Key Indicators for Family Planning Projects Rodolfo A. Bulatao, 1995-01-01 World Bank Discussion Paper No 304 Presents development projects as instruments of policy reform and institutional change Analyzes the global factors underlying the growing demand for institutional reform and describes why such reform is readily achieved through multilateral cooperation

Evaluating Health Projects Susan Stout, 1997-01-01 This book explores the wave of decentralization that has swept through Latin America and the projected institutional changes within the governments in the region Although it notes the ways in which decentralization implies a critique of past governing patterns the emphasis is on such potential consequences of governmental change as the strengthening of democratic participation in government and the improvement of local public service The book draws upon institutional experiments carried out at the state level to examine which decentralization strategies work best in Latin America It is organized around three major requirements for the success of decentralization Establishing the national fiscal framework Moving government closer to the people Improving municipal service delivery Tables illustrate the shift of revenues and expenditures from central authorities to intermediate levels of government

Targets and Indicators in World Bank Population Projects George Benedict Baldwin, 1992 The Bank should strengthen its use of international comparisons and trend analysis rather than increasing its use of target setting the use of demographic and health surveys should be the rule not the exception in Bank population and health projects and more attention should be given to program level than to project level performance

Poverty Reduction and the World Bank, 2000-01-01 Improvements in social indicators have been substantial over the past 25 years but they have not been the same for those at the top and bottom of the distribution In fact the social indicators for those at the bottom have worsened in some cases substantially This annual publication reports on World Bank activities in fiscal year 1999 and provides an overview of what the Bank is doing to help countries face the challenge of reducing poverty It also looks at the future of Bank assistance at the national global and community levels Action on these three fronts represents the beginnings of a new strategic direction to be formulated in an implementation note after discussion of the World Development Report 2000 2001 on poverty is complete This new strategic direction includes a major program of knowledge sharing dissemination training and informed debate centered around the World

Development Report and the Poverty Reduction Strategy Sourcebook Improving Health Sector Performance Hossein Jalilian, Vicheth Sen, 2011 There is growing international evidence that the effectiveness of health services stems primarily from the extent to which the incentives facing providers and consumers are aligned with better health objectives Efficiency in health service provision requires that providers and consumers have incentives to use healthcare resources in ways that generate the maximum health gains Equity in at least one sense requires that consumers requiring the same care are treated equally irrespective of their ability to pay Efficiency in the use of health services requires that consumers are knowledgeable about the services on offer and which are most appropriate to their needs The papers in this volume are selected from an international conference organised by the CDRI Cambodia that tried to deal with some of these issues With participation of international and local experts it aimed at collecting major experiences and innovative solutions from inside and outside the country to improve health sector performance with particular focus on institutions motivations and incentives
