Improving Army Planning For Future Multinational Coalition Operations:

Improving Army Planning for Future Multinational Coalition Operations Thomas S. Szayna, 2001 The Army Vision recognizes explicitly that in future operations Army forces will perform missions as part of a larger joint combined multinational force Given the importance that Army doctrine places on coalition operations and the capability gap between the U S Army and even the most sophisticated partner ground forces it will be critical to take steps to increase multinational force compatibility MFC before any deployment Preparing for such a future is one aspect of the Army s Title 10 functions and it entails finding ways to enhance the long term compatibility of its units with units of the most important and most likely coalition partners The Army s international activities IA most of which enhance MFC are the main vehicle for meeting this goal This study s principal purpose is to help improve the Army s planning of its IA activities in order to enhance the performance of ground forces in coalition operations across the spectrum of missions This entails two key steps 1 improve the organizational mechanisms to monitor and administer Army international activities and 2 devise a long term MFC plan

Capabilities-based Strategy for Army Security Cooperation Jennifer D. P. Moroney, Adam Grissom, Jefferson P. Marquis, 2007 This study outlines a planning framework for cultivating multinational force compatibility MFC with armies that are not traditional allies Such coalition partners are increasingly important to the Army in the post 9 11 security environment Multilateral military operations are often now conducted by coalitions of the willing rather than by alliances and many of these ad hoc coalitions include key contingents that have no history of sustained peacetime cooperation with the U S Army The Army has only very limited resources available to enhance compatibility with non allied partner armies especially compared to the resources devoted to compatibility with traditional allies such as the United Kingdom The challenge of enhancing compatibility and building partnership capacity with non core partner armies therefore requires an innovative approach to planning The Rise of European Security Cooperation Seth G. Jones, 2007-02 A systematic and comprehensive analysis of the significant increase in security cooperation among European states Assessing the Value of U.S. Army International Activities Jefferson P. Marquis, 2006 A number of important steps have been taken in recent years to improve the planning and management of Army International Activities AIA Still a need remains and is widely recognized for a high level assessment mechanism to allocate AIA resources more efficiently execute AIA programs more effectively and highlight the contributions of AIA to the National Military Strategy the DoD Security Cooperation Guidance and The Army Plan This report presents a framework for assessing the value of the Army's non combat interactions with other militaries It provides an overview of AIA programs and establishes their connection to the U S government's current strategy for security cooperation It also provides a matrix of eight AIA ends derived from top level national and Army guidance and eight AIA ways which summarize the various capabilities inherent in AIA programs Next the report presents a method for linking AIA ends and ways that involves a theoretical rationale for security cooperation selection criteria for AIA output and outcome indicators and related measures of performance and effectiveness The report also describes the new online AIA Knowledge Sharing System AIKSS that is being used to solicit programmatic and assessment data from AIA officials in the Army's Major Commands In addition the report includes the results of three test cases involving the Army Medical Department the National Guard Bureau and U S Army South that helped to identify potential problems in evaluating AIA and to suggest improvements in the proposed AIA assessment mechanism Finally the report contains an extensive list of output and outcome indicators that have been reviewed by AIA officials throughout the Army Publisher's website Quarterly Review of Military Literature ,2003 Parameters ,2001 America's Challenges in an Unstable World Frances K. Taw, 2000 Over the next decade political and economic considerations will often cause the United States to seek coalition partners despite its capability to act unilaterally in many circumstances While this is nothing new what is new is the U S Army's rapid modernization relative to its allies and potential coalition partners As part of Force XXI the Army plans to have a digitized division by 2000 a digitized corps by the end of fiscal 2004 and the entire force digitized by 2020 2025 As the Army progresses toward these goals it must ensure adequate compatibility between its digitized units and the rest of the Army The objective of this study was to determine how the Army's technological developments for Force XXI will affect multinational force compatibility and how significantly Modern Geopolitics and Security Amos N.
