Crosslinguistic Approaches to the Psychology of Language Jiansheng Guo, Elena Lieven, Nancy Budwig, Susan Ervin-Tripp, Keiko Nakamura, Seyda Ozcaliskan, 2010-10-18 This volume covers state of the art research in the field of crosslinguistic approaches to the psychology of language The forty chapters cover a wide range of topics that represent the many research interests of a pioneer Dan Isaac Slobin who has been a major intellectual and creative force in the field of child language development linguistics and psycholinguistics for the past four decades Slobin has insisted on a rigorous crosslinguistic approach in his attempt to identify universal developmental patterns in language learning to explore the effects of particular types of languages on psycholinguistic processes to determine the extent to which universals of language and language behavior are determined by modality vocal auditory vs manual visual and finally to investigate the relation between linguistic and cognitive processes In this volume researchers take up the challenge of the differences between languages to forward research in four major areas with which Slobin has been concerned throughout his career language learning in crosslinguistic perspective spoken and sign languages the integration of language specific factors in narrative skill theoretical issues in typology language development and language change and the relationship between language and cognition All chapters are written by leading researchers currently working in these fields who are Slobin s colleagues collaborators or former students in linguistics psychology anthropology and cognitive science Each section starts with an introductory chapter that connects the themes of the chapters and reviews Slobin's contribution in the context of past research trends and future directions. The whole volume focuses squarely on the central argument: universals of human language and of its development are embodied and revealed in its diverse manifestations and utilization.

Crosslinguistic Approaches to the Study of Language is a key resource for those interested in the range of differences between languages and how this impacts on learning, cognition and language change, and a tribute to Dan Slobin's momentous contribution to the field.

Gesture in Embodied Communication and Human Computer Interaction Stefan Kopp, Ipke Wachsmuth, 2010-04-12

The International Gesture Workshops (GW) are interdisciplinary events for those researching gesture-based communication across the disciplines. The focus of these events is a shared interest in understanding gestures and sign language in their many facets and using them for advancing human-machine interaction. Since 1996, International Gesture Workshops have been held roughly every second year with fully reviewed proceedings published by Springer. The International Gesture Workshop GW 2009 was hosted by Bielefeld University's Center for Interdisciplinary Research (ZiF - Zentrum für interdisziplinäre Forschung) during February 25-27, 2009. Like its predecessors, GW 2009 aimed to provide a platform for participants to share, discuss, and criticize recent and novel research with a multidisciplinary audience. More than 70 computer scientists, linguists, psychologists, neuroscientists, as well as dance and music scientists from 16 countries met to present and exchange their newest results under the umbrella theme Gesture in Embodied Communication and Human Computer Interaction. Consistent with the steady growth of research activity in this area, a large number of high-quality submissions were received, which made GW 2009 an exciting and important event for anyone interested in gesture-related technological research relevant to human-computer interaction. In line with the practice of previous gesture workshops, presenters were invited to submit their papers for publication in a subsequent peer-reviewed publication of high quality. The present book is the outcome of this effort. Representing the research work from eight countries, it contains a selection of 28 thoroughly reviewed articles.

The Acquisition of Turkish in Childhood Belma Haznedar, F. Nihan Ketrez, 2016-11-18

The Acquisition of Turkish in Childhood presents recent research on the nature of language acquisition by typically and atypically developing monolingual and bilingual Turkish-speaking children. The book summarises the most recent research findings on the acquisition of Turkish in childhood with a focus on i) the acquisition of phonology, morphology, syntax, and semantics; ii) the acquisition of discourse skills; iii) literacy development; and iv) atypical vs. typical development. The book also provides the reader with a unique perspective on cross-learner comparative research on the acquisition of Turkish, demonstrating how similar issues can be investigated in a range of various acquisition contexts. By grouping together the recent research on the acquisition of Turkish within a single volume, this book provides a unique opportunity for readers to review the general developmental tendencies and the most prominent hypotheses put forward by scholars.

Granularity in the Verbalization of Events and Objects Katerina Stathi, 2023-08-15

The study departs from the observation that in expressing ideas some languages encode more details than others It investigates whether languages encode events and or objects at a coarse grained e g put glass as opposed to a fine grained e g lay wine glass level systematically The level of detail is termed granularity which is viewed as a cline from fine grained semantic specificity to coarse grained meaning semantic generality Four languages are investigated German English Greek and Turkish The study draws on elicited data from a naming task The verbalization of events is based on event and object descriptions in selected semantic domains The results reveal significant granularity effects between languages and language types satellite framed vs verb framed The study is relevant for scholars interested in linguistic typology lexical and semantic typology contrastive linguistics event representation psycholinguistics and cognitive semantics

Studies on Turkish and Turkic Languages Aslı Göksel,Celia Kerslake,2000 This book contains papers presented at the Ninth International conference on Turkish Linguistics held in Oxford in August 1998 The papers cover a wide range of topics in theoretical and descriptive linguistics relating to Turkish and Turkic languages bringing together the work of the most eminent researchers in the field In addition to articles in the core areas of linguistics which focus on topics such as the morpho syntactic properties of argument structure word stress aspect and modality word order embedding cliticisation and compounding there are sections on psycholinguistics language acquisition discourse analysis language contact and bilingualism Although the main language of investigation is Modern Turkish the articles cover a wide range of Turkic languages including Karaim Eynu Sarigh Yoghur Salar Gagauz Noghay Khalaj and Iraqi Turkmen some of which are endangered as well as historic varieties such as Middle Turkish Old Anatolian Turkish and Old Turkic The book will be of interest to linguists working on theoretical comparative and diachronic aspects of linguistic research as well as those who are interested in descriptive aspects of Turkish and other Turkic languages

Sensuous Cognition Rosario Caballero,Javier E. Díaz Vera,2013-03-22 This book provides an interdisciplinary unified view of sensual cognition and its cultural manifestations The contributors favour an ecological perspective and revisit and problematize some of the core assumptions in Cognitive Linguistics One of the original tenets of CL states that human thinking is grounded in experiential gestalts as well as in interaction between peoples embodied minds and their various environments or cultures In addition to looking in detail at this tenet the volume provides major insights into the methodological and theoretical dimensions of Cognitive Linguistics research and describes applications of the paradigm in diverse contexts and cultures

The Processing of Compounds in Adult Second Language Learners of English and Turkish. Serkan Uygun,2025-01-01 The purpose of this study is to investigate the processing of compound words in English and Turkish with monolingual and sequential bilingual adults with intermediate and advanced level proficiency The present study includes two different but parallel experiments on compound word recognition one in English and one in Turkish By using a masked priming experiment the processing of English and Turkish compounds by monolingual and sequential bilinguals is examined The stimuli involve transparent transparent compounds e g headache kuzeydo u northeast kuzey north do u east partially opaque compounds e g grapefruit b y kel i ambassador b y k big el i delegate pseudocompounds e g mandate fesle en basil fes fez le en bowl pelvis and monomorphemic words e g crocodile kaplumba a turtle The results of the English study demonstrate that English monolinguals decomposed compound words When semantic transparency of the compound is examined the findings suggest that both constituents are activated in transparent transparent compounds whereas only the second constituent is accessed in partially opaque compounds indicating the influence of semantic transparency on compound processing No priming is observed for intermediate level sequential bilinguals suggesting that they do not employ decomposition Advanced level sequential bilinguals also employ decomposition for compounds but semantic transparency plays a crucial role because constituent 1 is accessed in transparent transparent compounds yet no priming effect is obtained for partially opaque compounds implying dual route access for English compounds The Turkish study shows that monolingual Turkish participants recognize compound words on the basis of their constituents i e via decomposition however the effect of semantic transparency is also observed in the group Transparent transparent compounds are accessed by recognizing the second constituent i e the head of the compound while both constituents are activated for partially opaque compounds In contrast neither the advanced nor the intermediate level sequential bilingual groups show native like processing revealing whole word access Key Words L1 morphological processing L2 morphological processing English and Turkish compounds masked priming psycholinguistics The Oxford Handbook of Evidentiality Alexandra Y. Aikhenvald, 2018-01-18 This volume offers a thorough systematic and crosslinguistic account of evidentiality the linguistic encoding of the source of information on which a statement is based In some languages the speaker always has to specify this source for example whether they saw the event heard it inferred it based on visual evidence or common sense or was told about it by someone else While not all languages have obligatory marking of this type every language has ways of referring to information source and associated epistemological meanings The continuum of epistemological expressions covers a range of devices from the lexical means in familiar European languages and in many languages of Aboriginal Australia to the highly grammaticalized systems in Amazonia or North America In this handbook experts from a variety of fields explore topics such as the relationship between evidentials and epistemic modality contact induced changes in evidential systems the acquisition of evidentials and formal semantic theories of evidentiality The book also contains detailed case studies of evidentiality in language families across the world including Algonquian Korean Nakh Dagestanian Nambikwara Turkic Uralic and Uto Aztecan The Oxford Handbook of Evidentiality Aleksandra I[O]U[r]evna Aïkhenval'd, 2018 The first volume to offer a thorough and systematic account of evidentiality and the expression of information source Illustrated with extensive data from a range of typologically diverse languages Introductory chapter offers practical advice for fieldworkers investigating evidentially Interdisciplinary in nature with insights from typology semantics pragmatics language description anthropology cognitive psychology and psycholinguistics Book jacket Metacognitive

Diversity Joëlle Proust, Martin Fortier, 2018 This book considers the variability of metacognitive skills across cultures It explores new domains of metacognitive variability and universal metacognitive features in adults and children Throughout it draws on current anthropological linguistic neuroscientific and psychological evidence

The Oxford Handbook of Language Production Matthew Goldrick, Victor Ferreira, Michele Miozzo, 2014-04-11 The Oxford Handbook of Language Production provides a comprehensive multidisciplinary review of the complex mechanisms involved in language production It describes what we know of the computational linguistic cognitive and brain bases of human language production from how we conceive the messages we aim to convey to how we retrieve the right and sometimes wrong words how we form grammatical sentences and how we assemble and articulate individual sounds letters and gestures Contributions from leading psycholinguists linguists and neuroscientists offer readers a broad perspective on the latest research highlighting key investigations into core aspects of human language processing The Handbook is organized into three sections speaking written and sign languages and how language production interfaces with the wider cognitive system including control processes memory non linguistic gestures and the perceptual system These chapters discuss a wide array of levels of representation from sentences to individual words speech sounds and articulatory gestures extending to discourse and the broader social context of speaking Detailed supporting chapters provide an overview of key issues in linguistic structure at each level of representation Authoritative yet concisely written the volume will be of interest to scholars and students working in cognitive psychology psycholinguistics cognitive neuroscience computer science audiology and education and related fields

Linguistic Superdiversity in Urban Areas Joana Duarte, Ingrid Gogolin, 2013-12-18 Rapidly increasing migration flows contribute to the development of multiple forms of social and cultural differentiation in urban areas or to super diversity Language diversity is an important part of the resulting new social and cultural constellations Although linguistic diversity is not a new phenomenon per se the response of individuals or education systems to it is still largely based on a monolingual habitus associating one nation or a region within a nation to one language Building on the top quality expertise of researchers from different academic fields the volume offers insights into the study of linguistic diversity from linguistic and education science perspectives The studies derive from different countries different disciplines different research traditions and methodological approaches all aiming towards a better understanding of actual linguistic reality and its consequences for individual language development and for education The book addresses an academic readership and experts who are interested in learning more about linguistic diversity as an inevitable effect of globalisation and on ways to deal with this reality in research as well as practise in urban areas

English Pronunciation Teaching and Research Martha C. Pennington, Pamela Rogerson-Revell, 2018-09-07 This book offers contemporary perspectives on English pronunciation teaching and research in the context of increasing multilingualism and English as an international language It reviews current theory and practice in pronunciation pedagogy language learning language assessment and technological developments and presents an expanded view of pronunciation in communication education and employment. Its eight chapters provide a comprehensive and up to date analysis of pronunciation and the linguistic and social functions it fulfils. Topics include pronunciation in first and second language acquisition, instructional approaches and factors impacting teachers' curriculum decisions, methods for assessing pronunciation, the use of technology for pronunciation teaching, learning and testing pronunciation, issues of teachers who are second language speakers and applications of pronunciation research and pedagogy in L1 literacy and speech therapy, forensic linguistics and health, workplace and political communication. The chapters also critically examine the research base supporting specific teaching approaches and identify research gaps in need of further investigation. This rigorous work will provide an invaluable resource for teachers and teacher educators in addition to researchers in the fields of applied linguistics, phonology and communication.
