Jordaens Drawings:

Jordaens: Drawings Colour Plates Maria Peitcheva, 2015-10-19 Jacob Jordaens was one of three Flemish Baroque painters along with Peter Paul Rubens and Anthony van Dyck to bring prestige to the Antwerp school of painting. Like Rubens, Jordaens painted altarpieces, mythological and allegorical scenes, and after 1640, the year Rubens died, he was the most important painter in Antwerp for large scale commissions, and the status of his patrons increased in general. Besides a large output of monumental oil paintings, he was a prolific tapestry designer, a career that reflects his early training as a watercolor painter. Jordaens' importance can also be seen by his number of pupils: the Guild of St Luke records fifteen official pupils from 1621 to 1667, but six others were recorded as pupils in court documents and not the Guild records, so it is probable that he had more students than officially recorded. Among them were his cousin and his son Jacob. Like Rubens and other artists at that time, Jordaens' studio relied on his assistants and pupils in the production of his paintings. Not many of these pupils went on to fame themselves, however, a position in Jordaens' studio was highly desirable for young artists from across Europe.

Fifteenth- to Eighteenth-century European Drawings Egbert Haverkamp Begemann (Kunsthistoriker), Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), 1999. Early European art was a consuming interest of both Robert Lehman and his father Philip Lehman; an interest reflected in the remarkable number and quality of drawings they owned from the fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries. In addition to an important group of early German drawings, the collection includes a Saint Paul from a series associated with Jan van Eyck and the famous Scupstoel from the circle of Rogier van der Weyden, the only design for a decorative sculpture to survive from the fifteenth century. The great artists of the seventeenth century, Peter Paul Rubens, Jacob Jordaens, Claude Lorrain, and Rembrandt, among them, are also represented. Rembrandt by seven drawings, including the large study of Leonardo's Last Supper that would stay in his mind all through his career. Drawings by Antoine Watteau, Jean Honor Fragonard, Gabriel de Saint Aubin, Thomas Gainsborough, Paul Sandby, and George Romney are among the many from eighteenth century France and England. The volume discusses all 153 drawings at length, placing each in its art historical setting and complementing the discussion with comparative illustrations of related works. This e-book on the MetPublications website is also accompanied by links to related works, and under the Additional Resources tab are links to Met works of art and Heilbrunn Timeline of Art History essays and timelines.
