Holistic Health in Children: Conceptualization, Assessment and

Potential Valerie Michaelson, Nathan King, William Pickett, 2017-08-21 This book presents the results of the Canadian Holistic Health in Children project Rooted in an ancient concept this study addresses some novel thinking surrounding the assessment of health and its determinants in adolescent populations Holism refers to the assessment of complex systems as composite wholes instead of or in addition to their constituent parts This idea is rarely applied to the study of health in children and its application to adolescent populations represents a potentially important gap in knowledge It fills this gap by conducting a series of analyses in a mixed methods paradigm Quantitatively it develops new measures and analytic strategies to be used in the assessment of health and its determinants in adolescents and then applied these a series of national and cross national studies Qualitatively it explores the origins and models of health inferred from existing theory as well as quantitative findings with groups of young people and captures the richness of their stories in recurrent themes and metaphor This book outlines the basic elements of theory that underlie holistic understandings of adolescent health quantitative and qualitative findings and then presents and interprets the results and translates them into a series of practical recommendations The Role of Metaphor and Symbol in Motivating Primary School Children Elizabeth

Ashton, 2022-12-30 This book provides a fresh approach to motivation in primary school children by exploring the role of metaphor and symbol in language and art as a means of expressing insights developed through learning The book investigates and transcends Piaget s dominant child developmental theories and considers alternative theories from psychiatry not least ideas drawn from the theories of Jung and the works of McGilchrist Using literary examples from primary school children s work including prose and poetry religious narratives and drama and art based on Jungian archetypal images the book analyses how creative approaches to lesson planning around metaphor and symbol enable children to achieve higher levels of understanding than had been previously thought possible Ultimately the volume evaluates why current practice largely fails to retain the initial enthusiasm shown for learning by young children and instead offers a wealth of possible new foundations and insights for learning among primary school children Focusing the primary school curriculum on creative ability this book will be of great interest to academics researchers and post graduate students in the fields of educational psychology primary school education and educational theory Art Therapy , 1997 Art, Angst, and Trauma

Doris Banowsky Arrington, 2007 This important new text demonstrates how art therapy can make a major contribution to the treatment of children who are seriously ill in foster care physically and emotionally traumatized as well as deviant and addicted adolescents young adults and with the aftermath of a spouse s suicide The first three chapters of this book set the framework providing established developmental structure holistic interactions of mind body and attachment essentials for human beings In the following chapters authors that are experts in facilitating art as healing with people of different ages and in different settings share their insights images and stories about treating developmental issues of angst and trauma Of special interest are the two chapters on brain development and function indicating that art therapy can make a major contribution to the healing of trauma because creative activity literally changes the traumatized typography of the brain. Information about the importance of bilateral integration as seen in both Eye Movement Desensitization Reprocessing (EMDR) and art therapy contributing to healing trauma is discussed. There is a special segment on art therapy and a new approach to the treatment of trauma with a sequence of chapters devoted to the ways art therapy facilitates healing of issues throughout the life span. The Instinctual Trauma Response (ITR) is examined which resolves the client's trauma without abreaction or re-experiencing the event and without the use of medication. In addition, there is clinical documentation of the successful resolution of different kinds of trauma with a variety of clients at various stages of development. These cases include the trauma of multiple surgeries, family violence, and witness to death. The book concludes with a discussion of how art therapy has helped the elderly and their caretakers deal with issues of Alzheimer's and death. This is a book that contains significant new material that is a major contribution to the art therapy field.

HOME IS WHERE THE ART IS Doris Banowsky Arrington, 2001-01-01. This work reflects the author's three decades of clinical practice with children and their families and adults and their families. Written for students and professionals, this book integrates the two approaches: art therapy and family systems. Although much has been written on art therapy and much more literature exists on family therapy, few integrate the two theoretical approaches. The structure of this book reflects the author's personal approach to art. Her art media are painting and combining found objects. The overall theme of family can quickly be seen within it, but this theme is overlaid with art archetypal patterns and meanings and symbolic enactments. It is also interfaced with personality development and, in this era of the brain with neurobiological research, the introduction begins with a brief introduction to Randy and his Dad and Stepmother. Chapter Two begins with the question, "What is a family?" Chapter Three introduces the reader to the Cycle of Love and the family influences in personality development seen in personality theorists and theories, e.g., Freud, Jung, attachment, and object relations. Eriksson and Piaget. Stories about Michelle, Elizabeth, Tucker, and Carl provide theoretical examples. Since more and more family therapy practice includes violence associated with the unmet basic human needs of nourishment and nurturing, Chapter Four, "The Cycle of Violence," begins with a discussion of violence and its effect on early childhood environments. Chapter Five continues the theme of violence within families, and Chapter Six, "The Cycle of Healing," includes a discussion of resilience illustrated by a variety of stories from an integration of family and art therapy. Appendix A is filled with the practical how-tos of family art therapy. Appendix B includes the how-to interventions, and Appendix C includes key terms and concepts of a select group of family therapy theorists.

Children Making Meaning Josephine Deguara, Cathy Nutbrown, 2024-12-31. This ground-breaking text highlights the value of drawing as a meaningful way for children to communicate, demonstrating how it is inextricably linked with children's everyday experiences, thinking processes, imagination, emotions, and learning. By exploring what intrigues and concerns children, Children Making Meaning Exploring Drawings Narratives and Identities demonstrates how drawing is so much more than an insignificant pastime. Illustrated throughout this book includes examples of children's drawings to explore and explain the processes, relationships, and modes they use as well as the themes and meanings that emerge from them. Practical case study material illuminates the complexity of children's thinking, intentions, and knowledge as they find creative and individual ways to convey their thoughts, fears, excitements, contentments, and fascinations. This book also explores the relationship between drawing and talk and how children's ongoing drawing narratives help them to develop and change their meanings as they draw. Accessibly combining relevant theories with numerous original examples, this essential resource is a must read for educators and other professionals who use children's drawings in their work. It will also be useful for parents who wish to support their children's drawing activities and extend such opportunities at home.
