Common Sense Lisa Holderman,2008-01-01 This anthology examines the constructions of intelligence and intellectuality in popular television and the socio cultural implications of those constructions It considers the complexity of popular television images the influences of these images as they both verify and vilify intelligence and explores a range of representations of intelligence on television by looking at a variety of TV genres and through a variety of theoretical perspectives and methods Topics range from broad explorations of patterned representations on television to examinations of particular genres including science fiction and reality programming to in depth analyses of specific programs such as The Simpsons Buffy the Vampire Slayer and Six Feet Under This book is grounded in the assumption that knowledge and intelligence are currency in the economics of power and that given that the proliferation of certain images and the relative absence of others in fictional reality and fact based media play an important role in social order maintenance a critical examination of how intelligence is demonstrated portrayed and evaluated in the public sphere is crucial

Becoming Scientists Rusty Bresser,Sharon Fargason,2023-10-10 Most important to being a good science teacher is holding the expectation that all students can be scientists and think critically Providing a thinking curriculum is especially important for those children in diverse classrooms who have been underserved by our educational system Becoming Scientists Good science starts with a question perhaps from the teacher at the start of a science unit or from the children as they wonder what makes a toy car move how food decomposes or why leaves change color Using inquiry science children discover answers to their questions in the same way that scientists do they design experiments make predictions observe and describe offer and test explanations and share their conjectures with others In essence they construct their own understanding of how the world works through experimentation reflection and discussion Look into real classrooms where teachers practice inquiry science and engage students in the science and engineering practices outlined in the Next Generation Science Standards Rusty Bresser and Sharon Fargason show teachers how to do the following Build on students varied experiences background knowledge and readiness Respond to the needs of students with varying levels of English language proficiency Manage a diverse classroom during inquiry science exploration Facilitate science discussions Deepen their own science content knowledge As the authors state Inquiry science has little to do with textbooks and lectures and everything to do with our inherent need as a species to learn about and reflect on the world around us Join your students on a journey of discovery as you explore your world via inquiry

when the War on Drugs kicked into high gear and prison populations soared the increase in women's rate of incarceration has steadily outpaced that of men In Breaking Women Jill A McCorkel draws upon four years of on the ground research in a major US women's prison to uncover why tougher drug policies have so greatly affected those incarcerated there and how the very nature of punishment in women's detention centers has been deeply altered as a result Through compelling interviews with prisoners and state personnel McCorkel reveals that popular so called habilitation drug treatment programs force women to accept a view of themselves as inherently damaged aberrant addicts in order to secure an earlier release These programs work to enforce stereotypes of deviancy that ultimately humiliate and degrade the women The prisoners are left feeling lost and alienated in the end and many never truly address their addiction as the programs organizers may have hoped A fascinating and yet sobering study Breaking Women foregrounds the gendered and racialized assumptions behind tough on crime policies while offering a vivid account of how the contemporary penal system impacts individual lives Jill A McCorkel is Associate Professor of Sociology at Villanova University Is This Normal? Jolene Brighten, 2024-04-16 A
