Besanceney, 1970      'Til Faith Do Us Part Naomi Schaefer Riley, 2013-03-04 In the last decade 45% of all marriages in the U S were between people of different faiths The rapidly growing number of mixed faith families has become a source of hope encouraging openness and tolerance among religious communities that historically have been insular and suspicious of other faiths Yet as Naomi Schaefer Riley demonstrates in Til Faith Do Us Part what is good for society as a whole often proves difficult for individual families interfaith couples Riley shows are less happy than others and certain combinations of religions are more likely to lead to divorce Drawing on in depth interviews with married and once married couples clergy counselors sociologists and others Riley shows that many people enter into interfaith marriages without much consideration of the fundamental spiritual doctrinal and practical issues that divide them Couples tend to marry in their twenties and thirties a time when religion diminishes in importance only to return to faith as they grow older and raise children suffer the loss of a parent or experience other major life challenges Riley suggests that a devotion to diversity as well as to a romantic ideal blinds many interfaith couples to potential future problems Even when they recognize deeply held differences couples believe that love conquers all As a result they fail to ask the necessary questions about how they will reconcile their divergent worldviews about raising children celebrating holidays interacting with extended families and more An obsession with tolerance at all costs Riley argues has made discussing the problems of interfaith marriage taboo Til Faith Do Us Part is a fascinating exploration of the promise and peril of interfaith marriage today It will be required reading not only for interfaith couples or anyone considering interfaith marriage but for all those interested in learning more about this significant yet understudied phenomenon and the impact it is having on America

Blessed and Called to be a Blessing Helen Richmond (Minister),2016 Christians and Muslims bound together in a dialogue of life give expression to the wideness of God s hospitality and grapple with the difficulties as well as the richness and promises that a shared life brings In a world where religious and cultural differences often lead to conflict it has become increasingly important to search for missiological responses that can assist in the building of inclusive communities and forging of bonds of respect and understanding Helen Richmond draws on the lived experience of Muslims and Christians in interfaith marriages in Indonesia and Australia whose lives embody a living dialogue between two religious traditions to offer a fresh approach to our understanding of Christian mission and Muslim da wah The narratives and testimonies of the couples in this study invite the question of whether Muslims and Christians who have viewed each other as intimidating opponents might instead regard each The narratives and testimonies of the couples in this study invite the question of whether Muslims and Christians who have viewed each other as intimidating opponents might instead regard each other as fellow pilgrims and partners in God s work in the world This book makes a substantive contribution to theological and specifically missiological knowledge and will make an important point of reference for further research in the area of interfaith marriage in particular and to wider issues of Christian mission and interfaith engagement more widely There is much that can be quarried from this insightful study Professor Douglas Pratt University of Waikato Helen Richmond demonstrates considerable originality in the subject area and in the methodology used in field research and interactions with the couples interviewed She has the advantage of being fluent in Indonesian thereby having access to the worlds of Indonesian language couples The work she has done on the history of Islam and Christianity in Indonesia and Australia in relation to marriage is impressive and her arguments are cogent and clear Professor James Haire School of Theology Charles Sturt University Precisely at a moment of growing distrust between religious communities this book brings to light a world of intimacy between the two faith communities Enduring interfaith marriages in which at least one partner is an active faith practitioner are rare but they do form the ultimate meeting ground between the two great missionary traditions The idea of looking at the vexed problem of Christian Muslim relations through the lens of interfaith marriage is a courageous one and a metaphor that is rich with theological possibilities Even more courageous was the author s decision to adopt a wholly ecumenical missiological approach that is one that takes both religions equally seriously and moreover takes at face value the often troubling desire of each to try and convert the other Professor Gerry van Klinken Royal Netherlands Institute of Southeast Asian and Caribbean Studies KITLV Leiden Helen Richmond is a minister in the Uniting Church in Australia with considerable experience of working cross culturally She has had a long connection with Indonesia and her extended family which includes Muslims and Christians is a snap shot of the religious diversity of our times For six years Helen worked as a Tutor in Mission Studies at the United College of the Ascension Selly Oak Birmingham UK She has served as the National Director for Multicultural and Cross cultural Ministry in her church and for the last six years has been a Theology Teacher at Nungalinya College an Indigenous training center in Darwin

Interfaith Marriage Trimargono Meytrias Ebenheser, 2020-01-01 Interfaith marriage is a sensitive and crucial issue for churches in Indonesia and for the religiously plural Indonesian society This study first deals with the development of civil law specifically from Marriage Law No 1 1974 The stances of the churches in Indonesia are wide ranging and include the history of church teaching biblical interpretation and church regulations This contextual church polity study presents a new effort to formulate both a theology of marriage and a family theology specifically a theology of interfaith marriage and to formulate a relevant and contextual church order     Strangers to the Tribe Gabrielle Glaser,1997 Any marriage is an adventure but for partners with different religious backgrounds the journey is sure to offer some unexpected twists In Strangers to the Tribe the journalist Gabrielle Glaser introduces us to eleven Jewish Gentile couples their families and the many ways they have found to navigate their differences Based on candid interviews across America with couples of all ages these true stories will inform and inspire anyone embarked on an interfaith partnership How do Rachel and Eric a Jewish Episcopal couple raise their blended family How does the Wong family honor all the strands of its Chinese Hawaiian Jewish heritage Can Robin an outgoing Jew who dreams of becoming a rabbi and Lee an introverted Anglo Catholic keep their partnership intact Today more than half of America s Jews marry outside the faith Will intermarriage dilute American Judaism beyond recognition Or will it inspire at least some secular Jews to renew their religious identity bringing more people into the Jewish fold These portraits unsparing yet nonjudgmental show how the answers are taking shape in interfaith America
