

A scenic landscape at sunset or sunrise. The sky is filled with warm, golden light from the low sun, casting a long, bright beam across the horizon. The foreground shows a dark, rocky path or road leading towards a body of water. The water reflects the golden light of the sun. In the background, there are rolling hills and mountains under a cloudy sky. The overall mood is serene and contemplative.

Into Darkness Peering Elisabeth Leonard, Anne Leonard, 1997-07-30 Unlike many classic works of fiction literature of the fantastic enjoys mass popularity Because the fantastic is so much a part of popular culture fantasy literature can represent or address the racial attitudes of its audience Representations of race in the fantastic provide a measure of the concern the culture has for racial matters If a work is racist whether consciously or not it may perpetuate racist attitudes unless it is carefully examined At the same time literature of the fantastic is able to present possible worlds rather than real ones It is thus a literature of possibility in which racial matters may be addressed and exposed so that readers may become more conscious of the evils of racist attitudes This volume explores the significance of race and color in the works of a wide range of authors including Octavia Butler Robert Heinlein Stephen King and Robert Silverberg This volume explores the significance of race and color in the works of a wide range of authors including Octavia Butler Joseph Conrad Ursula Le Guin Robert Heinlein Stephen King and Robert Silverberg The chapters are written by expert contributors who approach their topics as both products of a particular cultural moment and as imagined alternatives While most of the works examined are science fiction the book also looks at horror and fantasy writing Topics discussed include colonialism and empire Creole identity politics race in cyberspace and witchcraft in Salem

The Subject of Race in American Science Fiction Sharon DeGraw, 2006-12-19 While the connections between science fiction and race have largely been neglected by scholars racial identity is a key element of the subjectivity constructed in American SF In his Mars series Edgar Rice Burroughs primarily supported essentialist constructions of racial identity but also included a few elements of racial egalitarianism Writing in the 1930s George S Schuyler revised Burroughs' normative SF triangle of white author white audience and white protagonist and promoted an individualistic highly variable concept of race instead While both Burroughs and Schuyler wrote SF focusing on racial identity the largely separate genres of science fiction and African American literature prevented the similarities between the two authors from being adequately acknowledged and explored Beginning in the 1960s Samuel R Delany more fully joined SF and African American literature Delany expands on Schuyler's racial constructionist approach to identity including gender and sexuality in addition to race Critically intertwining the genres of SF and African American literature allows a critique of the racism in the science fiction and a more accurate and positive portrayal of the scientific connections in the African American literature Connecting the popular fiction of Burroughs the controversial career of Schuyler and the postmodern texts of Delany illuminates a gradual change from a stable essentialist construction of racial identity at the turn of the century to the variable social construction of poststructuralist subjectivity today
