significantly faster than cereals area. Average oilseeds yields, as with cereals, have not risen for three years.

Although developing country self-sufficiency in oilseeds has remained relatively constant, self-sufficiency for the byproducts—vegetable oils and protein meals—has declined (Figure 9). The self-sufficiency ratio in vegetable oils declined from about 128 percent in the late 1960s to nearly 100 percent in 1980, but recovered to 108-112 percent in recent years. Vegetable oil net exports declined from the 1965-75 average of 1.2 million metric tons to less than 1 million tons in the early 1980s (Figure 10). Vegetable oil exports have risen during the last three years as Malaysian palm oil production and exports increased and are expected to continue rising in the 1990s.

Cotton has been a major export crop for some developing countries. Yield increases contributed to nearly all of the 2-percent growth rate in output, since planted area changed little. As with cereals and vegetable oils, both cotton self-sufficiency and net exports declined. Self-sufficiency fell from more than 160 percent in the early 1960s to around 120 percent in the last several years. Net exports fell more than 15 percent during the same period.

Natural Resource and Technology Concerns

Future agricultural production gains in the developing countries will depend on land use and the continued adoption of yield-enhancing technology. The expansion in area planted to major crops (cereals, oilseeds, and cotton) has fallen well below the 0.7-percent long term growth trend during the last six years (Figure 11). Although productivity gains continued to boost production, the future for technological advances is uncertain.

Food Aid Projections For The Decade Of The 1990s:

Food Aid Projections for the Decade of the 1990s National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Board on Science and Technology for International Development, 1989-02-01 This book presents the results of a meeting held by the Board on Science and Technology for International Development At this meeting six groups of modelers presented their best estimates of the food aid food commodity trade picture during the period 1991 2000 These estimates are based on each modeler s own database and own assumptions about trends in global policy climate population and economics Issues for the 1990's, 1994 The ... Yearbook of Agriculture, 1980 A.I.D. Research and Development Abstracts, 1990 Food Aid Reconsidered Edward Clay, Olav Stokke, 2025-06-20 Food aid continues to be a high profile and perhaps the most controversial form of aid Food Aid Reconsidered Assessing the Impact on Third World Countries originally published in 1991 which concentrates on recent experience especially in Sub Saharan Africa provided a stocktaking on the state of the debate and the contribution that economics and other social sciences had made to resolving many of the controversies surrounding food aid at the time These issues include the gap between the potential and actual contribution of food aid on food security and agricultural production in developing countries European dairy aid to India and possible alternatives to exporting food from developed countries for providing humanitarian assistance to hungry people Today it can be read in its historical context Food, Agriculture, And Rural Policy Into The Twenty-first Century Milton C. Hallberg, 2019-04-12 This book contributes to 1995 policymaking by offering information concerning an array of issues fundamentally important to the U S agricultural and food sector It reviews a set of policy approaches for dealing with these issues and assesses trade offs among these alternative approaches Preparation for the 1990 farm bill United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, 1989 Nutrition, Eating for Good Health, 1993 The Hunger Report 1995 E. Messer, P. Uvin, 2005-11-04 The Hunger Report 1995 highlights progress during the past five years on the problems of food shortage poverty related hunger maternal child nutrition and health and micronutrient malnutrition It is constructed from papers and discussions presented at the five year follow up to the Bellagio Declaration Overcoming Hunger in the 1990s 1989 Individual essays by hunger researchers monitors and policy makers assess advances in achieving the Bellagio goals which are 1 to end famine deaths especially by moving food into zones of armed conflict 2 to end hunger in half the world s poorest households 3 to eliminate at least half the hunger of women and children by expanding maternal child health coverage and 4 to eliminate vitamin A and iodine deficiencies as public health problems Nutrition Deborah Takiff Smith, 1994 Preparation for the 1990 Farm Bill: Reform of Public Law 480 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, 1991 Nutrition, 1994 Review of U.S. International Food Assistance Programs United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs, 1990 Making of Canadian Food Aid Policy Mark W. Charlton, 1992-10-23 Since the Colombo Plan in the early 1950s food aid has been an important and highly visible component of the Canadian development assistance program Until the early 1970s however the Canadian food aid program was little more than a loosely connected collection of disparate programs designed to meet a host of sometimes conflicting objectives In the wake of the world food crisis of 1972-75 a growing number of groups began to question the developmental effectiveness of food aid In response the Canadian government undertook an extensive review and assessment of its food aid program which resulted in a series of new policy initiatives designed to change both the substance of food aid programs and the manner in which they were administered These changes marked a watershed in the history of the Canadian food aid program setting out the fundamental policy themes that have been consolidated and refined in the 1980s and early 1990s Market Forces and World Development Renee Prendergast, Frances Stewart, 1994-02-12 The increasing liberalization and globalisation of the world economy has not been accompanied by convergence in the various indicators of economic and social development The papers in this volume go some way towards explaining why the increasing reliance on market forces may lead to greater divergences in economic performance They also point to the importance for the development process of social solidarity and institutions which encourage co-operative approaches to problem solving

Overview of the Global Food and Population Situation United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science, Space, and Technology. Subcommittee on Natural Resources, Agriculture Research, and Environment, 1989 CFS., 1988 Agricultural Outlook, 2000 Our Common Journey National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Policy Division, Board on Sustainable Development, 1999-11-09 World human population is expected to reach upwards of 9 billion by 2050 and then level off over the next half century How can the transition to a stabilizing population also be a transition to sustainability How can science and technology help to ensure that human needs are met while the planet's environment is nurtured and restored Our Common Journey examines these momentous questions to draw strategic connections between scientific research technological development and societies efforts to achieve environmentally sustainable improvements in human well-being The book argues that societies should approach sustainable development not as a destination but as an ongoing adaptive learning process Speaking to the next two generations it proposes a strategy for using scientific and technical knowledge to better inform future action in the areas of fertility reduction urban systems agricultural production energy and materials use ecosystem restoration and biodiversity conservation and suggests an approach for building a new research agenda for sustainability science Our Common Journey documents large scale historical currents of social and environmental change and reviews methods for what-if analysis of possible future development pathways and their implications for sustainability The book also identifies the greatest threats to sustainability in areas such as human settlements agriculture industry and energy and explores the most promising opportunities for circumventing or mitigating these threats It goes on to discuss what indicators of change from children's birth weights to atmosphere chemistry will be most useful in monitoring a transition to sustainability Foreign Assistance, 1990
