Acquiring Culture (Psychology Revivals) Gustav Jahoda, Ioan Lewis,2015-03-27 Until the 70s and 80s anthropologists studying different cultures had mainly confined themselves to the behaviour and idea systems of adults Psychologists on the other hand working mainly in Europe and America had studied child development in their own settings and simply assumed the universality of their findings Thus both disciplines had largely ignored a crucial problem area the way in which children from birth onwards learn to become competent members of their culture This process which has been called the quintessential human adaptation constitutes the theme of this volume originally published in 1988 It derives from a workshop held at the London School of Economics which brought together fieldworkers who in their studies had paid more than usual attention to children in their cultures Their experience and foci of interest were varied but this very diversity serves to illuminate different facets of the acquisition of culture by children ranging in age from pre verbal infants to adolescents Evolutionarily primed for culture learning children are responsive to a rich web of influences from subtle and indirect as in their music and dance to direct teaching in the family guided by culture specific ideas about child psychology Some of the salient things they learn relate to gender status and power critical for the functioning of all societies The introductory essay provides the necessary historical background of the development of child study in both anthropology and psychology and outlined how future research in the ethnography of childhood should proceed The book concludes with an annotated bibliography providing a guide to the literature from 1970 onwards

Children's Play in Diverse Cultures Jaipaul L. Roopnarine, James Ewald Johnson, Frank H. Hooper, 1994-01-01 This book illuminates play as a universal and culture specific activity It provides needed information about the behavior of children in diverse cultural contexts as well as about the play of children in unassimilated cultural or subcultural contexts It offers readers the opportunity to develop greater sensitivity to and better understanding of the important cultural differences that confront early childhood teachers and teacher educators     Talking Like Children Elise Berman, 2019-01-25 Children in the Marshall Islands do many things that adults do not They walk around half naked They carry and eat food in public without offering it to others They talk about things they see rather than hiding uncomfortable truths They explicitly refuse to give Why do they do these things Many think these behaviors are a natural result of children's innate immaturity But Elise Berman argues that children are actually taught to do things that adults avoid to be rude inappropriate and immature Before children learn to be adults they learn to be different from them Berman's main theoretical claim therefore is also a novel one age emerges through interaction and is a social production In Talking Like Children Berman analyzes a variety of interactions in the Marshall Islands all broadly based around exchange adoption negotiations efforts to ask for or avoid giving away food contentious debates about supposed child abuse In these dramas both large and small age differences emerge through the decisions people make the emotions they feel and the power they gain Berman's research includes a range of methods participant observation video and audio recordings interviews children's drawings that yield a significant corpus of data including over 80 hours of recorded naturalistic social interaction Presented as a series of captivating stories Talking Like Children is an intimate analysis of speech and interaction that shows what age means Like gender and race age differences are both culturally produced and socially important The differences between Marshallese children and adults give both groups the ability to manipulate social life in distinct but often complementary ways These differences produce culture itself Talking Like Children establishes age as a foundational social variable and a central concern of anthropological and linguistic research     Parent-Child Socialization in Diverse Cultures Jaipaul L.
