The Last Extinction Les Kaufman, Kenneth Mallory, 1993 An expanded updated edition of this classic study on biodiversity and species loss

Human Extinction Émile P. Torres, 2023-06-15 This volume traces the origins and evolution of the idea of human extinction from the ancient Presocratics through contemporary work on existential risks Many leading intellectuals agree that the risk of human extinction this century may be higher than at any point in our 300 000 year history as a species This book provides insight on the key questions that inform this discussion including when humans began to worry about their own extinction and how the debate has changed over time It establishes a new theoretical foundation for thinking about the ethics of our extinction arguing that extinction would be very bad under most circumstances although the outcome might be on balance good Throughout the book graphs tables and images further illustrate how human choices and attitudes about extinction have evolved in Western history In its thorough examination of humanity s past this book also provides a starting point for understanding our future Although accessible enough to be read by undergraduates Human Extinction contains new and thought provoking research that will benefit even established academic philosophers and historians

Ice Age Extinction Jim Snook, 2008 The author explores the causes of Earth s cyclical temperature changes and shows how those temperature shifts touch off a chain of events in the atmosphere in the oceans and on land Cold temperature was the trigger and the resultant reduction in carbon dioxide he argues was the bullet that killed off so many species The re warming released more carbon dioxide into the atmosphere and fueled a resurgence This book provides significant long term background information to put global warming into perspective In addition the author describes the human responses to increases in atmospheric carbon dioxide after the last ice age and in the last 150 years Near the end of the last ice age atmospheric carbon dioxide was about half of what it is today Due to the lack of carbon dioxide most of the vegetation disappeared from the middle and high latitudes Without plants to eat many large animals became extinct North America lost three fourths of its large animals including the woolly mammoth mastodon and saber tooth cat Humans too had little to eat in these areas and their population declined dramatically The book then explains how and why atmospheric carbon dioxide increased by about 50% after the last ice age ended encouraging a population explosion among plants animals and humans all of which then migrated into many previously barren areas More recently the 28% increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide in the last 150 years has caused a six fold increase in the human population Changes in the next 300 years will reverse some of the current trends This book has value for anyone interested in the ice age extinction glaciers the glacial cycle the atmosphere and oceans and the past and future of plants animals and humans It provides long term information on atmospheric carbon dioxide global warming and cooling which species were most vulnerable to extinction and what processes may have brought about extinctions in the geological past Key aspects of extinctions in the history of life are here reviewed by six leading palaeontologists providing a source text for geology and biology undergraduates as well as more advanced scholars Topical issues such as the causes of mass extinctions and how animal and plant life has recovered from these cataclysmic events that have shaped biological evolution are dealt with This helps us to view the biodiversity crisis in a broader context and shows how large scale extinctions have had profound and long lasting effects on the Earth s biosphere Festschrift for B. F. Skinner Peter B. Dews,1977
