Architecture and Welfare Thordis Arrhenius, Ellen Braae, Guttorm Ruud, 2025-01-27 Architecture was fundamental to the realization of welfare state policy in the Nordic countries translating democratic ideals into concrete spatial materializations. An inclusive notion of welfare for all was embraced by a generation of architects, landscape architects and planners who labored to give physical form to ideas of equality, collectivity and democracy producing a vast architectural output in Scandinavia during the postwar years. Today however the architectural legacy of this era is contested. Welfare for all no longer enjoys the social or political consensus it once did. This publication critically engages with this contested architectural legacy and provides a nuanced portrait of postwar welfare architecture coming to terms with a contentious past and facing an uncertain future. With newly commissioned photographic work by contemporary Nordic artists. Based on an interdisciplinary research project by KTH Stockholm Oslo School of Architecture University of Copenhagen. Internationally renowned contributors shed light on aspects of the relationship between architecture and welfare. Sustainable Communities and Urban Housing Montserrat Pareja-Eastaway, Nessa Winston, 2016-12-08 Since the start of the twenty first century urban communities have faced increasing challenges in housing affordability with environmental issues causing additional concern. It is clear that changes to urban housing are needed to enhance the resilience of cities and improve the economic, social and physical well being of residents. This book provides a comparative cross national perspective on urban housing and sustainability in Europe exploring the key barriers and drivers associated with sustainable urban development and community regeneration. Country specific chapters allow for easy comparison with each summarizing how sustainable housing operates in the country in question before going on to discuss the key barriers and drivers at play. This book brings a sustainability perspective to the comparative housing literature which frequently fails to integrate the social, economic and environmental pillars of sustainability. The book outlines many of the changes that professionals and residents will need to make to their practices and cultures in order to enhance housing resilience. Students, researchers and professionals with an interest in sustainable housing creation and regeneration will find this book an invaluable reference. Renewable Energy Bent Sorensen, 2018-12-14 This four volume set edited by a leading expert in the field brings together in one collection a series of papers that have been fundamental to the development of renewable energy as a defined discipline. Some of the papers were first published many years ago but they remain classics in their fields and retain their relevance to the understanding of current issues. The papers have been selected with the assistance of an eminent international editorial board. The set includes a general introduction and each volume is introduced by a new overview essay placing the selected papers in context. The range of subject matter is considerable including coverage of all the main renewable technologies the fundamental principles by which they function and the issues around their deployment such as planning integration and socio economic assessment Overall the set provides students teachers and researchers confronted with thousands of journal articles book chapters and grey literature stretching back decades with a ready made selection of and commentary on the most important key writings in renewable energy It will be an essential reference for libraries concerned with energy technology and the environment

Housing Development Andrew Golland,Ron Blake,2004 Brings together information on housing production housing provision and the housing environment highlighting the theoretical and policy contexts in which housing development takes place as an integrated process Women and the Environment Irwin Altman,Arza

Churchman,2013-06-29 This thirteenth volume in the series addresses an increasingly salient worldwide research design and policy issue women and physical environments We live in an era of worldwide social change Some nation states are fracturing or disintegrating migrations are resulting from political upheavals and economic opportunities some ethnic and national animosities are resurfacing and global and national economic systems are under stress Furthermore the variability of interpersonal and familial forms is increasing and cultural subgroups minorities women the physically challenged gays and lesbians are vigorously demanding their rights in societies and are becoming significant economic and political forces Although these social system changes affect many people their impact on women is especially salient Women are at the center of most forms of family life Whether in traditional or contemporary cultures women's roles in child rearing home management and community relations have and will continue to be central regardless of emerging and changing family structures And because of necessity and opportunity women are increasingly engaged in paid work in and outside the home women in most cultures have historically always worked but often not for pay Their influence in cultures and societies is also mounting in the social political and economic spheres In technological societies women are playing higher level roles though still in small numbers in economic and policy domains This trend is likely to accelerate in the twenty first century
