L'Assommoir ILLUSTRATED Emile Zola, 2020-10-07 L'Assommoir is the seventh novel in Émile Zola's twenty-volume series Les Rougon-Macquart. Usually considered one of Zola's masterpieces, the novel is a study of alcoholism and poverty in the working class. The Assommoir, the Prelude to Nana Emile Zola, 2017-05-24 This is a new edition of The Assommoir. L'Assommoir The Prelude to Nana originally published in 1885 by Vizetelly and the dark love story Madeleine Férat 1868 his last novel before he started his masterful Rougon-Macquart 20-novel series. Émile Zola's works include novels, dramas, poetry, and criticism, among which is his famous Les Rougon-Macquart 1871-1893, a cycle of twenty novels which depict various aspects of life and society such as The Fortune of the Rougons, La Fortune des Rougon originally published in 1871 and the first novel of the series The Rush For The Spoil, La Curée in 1872, The Conquest of Plassans, La Conquête de Plassans in 1874, The Assommoir, The Prelude to Nana, L'Assommoir in 1877, the seventh novel of the series about the suffering of the Parisian working class Nana 1880, the ninth installment which deals with prostitution Piping Hot, Pot-Bouille in 1882, the tenth novel of the cycle and Zola's most sarcastic satire which describes daily life in a newly constructed block of flats in late nineteenth-century Paris The Ladies' Paradise 1883, the eleventh novel, original title Au Bonheur des Dames which focuses on Octave Mouret who in Piping Hot meets Caroline Houssin, the owner of a small silk shop Germinal 1885, the thirteenth novel in the series which depicts the mining industry and is considered by some as his masterpiece and The Soil, La Terre in 1887, all published by Adeptio Editions. Zola's open letter to French president Félix Faure under the headline J'accuse published on the front page of the newspaper L'Aurore on January 13, 1898, charging various French officials with a terrible miscarriage of justice, reopened the case of the Jewish army officer Captain Alfred Dreyfus who had been sentenced to Devil's Island. For that Zola was himself sentenced to a year in prison but fled to England, returning one year later after Dreyfus' name had been cleared. Dreyfus was reinstated as officer and decorated with the Legion of Honor. L'Assommoir Emile Zola, 2021-05-22 The novel is principally the story of Gervaise Macquart who is featured briefly in the first novel in the series La Fortune des Rougon, running away to Paris with her shiftless lover Lantier to work as a washerwoman in a hot, busy laundry in one of the seedier areas of the city. L'Assommoir begins with Gervaise and her two young sons being abandoned by Lantier who takes off for parts unknown with another woman. Though at first she swears off men altogether, eventually she gives in to the advances of Coupeau, a teetotal roofer, and they are married. The marriage sequence is one of the most famous set pieces of Zola's work; the account of the wedding party's impromptu and chaotic trip to the Louvre is one of the novelist's most famous passages. Through a combination of happy circumstances, Gervaise is able to realise her dream and raise enough money to open her own laundry. The couple's happiness appears to be complete with the birth of a daughter, Anna, nicknamed Nana the protagonist of Zola's later novel of the same title. However later in the story we witness the downward trajectory of Gervaise's life from this happy high point. Coupeau is injured in a fall from the roof of a new hospital he is working on and during his lengthy convalescence he takes first to idleness then to gluttony and eventually to drink. In only a few months Coupeau becomes a vindictive wife-beating alcoholic with no intention of trying to find more work. Gervaise struggles to keep her home together but her excessive pride leads her to a number of embarrassing failures and before long everything is going downhill. Gervaise becomes infected by her husband's newfound laziness and in an effort to impress others spends her money on lavish feasts and accumulates uncontrolled debt. The home is further disrupted by the return of Lantier who is warmly welcomed by Coupeau but by this point losing interest in both Gervaise and life itself and becoming seriously ill. The ensuing chaos and financial strain is too much for Gervaise who loses her laundry shop and is sucked into a spiral of debt and despair. Eventually she too finds solace in drink and like Coupeau slides into heavy alcoholism. All this prompts Nana already suffering from the chaotic life at home and getting into trouble on a daily basis to run away from her parents' home and become a casual prostitute.

mile douard Charles Antoine Zola was a French novelist, journalist, playwright, the best known practitioner of the literary school of naturalism and an important contributor to the development of theatrical naturalism. According to major Zola scholar and biographer Henri Mitterand, Naturalism contributes something more than realism; the attention brought to bear on the most lush and opulent aspects of people and the natural world. The realist writer reproduces the object's image impersonally while the naturalist writer is an artist of temperament. He was a major figure in the political liberalization of France and in the exoneration of the falsely accused and convicted army officer Alfred Dreyfus, which is encapsulated in the renowned newspaper headline: "J'accuse Zola." Zola was nominated for the first and second Nobel Prize in Literature in 1901 and 1902.

L'Assommoir Illustrated Émile Zola, 2021-04-10. Abandoned by her lover and left to bring up their two children alone, Gervaise Macquart has to fight to earn an honest living. When she accepts the marriage proposal of Monsieur Coupeau, it seems as though she is on the path to a decent, respectable life at last. But with her husband's drinking and the unexpected appearance of a figure from her past, Gervaise's plans begin to unravel tragically. The Drinking Den, The Dram Shop, caused a sensation when it was first published with its gritty depiction of the poverty and squalor, slums and drinking houses of the Parisian underclass. The seventh novel in Zola's great Rougon-Macquart cycle, it was the work that made his reputation. And in his moving portrayal of Gervaise's struggle for happiness, Zola created one of the most sympathetic heroines in nineteenth-century literature.
