Paul Hindemith Stephen Luttmann, 2013-01-11 Paul Hindemith A Research and Information Guide is an annotated bibliography concerning both the nature of primary sources related to the composer and the scope and significance of the secondary sources which deal with him his compositions and his influence as a musician and teacher The second edition includes research published since the publication of the first edition and provides electronic resources The Melancholy Science Gillian Rose, 2014-01-07 The Melancholy Science is Gillian Rose's investigation into Theodor Adorno's work and legacy Rose uncovers the unity discernable among the many fragments of Adorno's oeuvre and argues that his influence has been to turn Marxism into a search for style The attempts of Adorno Lukács and Benjamin to develop a Marxist theory of culture centred on the concept of reification are contrasted and the ways in which the concept of reification has come to be misused are exposed Adorno's continuation for his own time of the Marxist critique of philosophy is traced through his writings on Hegel Kierkegaard Husserl and Heidegger His opposition to the separation of philosophy and sociology is shown by examination of his critique of Durkheim and Weber and of his contributions to the dispute over positivism his critique of empirical social research and his own empirical sociology Gillian Rose shows Adorno's most important contribution to be his founding of a Marxist aesthetic that offers a sociology of culture as demonstrated in his essays on Kafka Mann Beckett Brecht and Schenberg Finally Adorno's Melancholy Science is revealed to offer a sociology of illusion that rivals both structural Marxism and phenomenological sociology as well as the subsequent work of the Frankfurt School Hebrew Union College Annual Volume 87 Hebrew Union College Press, 2017-12-31 Volume 87 2016 of the Hebrew Union College Annual is now available HUCA is the flagship journal of Hebrew Union College Press and the primary face of Hebrew Union College Jewish Institute of Religion to the academic world From its inception in 1924 its goal has been to cultivate Jewish learning and facilitate the dissemination of cutting edge scholarship across the spectrum of Jewish Studies including Bible Rabbinics Language and Literature History Philosophy and Religion David H Aaron and Jason Kalman served as Editors for the current volume and Sonja Rethy as Managing Editor Grammaticalization of the Complex Sentence Zygmunt Frajzyngier, 1996-01-01 The general objective of the study is systematic examination of the processes involved in the formation and evolution of complex sentence constructions in a group of genetically related languages The Chadic language group at about 140 languages constitutes the largest and most diversified branch of the Afroasiatic family One of the findings of the present work is that languages starting from the same base may develop quite different morphological and syntactic structures With respect to issues of general linguistic interest the book deals with motivations for grammaticalization It is proposed that one of the most important motivations is satisfaction of the principle of well formedness that is that every element in an utterance must have its role transparent to the hearer either by inherent lexical properties or by grammatical means In the present work both aspects of grammaticalization viz the emergence of grammatical constructions and the emergence of grammatical morphemes are given equal weight In addition to semantic metaphor and metonymy as mechanisms in the processes of grammaticalization the present work develops the notion of semiotic metonymy whereby a part of a sign performs the function of the sign It is shown that semiotic metonymy plays an important role in the grammaticalization of grammatical morphemes and constructions into other morphemes and constructions The book also shows that unidirectionality is not a governing principle with respect to the development of grammatical morphemes into other grammatical morphemes rather there is considerable evidence and theoretical justification for the bidirectionality principle
