

The Ghosts of

L. B. Taylor, Jr.

What I saw was apparently three white parachutes in a triangular fashion about 60 degrees elevation.
Suddenly there was a brilliant flash like a photographer's magnesium flash. Instinctively, I dropped to the ground beside a landing at the side of the airplane. Then came the blast with a swelling bang and I felt as though I had been crushed in the gale. I found myself gasping for breath, pinned under a lot of rubble and unable to see. The world was black.

Last Stop Nagasaki! Hugh V. Clarke, 1991-01-01 This is the remarkable story of the Australian prisoners of war who survived the atomic bombing of Nagasaki Often in their own words a group of men tell of what they witnessed that morning in 1945

Last Stop Nagasaki! Hugh Clarke, 1985-01-01 What I saw was apparently three white parachutes in a triangular fashion about 60 degrees elevation Suddenly there was a brilliant flash like a photographer's magnesium flash Instinctively I dropped to the ground beside a kerbing at the side of the alleyway Then came the blast with a deafening bang and I felt as though I had been kicked in the guts I found myself gasping for breath pinned under a lot of rubble and unable to see The world was black When we looked up it looked like the end of the world was coming as the sun appeared to be falling towards the earth This is the remarkable story of the Australian prisoners of war who survived the atomic bombing of Nagasaki When Fat Boy was dropped in August 1945 there were 24 Australian POWs in a camp less than two kilometres from the epicentre of the blast Two other Australians were imprisoned in a camp eight kilometres away How they came to be there how they endured their imprisonment how they survived a nuclear attack is the inspiring story told in this book This is the story of bombardier Hugh Clarke and his mates Through it often in their own words a remarkable group of men tell us what they witnessed that sunny morning in 1945 But they tell a great deal more the conditions within the camp the courage of their fellow POWs the unceasing battle for survival Sometimes with humour often with sadness Last Stop Nagasaki recounts the days leading up to the horrific birth of the Nuclear Age

The Unfinished Atomic Bomb Cassandra Atherton, David Lowe, Alyson Miller, 2017-12-26 In its diversity of perspectives The Unfinished Atomic Bomb Shadows and Reflections is testament to the ways in which contemplations of the A bomb are endlessly shifting rarely fixed on the same point or perspective The compilation of this book is significant in this regard offering Japanese American Australian and European perspectives In doing so the essays here represent a complex series of interpretations of the bombing of Hiroshima and its implications both for history and for the present day From Kuznick's extensive biographical account of the Hiroshima bomb pilot Paul Tibbets and contentious questions about the moral and strategic efficacy of dropping the A bomb and how that has resonated through time to Jacobs reflections on the different ways in which Hiroshima and its memorialization are experienced today each chapter considers how this moment in time emerges persistently in public and cultural consciousness The discussions here are often difficult sometimes controversial and at times oppositional reflecting the characteristics of A bomb scholarship more broadly The aim is to explore the various ways in which Hiroshima is remembered but also to consider the ongoing legacy and impact of atomic warfare the reverberations of which remain powerfully felt

Humanitarian Internationalism Under Empire Michiko Suzuki, 2024-08-20 This book examines the history of the Japanese Red Cross Society JRCS and through it offers a new account of the humanitarian movement in modern Japan Michiko Suzuki argues that contrary to its typical portrayal the JRCS was not wholly subordinate to the government and the Imperial Family nor was it derivative of Western values and institutional models. Instead the JRCS operated within a transnational discourse both contributing to and borrowing from peacetime and wartime international humanitarianism. Grounded in extensive research in the JRCS archives and archives outside Japan, this book explores the melding of Western and Japanese humanitarian traditions and organizational forms. Suzuki examines the role of grassroots efforts in the steady growth of the JRCS, showing how the society became Japan's largest international organization by the First World War as well as its pioneering role in Red Cross disaster relief. She traces the inclusion of non-Western national societies in the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and the evolution of the JRCS from a national into a transnational organization with branches in Japan's overseas empire as well as in the Asia Pacific and the Americas. A comprehensive chronicle of the JRCS Humanitarian Internationalism Under Empire provides a fresh vantage point on major historical questions relating to Japanese modernization and internationalism before the Second World War.

Keep the Men Alive
Rosalind Hearder, 2020-07-22 The thing that haunts me most to this day is that blokes were dying and I could do bugger all about it. Do you look after the bloke who you know is going to die or the bloke who's got a chance. Australian ex POW doctor 1999. During World War II 22,000 Australian military personnel became prisoners of war under the Japanese military. Over three and a half years 8000 died in captivity in desperate conditions of forced labour, disease and starvation. Many of those who returned home after the war attributed their survival to the 106 Australian medical officers imprisoned alongside them. These doctors varied in age, background and experience but they were united in their unfailing dedication to keeping as many of the men alive as possible. This is the story of those 106 doctors, their compassion, bravery and ingenuity and their efforts in bringing back the 14,000 survivors. You are unfortunate in being prisoners of a country whose living standards are much lower than yours. You will often consider yourselves mistreated while we think of you as being treated well. Japanese officer to Australian POWs 1943.
