Internal Revenue Service, 1989      Bird on Fire Andrew Ross, 2011-10-27 Phoenix Arizona is one of America's fastest growing metropolitan regions It is also its least sustainable one sprawling over a thousand square miles with a population of four and a half million minimal rainfall scorching heat and an insatiable appetite for unrestrained growth and unrestricted property rights In Bird on Fire eminent social and cultural analyst Andrew Ross focuses on the prospects for sustainability in Phoenix a city in the bull's eye of global warming and also the obstacles that stand in the way. Most authors writing on sustainable cities look at places that have excellent public transit systems and relatively high density such as Portland, Seattle or New York. But Ross contends that if we can't change the game in fast growing low density cities like Phoenix, the whole movement has a major problem. Drawing on interviews with 200 influential residents from state legislators, urban planners, developers and green business advocates to civil rights champions, energy lobbyists, solar entrepreneurs and community activists, Ross argues that if Phoenix is ever to become sustainable, it will occur more through political and social change than through technological fixes. Ross explains how Arizona's increasingly xenophobic immigration laws, science denying legislature and growth at all costs business ethic have perpetuated social injustice and environmental degradation. But he also highlights the positive changes happening in Phoenix, in particular the Gila River Indian Community's successful struggle to win back its water rights, potentially shifting resources away from new housing developments to producing healthy local food for the people of the Phoenix Basin. Ross argues that this victory may serve as a new model for how green democracy can work, redressing the claims of those who have been aggrieved in a way that creates long term benefits for all. Bird on Fire offers a compelling take on one of the pressing issues of our time, finding pathways to sustainability at a time when governments are dismally failing in their responsibility to address climate change.

Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 ,1987 Generic EIS for Nuclear Power Plant Operating Licenses Renewal ,1996 The Economics and Politics of Sports Facilities Wilbur C. Rich,2000-05-30 Rich and his contributing authors provide a political and economic analysis of sports stadium construction in the United States the impact it has on the sports industry itself and on the host communities in which stadiums and arenas are built The book brings together the research of leading academic analysts of sports in American society and gives a candid assessment of the claims and benefits the sports industry makes in its continuing promotion of new stadium construction Focusing on Baltimore Cleveland Chicago Boston Detroit New Orleans Toledo and Phoenix the authors examine the topic from the perspectives of history politics and economics and in doing so they raise several questions about taxpayer and community protection issues Specifically what do communities really get out of these facilities They point out that even as new and more expensive facilities are being built Congress has not provided taxpayers and cities any real protection from the risks involved in stadium investment Rich and his contributors examine how the pro stadium coalitions mobilize and explain why stadium supporters manage to win most of their construction initiatives In doing so the contributors challenge the conventional wisdom that stadiums stimulate economic development and provide good jobs On the contrary they have not lived up to the promises owners made to their host communities Neither have they generated high paying jobs nor have they met their operating costs The book concludes with ways in which sports franchise owners can be held more accountable to their communities The result is a powerful well reasoned skeptical but fair assessment of a growing phenomenon and an important resource for professionals and academics in all fields of public policy administration and urban development and management BoogarLists | Directory of Chambers of Commerce , Sunburnt Cities Justin Hollander,2011-01-18 In recent years there has been a growing focus on urban and environmental studies and the skills and techniques needed to address the wider challenges of how to create sustainable communities Central to that demand is the increasing urgency of addressing the issue of urban decline and the response has almost always been to pursue growth policies to attempt to reverse that decline The track record of growth policies has been mixed at best Until the first decade of the twenty first century decline was assumed to be an issue only for former industrial cities the so called Rust Belt But the sudden reversal in growth in the major cities of the American Sunbelt has shown that urban decline can be a much wider issue Justin Hollander s research into urban decline in both the Sun and Rust Belts draws lessons planners and policy makers that can be applied universally Hollander addresses the reasons and statistics behind these shrinking cities with a positive outlook arguing that growth for growth s sake is not beneficial for communities suggesting instead that urban development could be achieved through shrinkage Case studies on Phoenix Flint Orlando and Fresno support the argument and Hollander delves into the numbers literature and individual lives affected and how they have changed in response to the declining regions Written for urban scholars and to suit a wide range of courses focused on contemporary urban studies this text forms a base for all study on shrinking cities for professionals academics and students in urban design planning public administration and sociology
