School Study Every winter a small army of county agents and of extension workers from the agricultural colleges are engaged in teaching groups of farmers how to keep accounts In many cases bankers whose business depends in part on the prosperity of the farmers have joined in this work It must be confessed that the net results have been meager The time that a busy farmer can spend learning to keep accounts even in the comparatively slack winter season is too short his attention is too fully occupied with his usual work and frequently he has arrived at an age and acquired a state of mind which are not conducive to the learning of a new and fairly complicated subject This need not cause surprise nor be the occasion for discouragement An attempt to teach any of the standard subjects now studied in our high schools under such conditions would certainly meet with no greater success It would seem fairly safe to conclude that farm accounting can come into general practice only as the result of its adoption as a regular school subject To reach the largest possible number of our future farmers it should be placed at the earliest point in the curriculum that is permitted by the maturity of the student This would seem to be in the earlier years of the high school for farm accounting is certainly not more difficult than the average subject studied in this period Moreover every farmer needs to keep a complete set of accounts This is in striking contrast to the need for commercial accounting on the part of those who enter some business other than farming Only a small portion of these have practical use for a knowledge of general accounting In any fairly large business the accounting work is split up into simple operations each of which can be learned in a very short time
