Cost evaluation strategies for technologies tested under the environmental technology verification program , Global Environmental Commons Eric Brousseau, Tom Dedeurwaerdere, Pierre-André Juvet, Marc Willinger, 2012-07-26

Environmental challenges and the potential solutions to address them have a direct effect on living standards the organization of economies major infrastructures and modes of urbanization Since the publication of path breaking contributions on the governance of environmental resources in the early 1990s many political initiatives have been taken numerous governance experiments have been conducted and a large multi disciplinary field of research has opened up This interdisciplinary book takes stock of the knowledge that has accumulated to date and addresses new challenges in the provision of environmental goods It focuses on three essential dimensions with respect to governance First it addresses the issue of designing governance solutions through analyzing systems of rules and levels of organization in the governance and management of environmental issues Second it draws renewed attention to the negotiation processes among stakeholders playing a crucial role in reaching agreements over issues and solutions and in choosing and implementing particular policy instruments Finally it shows that compliance depends on a combination of formal rules enforced by recognized authorities and informal obligations such as social and individual norms The evolution of the research frontiers on environmental governance shows that more legitimate and informed processes of collective decision and more subtle and effective ways of managing compliance can contribute to more effective policy However this book also illustrates that more democratic and effective governance should rely on more direct and pluralistic forms of involvement of citizens and stakeholders in the collective decision making processes

Perception of the Environment Tim Ingold, 2021-11-29 In this work Tim Ingold offers a persuasive new approach to understanding how human beings perceive their surroundings He argues that what we are used to calling cultural variation consists in the first place of variations in skill Neither innate nor acquired skills are grown incorporated into the human organism through practice and training in an environment They are thus as much biological as cultural To account for the generation of skills we have therefore to understand the dynamics of development And this in turn calls for an ecological approach that situates practitioners in the context of an active engagement with the constituents of their surroundings The twenty three essays comprising this book focus in turn on the procurement of livelihood on what it means to dwell and on the nature of skill weaving together approaches from social anthropology ecological psychology developmental biology and phenomenology in a way that has never been attempted before The book is set to revolutionise the way we think about what is biological and cultural in humans about evolution and history and indeed about what it means for human beings at once organisms and persons to inhabit an environment The Perception of the Environment will be essential reading not only for anthropologists but also for biologists psychologists archaeologists geographers and philosophers This edition includes a new Preface by the author

Gut Feelings Gerd Gigerenzer, 2008-06-24 Why is split-second decision making superior to deliberation? Gut Feelings delivers the science behind Malcolm Gladwell's Blink. Reflection and reason are overrated according to renowned psychologist Gerd Gigerenzer. Much better qualified to help us make decisions is the cognitive, emotional and social repertoire we call intuition: a suite of gut feelings that have evolved over the millennia specifically for making decisions. Gladwell drew heavily on Gigerenzer's research. But Gigerenzer goes a step further by explaining just why our gut instincts are so often right. Intuition, it seems, is not some sort of mystical chemical reaction but a neurologically based behavior that evolved to ensure that we humans respond quickly when faced with a dilemma.
