International Classification of Financial Reporting Christopher Nobes,1984-01 Financial reporting practices differ widely between countries and this has far reaching implications for multinational businesses Over more than a century there have been attempts to classify countries into groups by similarities of practices With the recent spread of International Financial Reporting Standards it might appear that classification is largely of historical interest but this is not the case for several reasons explained in this book Christopher Nobes offers a critical analysis of the many previous accounting classifications having drawn lessons from other fields of science and social science Revised and updated to reflect the IFRS era the book discusses how old classifications are reflected in today's international differences in practice under IFRS. It concludes with a discussion on the most useful classifications and how classifications can still be relevant in the era of international standards. This book will be essential for academics, postgraduates and undergraduates in international accounting theory and to international accounting professionals.

International Accounting and Reporting Issues, 1987

Comparative International Accounting Christopher Nobes, Robert Henry Parker, 2002. Now in its seventh edition, this successful text offers a comprehensive yet coherent examination of the international dimensions of financial accounting and reporting. Most of the chapters are written by the two main authors, but there are several contributions from leading international practitioners and academics. Part I gives an overview of the causes and nature of international differences in accounting and financial reporting. Part II examines individual countries and includes studies of the UK, the US, the Netherlands, France, Germany, Japan, Australia, Canada, Singapore, Scandinavia, Italy, Spain, South Korea, Central and eastern Europe, and China. Part III takes a comparative look at four major financial reporting issues. Part IV analyses four issues of international analysis and management. The text has been thoroughly revised and updated. It retains the structure of the last edition but incorporates the following new features: New chapters on International Accounting Standards, Chapter 6 and Liabilities, Chapter 15. The structure and content of the main country chapters have been revised and standardized to present a more cohesive comparison. Each country chapter contains a list of differences from international standards. Learning objectives have been introduced at the start of each chapter and extra questions have been added to several chapters.

Comparative International Accounting is primarily intended for students at both undergraduate and postgraduate level taking courses in comparative and international accounting. Christopher Nobes is PricewaterhouseCoopers Professor of Accounting at the University of Reading, UK. He is Vice Chairman of the accountancy committee of the Federation des Experts Comptables Europeens and was a UK representative on the board of the IASC from 1993 to 2001. Robert Parker is Emeritus Professor of Accounting at the University of Exeter, UK. He was formerly editor of the journal Accounting and Business Research.

International Financial Reporting Clare B. Roberts, Pauline Weetman, Paul Gordon, 2005. Fully updated to reflect the ongoing changes in international accounting standards. International Financial Reporting contrasts the processes of convergence on global harmonisation with the continuing causes of national diversity in accounting and accountability. It analyses the work of the International Accounting Standards Board in setting internationally applied standards, IFRS of measurement and disclosure. Key Features: Chapters on research in international accounting commended by users of previous editions. Coverage of use of accounting information by global market participants. Includes examples of accounting practices drawn from the published accounts and reports of multinational companies such as Heineken, Kingfisher, Kodak and Wal-Mart. A chapter on issues in multinational accounting provides a comparative discussion of national practices in relation to IFRS. New to this edition: Increased focus on accountability in corporate reporting, particularly the impact of the Sarbanes-Oxley

Act Focus on the whole annual report including narrative reporting The development of financial reporting practices across Europe is integrated in one chapter with particular reference to Poland as the largest economy entering the EU in the 2004 enlargement International Financial Reporting A Comparative Approach is ideal for advanced undergraduate and postgraduate students of accounting and international business studying in any country throughout the world Clare Roberts BSc MSc PhD is Professor of Accounting at the University of Aberdeen She has held permanent teaching positions in the UK at Glasgow and Exeter Universities and visiting positions in the US at Texas A M University and the University of California Santa Barbara and in Australia at Newcastle University New South Wales Pauline Weetman BA Oxon BSc PhD CA is Professor of Accounting at the University of Strathclyde and was formerly Dean of Faculty and Professor of Accounting at Heriot Watt University She received the British Accounting Association s Distinguished Academic Award in 2005 Paul Gordon BA MA FCA is Lecturer in Accounting and Finance at Heriot Watt University having held positions at Glasgow Aberdeen and Wales Bangor

International Accounting and Transnational Decisions S. J. Gray, 2014-05-20 International Accounting and Transnational Decisions explores a wide range of significant international accounting issues with special reference to the comparative development of national systems of accounting international accounting standards transnational financial reporting issues and financial planning and control in the multinational corporation The book is organized into five parts Part I discusses the international dimensions of accounting including both the financial reporting and managerial decision making perspectives The second part is concerned with the comparative international aspects of accounting The Part III presents developments and questions relating to international accounting standards The fourth part considers a number of selected transnational financial reporting issues of concern both to managers and financial statement users The last part takes a managerial perspective in its coverage of important problems of transnational financial decision making and control Accountants and students of accounting will find the book useful

How Arbitrary are International Accounting Classifications? Lessons from Centuries of Classifying in Many Disciplines, and Experiments with IFRS Data Christopher William Nobes, 2014 The process of classification is central to the daily task of doctors and librarians and it is the foundation of study and research in chemistry and biology Double entry bookkeeping and the preparation of financial statements are classification activities of accounting practice Classifying national accounting systems has long been an aspect of accounting research This paper seeks to extract lessons for accounting researchers from anthropology biology chemistry cosmology and medicine In particular we examine how the classifiers themselves and the characteristics that they choose can affect classification We observe that objectivity is neither possible nor desirable in classification Despite the arbitrariness some classifications can be more reasonable or more useful than others For previous accounting classifications we analyze the classifiers the scope the characteristics used the data and the classification techniques We report various problems We then empirically investigate the sensitivity of classifications to such issues as the characteristics chosen and the countries and sectors included For this we hand pick data on the practices of large listed companies from 12 jurisdictions relating to 14 accounting topics under International Financial Reporting Standards We show how different researchers could produce different classifications particularly depending on which accounting topics are used to represent the countries

International Accounting Frederick D. S. Choi, Gerhard G.
