Development Economics has been identified as a homogeneous body of theory since the 1950s concerned both with the study of development issues and with the shaping of more effective policies for less advanced economies. Development Economics in the Twenty-First Century brings together an international contributor team in order to explore the origins and evolution of development economics. This book highlights the different elements of high development theory through a precise reconstruction of the different theoretical approaches that developed between the 1950s and the 1970s. These include the theory of balanced and unbalanced growth, the theory of international trade, the concept of dualism, dependency theory, structuralism, and the analysis of poverty and institutions. The chapters highlight the relevance and usefulness of these analyses for the contemporary theoretical debate on development issues. Comparative perspectives are explored and analysed, including those of Keynes, Hirschman, Krugman, and Stiglitz. The chapters situate development economics within current debates among economists and historians of economic thought, providing a platform for future research. This book is suitable for researchers and students with an interest in Development Economics, the History of Economic Development, and the Economics of Developing Countries. China Green Development Index Report 2011 Xiaoxi Li, Jiancheng Pan, 2012-11-14

With the rapid growth of global industrialization, there has been substantial consumption of fossil fuels such as coal, petroleum, and natural gas, along with growing carbon dioxide emissions. Unprecedented environmental and ecological crisis clouded the world. Fortunately, the Climate Conference in Copenhagen signaled hope amid the sluggish global economic recovery. Countries worldwide have been braced for developing their scientific and industrial strategies in the era of post-financial crisis with a green and low-carbon philosophy. In 2008, the UN unveiled a plan for green politics and green economy, which is well received and carried out by countries worldwide. China's 30-year rapid economic development has attracted worldwide attention. However, how to develop in a sustainable manner when faced with acute contradictions between economic growth, resources, and environment has posed great challenges to China. Therefore, it is of great significance for us to speed up the study of green development and find a rational growth model. This study is completed by Prof. Li Xiaoxi and the dedication of other leading thinkers in economics management, environment, and resources, together with the help of China Economic Monitoring and Analysis Center (CEMA).

Low Carbon Economy and Health in the Context of Carbon Neutrality Yuanjun Zhao, Chunjia Han, Zheng Liu, 2023-12-08 Global warming has led to increasing climate risks, and climate change is a global issue facing mankind. Therefore, most developed countries have set a clear goal of achieving carbon neutrality after reaching peak carbon emissions. In the context of global warming, a low carbon economy based on low energy consumption and low pollution has become a global popular research topic. At present, the international community has formed a consensus on green transformation and taken practical actions. At the same time, the achievement of the carbon neutrality goal has highlighted the importance of public health, and therefore a series of new research directions are emerging and how to develop a low carbon economy and protect public health while achieving the carbon neutrality goal has become an important issue. In the post epidemic era, economic recovery and public health issues need to be addressed, and a low carbon economy and public health will face even greater challenges with carbon neutrality goals placing this issue at the forefront. For this Research Topic, we would like submissions that provide research results on topics such as green development, green low carbon resource conservation, low carbon economy, low carbon development, low carbon living, low carbon society, population health, health distribution, health awareness, health behavior, and public health. Quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methods approaches are welcome to explore the low carbon economy and public health from multiple perspectives. The developmental history of the low carbon economy, the level of development, and the evaluation of the level of development. The many challenges faced by the low carbon economy in the development process and how to deal with the challenges in the development process. The development of a low carbon economy is influenced by a variety of factors such as low carbon investment, policy norms, technology, development, energy development, and digitalization levels, etc. We would like research works which study the factors that influence the development of a low carbon economy. Analyze which industries will have an impact on the development of a low carbon economy, including but not limited to the energy industry, transportation industry, and construction industry. To study the factors that affect the development of public health and how to improve public health. To study the impact of residential environment, sports environment, community environment, etc. on public health. To study the methods used in studies related to the development of a low carbon economy and public health development. To analyze the impact of the development of a low carbon economy on other industries such as international trade, the real estate industry, and tourism.

Regional Development and Its Spatial Structure Dadao Lu, 2024-02-20. This book describes the progress and prominent theories of regional development research in the past decades, especially in the past decade, discusses the industrial structure, spatial structure, resources, and environment, as well as a series of practical issues, and reveals the general characteristics of spatial structure evolution in the process of regional development. The research on the issues of regional development has become the frontier of relevant disciplines since the 1950s, and much progress has been made in the process of solving practical problems in social and economic development. This book provides an in-depth and systematic demonstration of the point-axis system theory of regional exploitation and development, as well as the T-shaped structure of China's regional economic action in theory and practice, and discusses the impact of location differential rent, restricted accessibility technological innovation etc on regional development theoretically This book is used as a reference for planning scientific research and teaching personnel in territorial expansion regional economy human geography etc Regional Development: Theory and Practice Baleshwar Thakur,H.S. Sharma,Suresh Misra,S. Chattopadhyay,Surendra Singh,2017-01-01 The Five Volume Series on Regional Development Theory and Practice is a festschrift dedicated to Professor R P Misra a distinguished scholar widely recognized as one of the pioneers who initiated and promoted Regional Planning studies in India This five volume series with over one hundred research papers on different aspects of regional development is a fitting tribute to the scholar who spent much of his life time thinking researching and writing about development in general and regional development in particular These five volumes each dealing with a specific aspect of regional development Vol 1 Concept of Regional Development Vol 2 Measuring Development Vol 3 Development Patterns and Structures Vol 4 Development Policies and Vol 5 Development Challenges Each of the five volumes begins with an introduction which is unique in the sense that this is not merely an introduction to the contributions contained in the volume but also talks of the theory of regional development contemporary development in the discipline and the contrarian views expressed by various academics and policy makers Another significant aspect of these introductions is the global view and a comparative scenario of the developed developing and under developed economies of the world that the editors have kept in view in a debate seeking an universal theory of regional development Regions are specifics and often unique and regional development implies focusing on the assets of the territory its potential and constraints Reform and Development of Educational System Ling Li,Jiafu Zheng,Zeyuan Yu,2017-12-29 In this book the authors pursue quantitative qualitative and mixed methods approaches conducting hundreds of large scale surveys and in depth interviews in 679 schools 67 counties and 13 provinces throughout China They also conducted longitudinal case studies in five municipalities and provinces to better reflect education reform and development in different education levels or sectors The authors used national statistical data from the 1970s to 2013 as well as a wealth of first hand documents and data from different levels of educational departments in schools counties municipals and provinces and grass roots input from 253 teachers principals education administrators and students The authors applied SEM HLM GCM and many other statistic techniques and qualitative methods to analyse the data and materials in order to explore correlations between development and reform internal and external factors in educational reforms as well as strategies for resolving core issues Their findings indicate that institutional reforms concerning financial investments allocation of teaching resources allocation of facilities curricula design systems and political economic social system reforms all contribute to the development of different levels and types of education in different modes and to different extents Topics of particular interest include five case studies conducted in five different municipalities and provinces that showcase the nation s education reform and development in a specific model and on the basis of substantial data Further milestone events regarding educational reform and development that have taken place in China since 2013 are examined As a unique feature the book also includes 353 diagrams and tables on the development and reform of education in China offering extensive and up to date information on a part of the world that often remains difficult to access The book provides an expansive and in depth examination of the nation s education reform and development from its historical roots to the present and combining official and grass roots standpoints It will help readers to understand why and how Chinese education could lead students to win in international comparisons like PISA while at the same time often being the target of scathing criticism as well as how the nation is now working to provide a better education to serve the world s largest population

Population Growth and Urban Systems Development G.A. van der Knapp,2012-12-06 The study of the evolution of an urban system raises a number of practical questions as to the operational definition of the components of the system as well as to the incorporation of the factor time in the analysis In this chapter the focus is on the urban centres the nodes of the urban system One of the first problems to be solved now is the definition of such a node It has been argued above that population size can be used as an approximation of the complexity of the spatial economic structure of a region The acceptance of this notion makes it possible to study the urban system as a population system The analysis of the population system over the study period will be pursued from this perspective The study period 1840 1970 covers completely the industrialization and urbanization phase which occurred during the industrial revolution Over this period the spatial organizational structure of society evolved from a rural commercial to wards a modern urban industrial state One of the major events in this period of change is the spatial redistribution of the population and the population growth This process will be examined below at three levels of aggregation 1 the population distribution as one frequency distribution 2 the population distribution disaggregated into a number of size classes and 3 the individual cities which make up the population distribution

Reducing Inequalities Towards Sustainable Development Goals Medani P. Bhandari,2022-09-01 The Sustainable Development Goals SDGs are a set of global goals that meet some of the most pressing challenges facing our world today Goal 10 concerns reducing global inequalities Inequality is currently seen in the social political and economic structures of communities at both the national and international level The United Nations approach to sustainable development is to create a set of goals and targets try to minimize the accelerating gaps of inequality The book presents new insights for evaluating the progress on SDGs especially goal 10 it also boldly sets new economic social and environmental targets for reducing inequality Using case studies this book encourages readers to view economic development through the lens of growing inequalities and disparities Such inequalities are clearly becoming more obvious as the world is better connected and information is quickly shared The books main aim is therefore to direct the efforts of scholars practitioners and policymakers to swiftly find the balance between the three pillars of sustainable development The main challenges and focus of each chapter are different and collectively they give an integrated understanding of the phenomenon of sustainable development and its diverse aspects This book will be useful for policymakers social and environmental activists agencies educators and practitioners in the sphere of social or environmental economics The methodology of the research can be replicated and taken forward by future researchers in the field
