Intimate Kill:

Why Women Kill Vickie Jensen, 2001 Traditional homicide indicators are based on male violence and do little to predict when or whom women will kill Vickie Jensen shows that gender equality plays an important role in predicting female homicide patterns Jensen's analysis of the occurrence of women's homicide reveals that lethal violence is most likely when severe gender inequalities exist in the family group Her conclusions establish the clear relationship between political economic legal and social equality for women and the reduction of all forms of domestic violence Women Who Kill Lenore Walker, David Shapiro, Amanda Temares, Brandi Diaz, 2024-10-11 Women rarely kill How and why a woman can be driven to lethal action is often highly complex and misunderstood Many of these women who act lethally are driven to such a point as a last resort following prolonged experiences of child abuse and or domestic violence This book offers insights into these women detailing their motivations their patterns of violence and how they can be aided through psychological evaluation and proper expert testimony The chapters in this volume also include discussions of women who did not kill but were punished as if they had This collection of writings seeks to fill the gaps in research on women who kill This book is beneficial to students and researchers of Psychology including Forensic Psychology It will further aid the field of criminal justice as well as policymakers such that clinicians can provide an enhanced understanding on various psychological and demographic factors which contribute to situations where battered women reach a point where the only option to ensure survival is lethal self defense Finally this book offers clarity as it points out the areas in which the legal system has failed these women The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Journal of Aggression Maltreatment Trauma

Self-Defense and Battered Women Who Kill Robbin S. Ogle, Susan Jacobs, 2002-08-30 Battering relationships often escalate to a point where the battered woman commits homicide When such homicides occur attention is usually focused on the final violent encounter however Ogle and Jacobs argue while that act is the last homicidal encounter it is not the only one This important study argues that the battering relationship is properly understood as a long term homicidal process that if played out to the point that contrition dissipates is very likely to result in the death of one of the parties In that context Ogle and Jacobs posit a social interaction perspective for understanding the situational cultural social and structural forces that work toward maintaining the battering relationship and escalating it to a homicidal end This book details this theory and explains how to apply it in a trial setting Elements of self defense law are problematic for battered women who kill their abusers These include imminence reasonableness of the victim's perception of danger and reasonableness of the victim's choice of lethal violence and their proportionality Social interaction theory argues that once contrition dissipates imminence is constant The victim functions in an unending state of extreme tension and fear This allows us to understand the victim's view of the violence as escalating beyond control thereby increasing her reasonable perception of danger and lethality After social resources for whatever reason fail to end the violence it is then reasonable for the victim to conclude that she will have to act in her own defense in order to survive Why We Kill Nancy Loucks, Sally Smith Holt, Joanna R. Adler, 2020-03-11 Capital punishment serial killings war terrorism abortion honour killings euthanasia suicide bombings war and genocide all involve the taking of life Put most simply all involve killing other people However cultural context heavily influences heavily how people perceive these acts and most people reading this paragraph will likely disagree on the extent to which these count as killing For such an evolved species humans can be violent far beyond the point of humanity Why We Kill examines this violence in its many forms exploring how culture plays a role in people's understanding and definition of violent action From the first chapter which examines conventional homicide to the final chapter's bone chilling account of the Rwandan genocide this fascinating book makes compelling reading The Will To Kill James Alan Fox, Jack Levin, Kenna

Aday, 2019-06-08 The number of women in United States prisons has increased dramatically since the 1980s and has in proportion outpaced that of men s incarceration Despite these numbers incarcerated women and women lifers specifically represent a relatively small percentage of the overall correctional and lifer populations As such women lifers are easy to overlook discount and diminish as such a small group Many women lifers perceive themselves as a forgotten group most often those whom we lock up and throw away the key They feel excluded from prison programming within and from their own families outside They feel stigmatized by staff and other women in prison Aging fast many have real fears about declining health and losing family members over lengthy stretches of time However women lifers are some of the most resilient and strongest women who survive life in prison with the support of each other and religious faith often transforming themselves in the process of doing time While most of the women had extensive histories of trauma abuse and mental health issues few had prior experience as offenders Despite the term lifer many of these women will be released from prison after serving long sentences Beyond this basic profile there is much more to learn and share about the lives of women lifers Focusing on women s pathways into prison the ways they cope with life behind bars and their diverse reentry needs Meredith Dye and Ronald Aday give voice to women lifers and place their experiences within the larger context of penal harm policies The authors look at their physical and mental health family connections adjustment to prison prison supports and activities and experiences with abuse trauma while also looking at the growing public and policy concerns over mass incarceration in general Women Lifers provides insight into the lives of incarcerated women before during and following a life sentence especially the population of those serving life sentences With the growing numbers of women lifers in the United States the authors emphasize the importance for the public and policymakers to understand the unique circumstances that brought these women to prison the policies that keep them there and the major challenges they face in carving out a successful life in prison and beyond ISIS and the Pornography of Violence Simon Cottee, 2019-05-30 ISIS and the Pornography of Violence is a collection of iconoclastic essays on ISIS spanning the four year period from its ascendancy in late 2014 to its demise in early 2018 From a trenchant critique of the infantilization of jihadists to a probing examination of the parallels between gonzo porn and ISIS beheading videos the pieces collected in this volume challenge conventional ways of thinking about ISIS and the roots of its appeal Simon Cottee's core argument is that Western ISIS recruits far from being brainwashed or vulnerable dupes actively responded to the group's promise of redemptive violence and self sacrifice to a total cause American Homicides, 1980-2020 Meredith Emigh-Guy, 2024-10-29 Meredith Emigh Guy combines criminological theories and FBI homicide data to examine recent trends in the homicide rate as well as the clearance rate This work situates homicide statistics in the United States in a global and historical context by addressing questions of stranger perpetrated homicide and intimate partner violence Several potential reasons for a decline in the number of solved homicides are explored including victim offender relationships weapons and improvements in forensics Emigh Guy concludes that modern media representations have skewed the general public's understanding of violent crime and provides the statistics to show how reality differs from misconception
