existential suffering of older citizens is such that some people under the age of 65 find it difficult to conceive of a long term future persons over 85 have proven that aging does not necessarily preclude a healthy and productive life Extraordinary progress in both curative and preventive medicine justifies optimism about the quality of life and state of well being that can be enjoyed even in great old age We should look to professionals in diverse fields to develop creative solutions to the inevitable issues that will arise with aging Governments must prepare for the future health of their citizens by making long term investments to educate all sectors of society in the value of good nutrition exercise and lifestyles that enhance well being throughout life Also governments should realize that the main cause of health care expenditure is serious illness which occurs in persons of all ages and not predominantly in older people Early detection can help save lives as well Health and longevity of life will ultimately end as a political issue What is needed is long term government investments necessary for a viable health policy The question arises will world leaders be able to commit to such a policy Two major socioeconomic phenomena may have a regulating effect on this issue The first is the emergence of pressure groups that have come into being in response to a particular health issue such as AIDS The second is the emergence of ethics committees in developed nations that deal solely with health issues The Blackwell Companion to Sociology Judith R Blau,2008-04-15 The Blackwell Companion to Sociology is a milestone collection of new essays by renowned sociologists covering both the traditions and strengths of the field as well as newer developments and directions Authors from the US the UK Europe and elsewhere have contributed to this all in one reference work highlighting the relevance of interdisciplinary and international perspectives while at the same time representing the scope and quality of sociology in its current form Towards User-Centric Transport in Europe Beate Müller,Gereon Meyer,2018-09-18 In order to build a sustainable transport system for people and goods that meets the needs of all users a truly integrated and seamless approach is needed and the full potential of transformative technologies has to be exploited This can only be achieved if user centeredness cross modality and technology transfer become the paradigm of shaping future transport Mobility4EU is a project funded by the European Commission that focusses on these topics and is working on delivering an action plan towards a user centric and cross modal European transport system in 2030 The authors of this contributed volume are dedicated scholars and practitioners connected to Mobility4EU either as partners or external contributors Their contributions focus on understanding user needs and report on technologies and approaches that support the tailoring of a user centered cross modal transport system for passengers and freight on long distances and in the urban context Future of Health Care and the Elderly (geriatric Medicine) United States.
