Abstract

Background Oral submucous fibrosis is a chronic, progressive, scarring, precancerous condition of oral mucosa which on progression causes severe trismus.

Aim and Objectives To compare and evaluate the efficiency of buccal fat pad, platysmal mucocutaneous flap, nasolabial flap, collagen membrane graft, split thickness skin graft and temporoparietal fascia in reconstruction of surgical defect created by excision of fibrous bands in oral submucous fibrosis.

Results After 6 months of follow-up, the interincisal mouth opening was 40.0 mm in case of buccal fat pad, 24.5 mm in temporoparietal fascia flap group, 33.8 in collagen membrane graft group, 34.5 mm in platysma flap group, 34.7 mm in nasolabial flap group, 29.3 mm in split thickness skin graft. ANOVA statistical analysis for postoperative interincisal distance at various time intervals and between pre-, intra- and postoperative interincisal distances were carried out which showed the results were significant at  $p$  value  $< 0.05$  in all groups. No postoperative complications were noted in buccal fat pad group, split thickness skin graft group and collagen membrane group. However, platysmal group had flap necrosis and temporoparietal flap group patients had to undergo a second debulking procedure after one month.

Conclusion From our study, we concluded buccal fat pad yields superior results with respect to postoperative mouth opening and related complications.

Keywords Oral submucous fibrosis · Platysma flap · Temporoparietal flap · Buccal fat pad graft · Collagen membrane graft · Split thickness skin graft

Introduction

Oral submucous fibrosis (OSMF), first described in the early 1950s, is a potentially malignant disease predominantly seen in people of Asian descent.

It is an insidious, chronic disease affecting any part of the oral cavity and sometimes the pharynx [1]. Occasionally preceded by and/or associated with vesicle formation [2], it is always associated with a juxta-epithelial inflammatory reaction, followed by progressive hyalinization of the lamina propria [3]. The later subepithelial and submucosal myofibrosis leads to stiffness of the oral mucosa and deeper tissues with progressive limitation in opening of the mouth and protrusion of the tongue, thus causing difficulty in eating, swallowing and phonation [4].

The disease is predominantly seen in countries like India, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Pakistan, Taiwan, Southern China, Polynesia and Micronesia. An update was conducted on previous published studies conducted in different parts India till 2017, by Bari et al. [4]. After observing the results of those studies, the authors stated that the prevalence of OSMF has increased over the last four decades from 0.03 to 6.42%. [4].

Treatment of OSMF is a challenge, especially as the disease progresses. Two main modalities of treatment were described depending on grading of OSMF by Khanna et al. [5]: Medical treatment and Surgical treatment.

In Grades I and II of Khanna's classification system, medical line of treatment is the treatment of choice, whereas in Grades III and IV, surgery is the treatment of

Beyond Belief Robert P. Vande Kappelle, 2012-09-17 The current age marks the transition from modernity to postmodernity a period as impactful to the Western sensibility as any previous era The role of religion and the future of Christianity are at stake At this time of transition many thoughtful individuals find themselves at a quandary having reached a critical stage in their spiritual journey Prompted by academia science reason culture and their own experience they feel compelled to choose between the beliefs they inherited as children and the claims of science reason pluralism and secularism Beyond Belief suggests that one need not take an either or approach on these issues there is a better way one that embraces adventure and ambiguity science and religion reason and faith evolution and creation and finds ways to live creatively with realities for which there are no easy explanations Building on a paradigmatic journey of faith that involves three stages precritical critical and postcritical understanding Beyond Belief describes the quest for God and for authentic faith in the twenty first century The key point for this understanding is to replace belief with faith acknowledging that belief in doctrines is not central since they are themselves unprovable This new theological perspective requires rethinking many of our cherished doctrines including our understanding of God Jesus Scripture prayer miracles and revelation
