Paul W. Day

John Mulgan:

Long Journey to the Border Vincent O'Sullivan, 2011 John Mulgan was part of a gifted yet uneasy group of young New Zealanders who made their mark between the wars men such as Ian Milner James Bertram Dan Davin and Geoffrey Cox An Oxford graduate he worked as a publisher at Oxford University Press before leaving for the front in World War Two Fascinated but sometimes troubled by his home country Mulgan saw New Zealand as a place of challenge and austere demands a land that produced men more practical than cultivated In his famous novel Man Alone he depicted it as a tough often heartless country characterised by the solitary figure who has come to symbolise the male New Zealand psyche He wrote more warmly of the place and the people in the poignant memoir Report on Experience published after his death Mulgan was a glamorous figure handsome gifted and good at anything he attempted His last years were spent fighting in the Allied cause in Egypt and Greece where he distinguished himself But there were darker threads too which culminated in his decision to take his own life in Cairo just after the end of the war and aged only 33 In this penetrating biography Vincent O Sullivan draws on a large collection of personal papers official records and contemporary memoirs to paint a vivid portrait of a man who came to represent so much about his country and his time John Mulgan Paul W. Day, 1968 John Mulgan 1911 1945 one of the most attractive figures of his war time generation had a brief but distinguished career as a scholar at Auckland and Oxford as a journalist and publisher and as a soldier in Africa and Greece His literary reputation rests on two comparatively short books of continuing impact the bleak novel Man Alone and the deeply felt memoir Report on Experience The real nature of his achievement both as man and writer and the reasons for his mysterious death by suicide in Cairo at the end of the war are re examined here Back cover Never a Soul at Home Stuart Murray, 1998 The generation of writers that came to prominence in the 1930s laid down the framework for modern New Zealand literature This book looks at the beginnings of those writers careers at the influences of events like the Depression and the onset of war and at the role of cultural institutions Ultimately it is about the myths that surround the 1930s writers and the myths they made Flight of the Phoenix James M. Bertram, 1985 A Good Mail John Mulgan, 2011 The enigmatic figure of John Mulgan remains a striking presence in New Zealand culture his sole novel Man alone a landmark in the emergence of local literature This book presents a generous selection of his letters home letters to those he cared about but from whom he felt a permanent separation When he left New Zealand in 1933 he had declared I think I m going to have the best year of my life That confident expectation carried him through the first part of the thirties but the growing political unrest in Europe severely dampened his enthusiasm it s a hell of a world we live in made him more and more conscious of his separation from whatever home had come to mean and strengthened his desire to see again his parents his wife and the son he scarcely knew It was a desire that remained unfulfilled his life ended by his own hand These letters tell his story Back cover Man Alone John Mulgan, 2021-10-01 Man Alone is one of the foundation stones of New Zealand literature Almost all copies of the first edition published in England in 1939 were destroyed in the Blitz When it was republished in New Zealand in 1949 after the author's suicide in Cairo in 1945 the publisher Paul's Book Arcade made a number of changes for unknown reasons This edition restores John Mulgan's original text for the first time Johnson an English WWI veteran comes to New Zealand to find a new life In Auckland he is caught up in the Great Depression riots and heads south to the central North Island where he works as a farm hand An affair with his boss's wife and the accidental killing of his boss cause him to flee across rough hill country and by the end of the novel he is contemplating leaving the country to fight in the Spanish Civil War Man Alone is a portrait of an existential loner and a testament to the necessity of comradeship in times of hardship Cover Selwyn Blount dustjacket 1939 private collection

Picking Up the Traces Lawrence Jones, 2003 The story of the generation of New Zealand writers who came of age in the 1930s and who deliberately and decisively changed the course of literature is told in this book shedding important new light on the key participants including Allen Curnow Denis Glover and Robin Hyde The movement is traced through small circulation magazines and small press publications from 1932 to 1941 The repudiations and loyalties by which the movement defined itself are explored including its opposition to the literary establishment and to late Georgian verse its naming of its precursors and allies from the 1920s and its choice of overseas models such as the British Moderns and the new American short story writers for the creation of a new literature oppose the cultural myths supported by the literary establishment and the writers' responses to the world wide social upheavals of the period the Depression the international crises of 1935 to 1939 and World War II

The Settler's Plot Alex Calder, 2013-11-01 A study of the relationship between writing place and the history of the Pakeha European settlement in New Zealand this book explores the most frequently chosen settings in classic New Zealand literature the beach the farm the bush and the suburb and reflects on the plots and storylines that go with them Through fascinating and unpredictable readings of some of the country's greatest works writers such as Curnow Frame Mansfield and Sargeson are viewed from new angles while neglected masterpieces by Guthrie Smith and Maning are deemed central to New Zealand tradition Topics include identity cross culturalism the settling and unsettling of land suburbanization and the role of distance

Politics of Forgetting Martyn Brown,2019-04-24 Greece was a poor country in turmoil and pain during the 1940s A military dictatorship was followed by invasion and terrifying occupation by Germany and its allies starvation civil war political unrest and mutiny in its free military armed forces New Zealand entered this arena and found a bond with a people that it still celebrates to this day Absent from the New Zealand national storytelling is the complex divisive and sometimes violent and surreal relationship between the two countries and the inescapable influence of Britain The New Zealand Greek story stretches from the mountains and open country of Greece and Crete to Middle East deserts autumn swept plains of Italy and the blood splattered streets of post liberated Athens New Zealand official state memory emphasizes some things and ignores the unpalatable It also conceals its assertiveness with Britain over the latter s Greek policies Terranglia Joseph Jones,1966 Changing Times Jenny Carlyon,Diana Morrow,2014-02-01 From the golden weather of postwar economic growth through the globalization economic challenges and protest of the 1960s and 1970s to the free market revolution and new immigrants of the 1980s and 1990s and beyond this account the most complete and comprehensive
