Interviewing and Communication in Social Work Crispin P. Cross,1974 Interviewing and communication are central to the work of the social worker the psychotherapist and many other specialists yet little attempt has been made to explore their interrelationship and complexity The clear interplay between the two is discussed in this book with special reference to social work Its publication should be particularly welcome at this time in view of the enormous progress that has been made in the professionalization of social work and in the application of communication techniques to an increasing number of different areas in modern society Dr Cross has drawn upon his wealth of experience in the fields of psychology sociology and social work in organizing and presenting this collection of papers all of which were specially written for this volume The book emphasizes the important role that communication plays in the interviewing process especially but not only in social work and shows that there are important sociological and psychological factors involved in that process that require far more attention than they have received in the past The first five chapters deal with these essentially theoretical issues the rest of the book is concerned with their practical application in social work These essays should demonstrate to the social work student as well as to his more experienced colleague that interviewing and communication together provide the overall framework within which casework can be undertaken Such a demonstration should also be of real value to students of sociology personnel management and vocational guidance It should also appeal to the general reader with an interest in the interviewing process in modern society Creating Meaningful Inquiry in Inclusive Classrooms Phyllis Jones,Teresa Whitehurst,Jo Egerton,2012 Creating Meaningful Inquiry in Inclusive Classrooms shows how practitioners can engage in a wide range of educational research and explores its value to the practice of teaching and learning Clinical Assessment and Interviewing Skills Prof. Dr. Bilal Semih Bozdemir, To harness the power of nonverbal communication clinicians should employ a few practical strategies during interviews Firstly they should strive for congruence between their verbal and nonverbal messages When both forms of communication align it promotes clarity and trust For instance if a clinician expresses empathy through words their body language such as nodding and maintaining appropriate eye contact should mirror that sentiment Secondly clinicians should engage in active observation and reflection This involves attuning themselves to their clients nonverbal cues and considering their potential meanings Regularly reflecting on these observations can deepen the understanding of the client s emotional states and facilitate more targeted responses Lastly clinicians should remain aware of their own internal biases and preconceptions that may influence their interpretation of nonverbal cues Personal experiences and cultural backgrounds shape how both clinicians and clients express themselves nonverbally Openness to ongoing self reflection can help clinicians mitigate biases and foster more effective communication

In conclusion nonverbal communication and body language are foundational elements of clinical interviewing that enrich the clinician client interaction By developing awareness and sensitivity to nonverbal cues clinicians can gain deeper insights into clients emotional states enhance rapport and ultimately facilitate more effective therapeutic outcomes Through training and practice clinicians can hone these skills allowing them to leverage nonverbal communication as a powerful tool in the assessment and therapeutic process
