Donne's Augustine Katrin Ettenhuber, 2011-07-07 A comprehensive re-examination of John Donne through his response to the most iconic religious figure in Western theology Saint Augustine of Hippo This book significantly enriches our understanding of the reading and writing culture of Renaissance England and of the religious debates and controversies in the decades leading up to the Civil War Religion, Allegory, and Literacy in Early Modern England, 1560-1640 John S. Pendergast, 2006 Using as a primary focus the manner in which Protestant and Catholic paradigms of the Word affect the understanding of how meaning manifests itself in material language this book develops a history of literacy between the middle of the sixteenth century and the middle of the seventeenth century The author emphasizes how literacy is defined according to changing concepts of philological manifestation and embodiment and how various social and political factors influence these concepts The study looks at literary texts such as The Fairie Queene early Shakespearean comedies sermons and poems by John Donne Latin textbooks and religious primers and educational and religious treatises which illustrate how language could be used to perform spiritual functions The cross section of texts serves to illustrate the pervasive applicability of the author's theories to early modern literature and culture and their relationship to literature the study of sixteenth and seventeenth century literature Protestant reading and exegetical strategies in contrast with Catholic strategies and secular versus spiritual literacies Words That Matter Judith H. Anderson, 1996 The grammar and rhetoric of Tudor and Stuart England prioritized words and word-like figures rather than sentences a prioritizing that had significant consequences for linguistic representation Examining a wide range of historical sources treatises grammars poems plays rhetorics logics dictionaries and sermons the author investigates how words matter as currency or memento graphic symbol or template icon or topos Writing and Religion in England, 1558-1689 Professor Anthony W Johnson, Professor Roger D Sell, 2013-04-28 The fruit of intensive collaboration among leading international specialists on the literature religion and culture of early modern England this volume examines the relationship between writing and religion in England from 1558 the year of the Elizabethan Settlement up until the Act of Toleration of 1689 Throughout these studies religious writing is broadly taken as being communicational in the etymological sense that is as a medium which played a significant role in the creation or consolidation of communities Some texts shaped or reinforced one particular kind of religious identity whereas others fostered communities which cut across the religious borderlines which prevailed in other areas of social interaction For a number of the scholars writing here such communal differences correlate with different ways of drawing on the resources of cultural memory The denominational spectrum covered ranges from several varieties of Dissent through via media Anglicanism to Laudianism and Roman Catholicism and there are also glances towards heresy and the mid seventeenth century s new atheism With respect to the range of different genres examined the volume spans the gamut from poetry fictional prose drama court masque sermons devotional works theological treatises confessions of faith church constitutions tracts and letters to history writing and translation Arranged in roughly chronological order Writing and Religion in England 1558 1689 presents chapters which explore religious writing within the wider contexts of culture ideas attitudes and law as well as studies which concentrate more on the texts and readerships of particular writers Several contributors embrace an inter arts orientation relating writing to liturgical ceremony painting music and architecture while others opt for a stronger sociological slant explicitly emphasizing the role of women writers and of writers from different sub cultural backgrounds
