studies, gerontology, nursing, medicine as well as government and policymakers and social service agencies.

Message Production John O. Greene, 2013-11-05 The last two decades have seen the development of a number of models that have proven particularly important in advancing understanding of message production processes Now it appears that a second generation of theories is emerging one that reflects considerable conceptual advances over earlier models Message Production Advances in Communication Theory focuses on these new developments in theoretical approaches to verbal and nonverbal message production The chapters reflect a number of characteristics and trends resident in these theories including the nature and source of interaction goals the impact of physiological factors on message behavior the prominence accorded conceptions of goals and planning attempts to apply models of intra individual processes in illuminating inter individual phenomena treatments which involve hybrid intentional design stance approaches and efforts to incorporate physiological constructs and to meld them with psychological and social terms The processes underlying the production of verbal and nonverbal behaviors are exceedingly complex so much so that they resist the development of unified explanatory schemes The alternative is the mosaic of emerging theories such as are represented in this book each approach according prominence to certain message production phenomena while obscuring others and providing a window on some portion of the processes that give rise to those phenomena while remaining mute about other processes The amalgam of these disparate treatments then becomes the most intellectually compelling characterization of message production processes
