value of social safety nets in developing countries as well as their effectiveness in these settings Social safety net programs SSNPs are critical because they keep those who are already vulnerable from falling deeper into poverty Analysing how social safety nets benefit the most disadvantaged and marginalized members of society by allowing those in need to become financially stable more resilient and open up more opportunities for themselves this book shows that social safety nets SSNs are a collection of social services designed to protect people from the effects of economic and emotional hardship Showing that the purpose of the safety net is not to provide permanent financial security but rather to provide temporary financial security during periodic shocks and how this applies in South Asia and also in parts of Africa this book will be of interest to all scholars and students of social policy sociology social work and Global South politics more generally Encyclopaedia of Human Rights Development of Under Privileged Anuradha V. Antimicrobial Resistance in Developing Countries Aníbal de J. Sosa, Denis K. Byarugaba, Carlos F. Amábile-Cuevas, Po-Ren Hsueh, Samuel Kariuki, Iruka N. Okeke, 2009-10-08 Avoiding infection has always been expensive Some human populations escaped tropical infections by migrating into cold climates but then had to procure fuel warm clothing durable housing and crops from a short growing season Waterborne infections were averted by owning your own well or supporting a community reservoir Everyone got vaccines in rich countries while people in others got them later if at all Antimicrobial agents seemed at first to be an exception They did not need to be delivered through a cold chain and to everyone as vaccines did They had to be given only to infected patients and often then as relatively cheap injectables or pills off a shelf for only a few days to get astonishing cures Antimicrobials not only were better than most other innovations but also reached more of the world's people sooner The problem appeared later After each new antimicrobial became widely used genes expressing resistance to it began to emerge and spread through bacterial populations Patients infected with bacteria expressing such resistance genes then failed treatment and remained infected or died Growing resistance to antimicrobial agents began to take away more and more of the cures that the agents had brought

Strategies for Increasing Productive Employment in Developing Countries with Special Reference to Sierra Leone Dr. Ibrahim B.S. Sesay, 2014-12-08 This book as pointed out by Professor Singer in his preface discussed divergent development problems facing developing countries Participants of the seminar from various African countries brought in case studies from their own countries as comparison with the Kenya case study where the seminar was held As a result of this comparative study field trips were organized by the seminar authorities In view of these facts and experiences gained from this seminar I was sufficiently stimulated for my task to write this book based on similar lines but with special reference to Sierra Leone My past experiences as a Labor Officer in the Ministry of Labor in Sierra Leone have in no small way also contributed to the success of the completion of this book for industrial relations readers to have interest in it On joining the Personnel and Administration Department of the Standard Bank I was moved to incorporate in my book a chapter on the role of banking particularly the role of Standard Bank formerly known as the British Bank of West Africa in Sierra Leone Readers will also find it in one of the chapters current economic development taking place in Africa particularly regional groupings for example the Mano River Union between Sierra Leone Guinea and Liberia and The Economic Community of West African States ECOWAS and the now defunct East African Economic Community For this reason this book will be of tremendous use to planners and economists bankers industrialists teachers and various people from all walks of life concerned with the development of their countries but it is more particularly useful to Sierra Leoneans because of the many references related to Sierra Leone

Providing budget support to developing countries Great Britain: National Audit Office, 2008-02-08

Budget support is aid provided directly to a partner government's central exchequer and aims to reduce poverty through helping to fund the poverty reduction strategy of the beneficiary country DFID's use of budget support has risen to 461 million representing nearly twenty per cent of bilateral expenditure This study examines the aims of budget support what it is achieving how DFID manages the risks of using it and how DFID takes individual funding decisions The report finds that budget support has often enabled partner governments to increase expenditure on priority areas resulted in partner governments providing more services particularly in health and education helped increase the capacity of partner governments to plan and deliver services effectively and to develop better poverty focused policies helped partner governments to strengthen their financial management systems and encouraged other donors to support such reforms facilitated donor alignment to and support for the developing nation's own strategies and reinforced existing economic stability and good economic management But evidence on whether budget support has yielded better value for money than other forms of aid is not conclusive While budget support has some advantages compared to other forms of aid it also carries significant risks which need to be better managed Monitoring achievement is challenging and DFID does not always set out what it expects to achieve or by when Formal monitoring frameworks do not always track progress in remedying weaknesses in financial systems And monitoring of human rights one of the key criteria for giving budget support is not yet systematic Weaknesses in available statistics continue to limit the ability to monitor results Developing country governments may not be capable of using UK funds efficiently and effectively or may misuse them for political reasons or through corruption

Fueling Development ,1992 Connecting Landlocked Developing Countries to Markets ,2011 Based on new analytical research and case studies the authors provide insights on what works and does not work and they offer policy recommendations to address these issues Development Co-operation Report 1999 Efforts and Policies of the Members of the Development Assistance Committee OECD,2000-01-31 The 1999 report of the OECD Development Assistance Committee on its members developement co operation activities Tax in Developing Countries Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: International Development Committee,2012-08-23 This report highlights the importance of tax collection in developing countries and recommends that the UK s aid programme should increase its focus on supporting tax authorities This is equally valid for all forms of taxation including VAT personal income taxation and corporate taxation It is also essential that taxes are paid on a fair and equal basis by all New tax rules on developing countries the Controlled Foreign Companies CFC rules are designed to discourage UK owned corporations from using tax havens Traditionally these rules have applied to all UK owned corporations both those operating in the UK and those operating overseas Under the new rules however this will apply only to corporations operating in the UK making it easier for those operating in developing countries to use tax havens A number of NGOs have campaigned vigorously against the changes with ActionAid estimating that developing countries may lose up to 4 billion in tax revenues as a result The UK Government does not accept this estimate but does not deny that there will be some cost to developing countries The Committee recommends that subject to the outcome of its own analysis the Government should consider reversing the change as a matter of urgency The Committee also received evidence which argued that the Government should require UK owned companies to report their financial information on a country by country basis rather than on an aggregate basis The Government is reluctant to act unless other EU countries do likewise but the Committee believes that it should act unilaterally
