Economics of International Environmental Agreements M. Özgür

Kayalica, Selim Çağatay, Hakan Mıhçı, 2017-02-17 International environmental agreements provide a basis for countries to address ecological problems on a global scale. However, countries are heterogeneous with respect to their economic structures and to the problems relating to the environment that they encounter. Therefore, economic externalities and global environmental conflicts are common and can cause problems in implementation and compliance with international agreements. Economics of International Environmental Agreements illuminates those issues and factors that might cause some countries or firms to take different positions on common problems. This book explores why international environmental agreements deal with some problems successfully but fail with others. The chapters address issues that are global in nature, such as transboundary pollution, provision of global public goods, individual preferences of inequality aversion, global cooperation, self-enforcing international environmental agreements, emission standards, abatement costs, environmental quota, technology agreement and adoption, and international institutions. They examine the necessary conditions for the improved performance of international environmental agreements, how cooperation among countries can be improved, and the incentives that can be created for voluntary compliance with international environmental agreements. This text is of great importance to academics, students, and policy makers who are interested in environmental economics, policy, and politics, as well as environmental law.

Exploring both these treaties and the relevant regional jurisprudence, this monograph provides the first analysis of the ground-breaking environmental human rights law being developed in Latin America and the Caribbean. The key feature of the regional law is the priority it gives to equality and non-discrimination for vulnerable persons and groups, environmental defenders, local communities, and indigenous peoples. This book brings practitioners and academics up to date with the legal tools for protecting people and planet.

An Unfinished Foundation Ken Conca, 2015-07-13 Why is the United Nations not more effective on global environmental challenges? The UN Charter mandates the global organization to seek four noble aspirations: international peace and security rule of law among nations human rights for all people and social progress through development On environmental issues however the UN has understood its charge much more narrowly it works for better law between nations and better development within them This approach treats peace and human rights as unrelated to the world s environmental problems despite a large body of evidence to the contrary In this path breaking book a leading scholar of global environmental governance critiques the UN s failure to use its mandates on human rights and peace as tools in its environmental work The book traces the institutionalization and performance of the UN s law and development framework and the parallel silence on rights and peace Despite some important gains the traditional approach is failing for some of world s most pressing and contentious environmental challenges and has lost most of the political momentum it once enjoyed The disastrous Rio 20 Summit laid this fact bare as assembled governments failed to find meaningful agreement on any of the most pressing issues By not treating the environment as a human rights issue the UN fails to mobilize powerful tools for accountability in the face of pollution and resource degradation And by ignoring the conflict potential around natural resources and environmental protection efforts the UN misses opportunities to transform the destructive cycle of violence and vulnerability around resource extraction The book traces the history of the UN s traditional approach maps its increasingly apparent limits and suggests needed reforms Detailed case histories for each of the four mandate domains flag several promising initiatives while identifying barriers to transformation Its core implication the UN s environmental efforts require not just a managerial reorganization but a conceptual revolution one that brings to bear the full force of the organization s mandate Peacebuilding conflict sensitivity rights based frameworks and accountability mechanisms can be used to enhance the UN s environmental effectiveness and legitimacy

Managing Natural Resources for Development in Africa Washington Odongo Ochola, P. C. Sanginga, Isaac Bekalo, 2010

The complex and dynamic interlinks between natural resource management NRM and development have long been recognized by national and international research and development organizations and have generated voluminous literature. However, much of what is available in the form of university course books, practical learning manuals and reference materials in NRM is based on experiences from outside Africa. Managing Natural Resources for Development in Africa A Resource Book provides an understanding of the various levels at which NRM issues occur and are being addressed scientifically, economically, socially and politically. The book's nine chapters present state-of-the-art perspectives within a holistic African context. The book systematically navigates the tricky landscape of integrated NRM with special reference to Eastern and Southern Africa against the backdrop of prevailing local, national, regional and global social, economic and environmental challenges. The authors' wide experience, the rich references made to emerging challenges and opportunities and the presentation of different tools, principles, approaches, case studies and processes make the book a rich and valuable one-stop resource for postgraduate students, researchers, policymakers and NRM practitioners. The book is designed to help the reader grasp in depth NRM perspectives and presents innovative guidance for research design and problem solving including review questions, learning activities and recommended further reading. The book was developed through a writeshop process by a multi-disciplinary team of lecturers from the University of Nairobi, Egerton University, Kenyatta University, the University of Zimbabwe, the University of Malawi, Makerere University and the University of Dar es Salaam. In addition, selected NRM experts from regional and international research organizations including the World Agroforestry Center (ICRAF), the Africa Forest Forum (RUFORUM), IIRR and the International Development Research Centre (IDRC) participated in the writeshop and contributed material to the book.
