The background of the cover is a classical painting depicting a scene from Boccaccio's The Decameron. It shows seven people in a garden setting. On the right, a man in a red cap and tunic sits on a stone ledge, gesturing with his right hand while holding a lute and a book in his left. He is facing three women seated on the ground. One woman in a yellow and red dress is looking at him, while two others in purple and pink dresses look on. In the background, another woman in a purple dress sits on the ground, and a man in a red tunic stands near a large stone fountain. The scene is set in a lush garden with trees and a stone archway in the distance.

El Decamerón:

The Decameron Giovanni Boccaccio, 2023-07-07 In the time of a devastating pandemic seven women and three men withdraw to a country estate outside Florence to give themselves a diversion from the death around them Once there they decide to spend some time each day telling stories each of the ten to tell one story each day They do this for ten days with a few other days of rest in between resulting in the 100 stories of the Decameron The Decameron was written after the Black Plague spread through Italy in 1348 Most of the tales did not originate with Boccaccio some of them were centuries old already in his time but Boccaccio imbued them all with his distinctive style The stories run the gamut from tragedy to comedy from lewd to inspiring and sometimes all of those at once They also provide a detailed picture of daily life in fourteenth century Italy

Decameron Giovanni Boccaccio, 2004 Boccaccio's Decameron recasts the storytelling heritage of the ancient and medieval worlds into perennial forms that inspired writers from Chaucer and Shakespeare down to our own day

Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales provides a document of life at the time. Written in the vernacular of the Florentine language, it is considered a masterpiece of classical early Italian prose. In Italy during the time of the Black Death, a group of seven young women and three young men flee from plague-ridden Florence to a deserted villa in the countryside of Fiesole for two weeks. To pass the evenings, every member of the party tells a story each night, except for one day per week for chores and the holy days in which they do no work at all, resulting in ten nights of storytelling over the course of two weeks. Thus, by the end of the fortnight, they have told 100 stories. Each of the ten characters is charged as King or Queen of the company for one of the ten days in turn. This charge extends to choosing the theme of the stories for that day, and all but two days have topics assigned: examples of the power of fortune, examples of the power of human will, love tales that end tragically, love tales that end happily, clever replies that save the speaker, tricks that women play on men, tricks that people play on each other in general, examples of virtue. Only Dioneo, who usually tells the tenth tale each day, has the right to tell a tale on any topic he wishes due to his wit. Many authors have argued that Dioneo expresses the views of Boccaccio himself. Each day also includes a short introduction and conclusion to continue the frame of the tales by describing other daily activities besides story telling. These frame tale interludes frequently include transcriptions of Italian folk songs. The interactions among tales in a day or across days as Boccaccio spins variations and reversals of previous material form a whole and not just a collection of stories. The basic plots of the stories include mocking the lust and greed of the clergy, tensions in Italian society between the new wealthy commercial class and noble families, the perils and adventures of traveling merchants.
